Why Lynchings Happen.
The President's English.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CONGRESS WILL be asked to bring the strength of our Navy up to the London agreement by 1939; not a bad idea, probably. But what about bringing the American fighting air fleet up to twice the strength of any other fighting air navy, especially in the way of pursuit and bombing planes?

A big Navy floating around on the Pacific or Atlantic wouldn't do us much good if more modern airships from foreign countries were bombing simultaneously Chicago, San Francisco, New York, Seattle and Washington, D. C. That could easily happen.

OUR NAVY has approved a squadron non-stop flight of six twin-motored flying boats from San Francisco to Honolulu, under command of Lieut. Commander Knefler McGinnis.

That will be a good flight, creditable to the Navy, but soon it will be as simple as flying the English Channel, for which Lord Northcliff once gave a prize of $50,000.

James Wedell, who recently flew a sick baby fourteen hundred miles to Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Maryland, announces plans for a plane that he hopes will do 440 miles an hour.

He already holds the world's speed record for land planes, and his new plane, theoretically, would go around the world in two days and a half, cross the Atlantic and come back three times in one day.

All that and more will happen.

WHEN LYNCHINGS occur, according to Warden Holman, of San Quentin prison, defective American justice as well as angry American mobs is to blame.

Lynchings at San Jose, Cal.; Princess Anne, Md., and St. Joseph, Mo., according to Mr. Holman, were not merely "passionate disregard of law and order, but were prompted by the genuine and abiding conviction of an enraged citizenry that legal machinery couldn't be relied upon."

When the public becomes convinced that justice has ceased to operate it makes it operate, sometimes disastrously.

PROF. BASSETT, of Stanford University, says President Roosevelt writes the best "American English.

Britishers wouldn't consider that a high compliment, although many of them imitate the worst kinds of American slang, to say nothing of still worse American drinks, cocktails and other poisonous concoctions.

The President is satisfied, doubtless, to know that his English is understood and listened to gladly by more than one hundred million Americans.

SUDDENLY COMES a great demand for wheelbarrows. New government jobs give hand labor the preference. In Lincoln, Neb., not a wheelbarrow could be bought.

Recently wheelbarrows were out of date, too slow. Steam or electric shovels that could lift five tons at one bite were demanded. Yet, not long ago the wheelbarrow was the great new labor-saving device.

Two men used to stagger along carrying two hundred pounds in a box with four handles, then some genius put a wheel at the end of two long levers, wheelbarrow handles, and one man could push five hundred pounds with ease.

IN CHINA a lady is never quite sure what will happen to her. By one set of conquerors, Chinese girls were compelled to squeeze their feet in babyhood, and all their lives they hobbled, could not run away from the conquerors.

Chinese men were compelled to wear their long pigtails, to which they subsequently became attached. Seizing a Chinese by the pigtail when you wanted to cut off his head was convenient.

Then the enlightened Chinese republic came, pigtails were chopped off, girls' feet were freed from the brutally tight bandages, too late to help many.

Rejoicing in their freedom, the Chinese girls, whose hair is naturally dark and straight, making the finest hair nets, celebrated by wearing curls with the help of hot irons.

Now Gen. Han Fu-Chu says girls must wear their natural straight hair, and his soldiers shave, absolutely bald, every girl found with curls.

JOHN WILLIAMS, taking a crowd of passengers at ten cents each from Miami to Miami Beach, said to them proudly, "I'm going to take you," meaning at high speed.

Passing one car on the highway, at top speed, he shouted:

"Get behind, I'm going to leave you."

He did, and left the viaduct, going through the railing. Five of his passengers were drowned in the car.

Williams was not killed, but will not reach Miami Beach for some time. Tell that to somebody interested in showing how fast he can go.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, said to be interested in balancing the budget, which just now shows a deficit of 1,000 million dollars, could do it easily, in a way that would satisfy many Americans, by issuing good, honest, non-interest paying money in place of government bonds outstanding.

That would save about 1,000 million dollars interest every year. The process would be called "confiscation" by some, especially by those with money invested in "exempt" securities that pay no government tax.

RUM PRICES ANNOUNCED BY STATE

Liquor Board's List Shows Rye at $7, Wine 45 Cents

For complete price list of liquor to be sold in state stores see Page 5.

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 29.—Everything from soup to nuts—or rather from bottled in bond to bitters—is contained in the tentative price list for state liquor stores which open next Tuesday morning, advance proofs of the lists revealed today.

The prices range from $6.50 to $7—for a quart of bottled in bond whisky—down to 45 cents a pint for several varieties of wines.

Only a limited supply of the 200 or more different brands will be on hand when the stores open, the Liquor Control Board admits in a note to the public at the top of the list. Shortage of domestic supplies and restrictions on imports were blamed, but the board said the deficiency would be eliminated as rapidly as possible.

FAIR PRICE SOUGHT

The prices, the note said, were established while keeping in mind the right of the consumer to a fair price and the right of the aged and blind to relief promised them by the state from liquor profits.

Half a hundred brands of whiskies appear on the list, ranging in price from $1.85 to $5 a fifth. Pints of some brands will go for as low as $1.15.

Bottled in bond varieties range from $6.50 to $7 for quarts and down to $3.30 for pints. Scotch whiskies will sell at prices ranging from $5.25 to $3.35 per bottle. Irish whiskies will cost $3.75 and $4.

A pint of domestic gin can be obtained for 65 cents. The fifths will cost from $1 to $1.50 and

THIEVES SPURN BLENDED RUM

Even the robbers passed up the blended whisky today.

Backing an automobile into a rear yard at the Bigelow Cafe, 631 Webster avenue, early this morning, the robbers loaded their machine with choice bonded brands Police said it was the first liquor store robbery since repeal.

Included in the loot, according to Frank Bonavoglia, the proprietor, was 30 quarts of various other liquors, 12 quarts of gin, cigarets valued at $50, a case of beer and $8 from a cash register. The blended liquor was left on the shelves.

They overlooked a small quantity of rare wines and bonded liquors stored beneath a counter.

PIN REMOVED FROM BOY

The open safety pin which has been in 4-year-old Billy Fretz's stomach for almost three weeks was removed today by an unusual operation in Eye and Ear Hospital and Billy was improving.

Physicians determined that the pin could not be removed by normal processes. It was lodged in the flabby abdominal muscle. A stomach incision was made and enabled physicians to manipulate the pin into a tube inserted through the child's throat.

In pushing the pin into the tube successfully, physicians closed the pin. It was then removed through the throat.

Billy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fretz, of 7055 Lemington avenue.

FLIGHT GIVES BABY LIFE CHANCE

Operation Successful After 1,400-Mile Mercy Hop

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—A brain operation performed today on little Sue Trammell, 5-month-old baby rushed across the country by airplane to save her life, was "successful," and she was "doing splendidly," it was reported at the Johns Hopkins Hospital this afternoon.

The doctors reported:

"The operation has been completed and the child's condition is good.

"The operation may be termed successful.

"The obstruction which caused the hydrocephalus condition has been removed.

"The ultimate outcome of the operation cannot, of course, be determined at this time."

The operation was performed by Dr. Walter E. Dandy, eminent brain surgeon to whom the baby was rushed 1,400 miles in an 11-hour airplane trip from Houston, Tex.

The baby seemed well prepared for the shock when physicians made the final examination this morning. However, hospital attaches repeated the statement that the operation was "very dangerous."

The child was suffering from hydrocephalus, or water on the brain. Though the operation might have hurried her death, without it the disease would have destroyed her brain, according to the hospital physicians.

Sue is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Trammell, of Houston, Tex., who lost one child from the same disease.

When the baby contracted the same ailment, they chartered an airplane, flown by Speed-Pilot Jimmy Wedell, and made the 11-hour, 1,400-mile dash here from Texas. The parents and the baby's grandmother, uncle and nurse came with her.

BANK SUICIDE HINTED IN FEE PLAN

Johnson Gives Stand On Proposed Charges For Small Accounts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Discussing plans of New York banks to impose heavy service charges on checking accounts under the new bankers' code, Hugh S. Johnson today indicated to newspapermen he would give these proposals careful scrutiny before approving them.

(Pittsburgh banks also have announced plans for a service charge on small checking accounts under the bank code, which goes into effect January 2.)

NOT WORRYING

Johnson, replying to a suggestion that the proposals appeared excessive, said:

"If the banks want to commit suicide, no one is going to worry very much about it."

He said, however, that his chief interest was for the protection of the public.

At the same time the NRA chief said W. H. Davis, national compliance director, had informed him that charges lodged by William Green against Henry Ford, alleging code violation, were not wholly supported by the affidavits presented and required more original proof before the government could go ahead with any prosecution.

SEEKS MORE PROOF

Johnson said the additional proof would be sought.

Johnson also said he was "rather shocked" by a new charge made by Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that unemployment in November increased out of seasonal proportion and that the responsibility lay with employers who have been back-sliding on their pledges of supporting re-employment.

PARTY HEADS IGNORED IN SELECTION

4 Councilmen-Elect Threaten to Block Appointment

Mayor-elect William N. McNair today called for a showdown with the four Democratic Councilmen-elect over their opposition to the appointment of James F. Malone as Director of the Department of Public Safety.

Backed by M. L. Benedum, millionaire oil operator and party "angel," McNair has decided to appoint Malone.

At the same time, and under the same influence, he has tendered to Leslie M. Johnson an appointment as head of the Department of Public Works, and Johnson has accepted.

Col. William R. Dunlap has been tentatively slated to remain as director of supplies.

LEADERS DISAPPROVE

The Malone appointment is made despite the disapproval of the Councilmen, Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania.

The Johnson appointment was made without consultation with them, and at first they refused to believe that the tender actually had been made.

These two appointments represent a political rebuff to Lawrence, Guffey and the four Councilmen, who not only opposed Malone, but wanted George E. Evans as public works chief.

Matters weren't helped any by McNair's policy of keeping Lawrence Guffey and the four councilmen-elect in ignorance of his stand on Malone, Johnston and Dunlap.

Since they hadn't been told of the Mayor-elect's decision to name the three Republicans, the Democrats refused to comment on them after a conference in Lawrence's office at noon.

It was understood, however, that they'll probably oppose Malone and Dunlap. As for Johnston, they feel he represents the

Farley Gives Guffey Approval for Senate

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—James A. Farley, Postmaster General and Democratic national chairman, said today that if Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, should be the Democratic nominee for Senator next year he would be "perfectly satisfied."

He also said that Warren Van Dyke, collector of the port, for the governorship "is all right if he wants it."

Frightened by Toy, Child's Heart Fails

GETTYSBURG, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Fright, induced by the sudden whirring of a spring motor in a mechanical Christmas toy, is blamed for the death of 2-year-old John Weikert, Jr.

As he picked up a toy truck the spring released suddenly and he ran screaming to his parents. After a few days of declining health he died Wednesday of a heart attack.

16-TO-1 SILVER BLOC FORMS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—A bloc of 27 Senators unanimously agreed today to battle for the remonetization of silver at the coming session of Congress.

A bill directing the government to remonetize silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 will be introduced on the opening day by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana. The newly-organized bloc will fight for its adoption.

The group adopted a resolution reading:

"We favor bi-metalism, the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at a ratio to be established by law."

Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, declared remonetization of silver would "prevent the printing presses from beinfg started."

Others at the conference were Senators Borah, Nye, Thomas, Oklahoma; Thomas, Utah; McGill, Bulow, Erickson, Adams, Frazier, Shipstead, Hatch, McCarran, Dill, Logan, Caraway and Pope.

Nine other senators sent proxies and pledges to support the silver drive. These were Ashurst, Capper, Clark, Costigan, Bone, Duffy, Overton, Smith and Long.

FLAMES SPREAD IN APOLLO

APOLLO, Dec. 29.—A fire spreading rapidly through the business district threatened thousands of dollars of destruction here today. Starting in the Campbell building on Warren avenue, it jumped next door to the Johnson building, toward First avenue.

The Vandergrift fire department called out all its equipment at the request of Apollo authorities, but after an hour's work the combined equipment had failed to check the flames. Volunteer guards stood ready to order evacuation of residents if necessary.

The fire started from overheated stoves in the basement of the Campbell building, lighted to provide additional warmth for the building, firemen reported.

Icy Wave Eases Grip Slightly Here, Hits East

With the highest barometric pressure ever recorded here in December — 30.90 — the mercury bobbed up and down from 5 a. m. to 8 a. m. today. The low temperature was 6 at 5 a. m. and 7 a. m. today. At 6 a. m. and 8 a. m. it was 7, rising very slowly after the latter hour, and at noon had reached 10, where it stood during the early afternoon.

Two coasting fatalities were reported, and many persons were injured in sled riding accidents or falls on icy streets, in the cold spell which is expected to continue to make plenty of sled riding and skating.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said the frigid wave is passing eastward. Not much relief is promised today. He said the lowest temperature tonight would be from 10

WOLF KILLED NEAR CITY

Over the western hills of Allegheny County a posse of farmers and game wardens were beating today—searching for (of all animals) "the big, bad wolf."

Wolves in this neck of the woods always have been as scarce as public safety directors are plentiful but residenters in the Clinton section report that a pack has been preying on sheep, cattle and small game for several months.

In fact, Joseph Wherry, of Clinton, shot what authorities accept as a timber wolf yesterday in the Murdocksville Woods.

Game Protector Ralph A. Liphart was one of the leaders of the posse today. He said he was satisfied that the animal shot by Wherry was a wolf. Investigators from the State Department of Animal Industrty joined the hunt.

Hunters, who have been keeping an eye out for the wolves for days, believe there are seven of them.

Widow of Wanderwell, Slain Adventurer, Weds

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 29.—A world tour was the honeymoon plan today of Aloha Wanderwell, beautiful young widow of the mysteriously murdered Capt. Walter Wanderwell, and her new 21-year-old husband, Walter Baker.

Aloha and Baker, member of her wandering theatrical troupe, were secretly married in Gretna, La., Tuesday, it became known today.

The couple will leave on their honeymoon world tour upon completion of a theatrical engagement here, she said, adding:

"I had thought I could never marry again, but I love Walter and the future again looks bright."

It was while Capt. Wanderwell, professional world wanderer, was outfitting the yacht, Carma, for an exploration trip to the South Seas that he was murdered at Long Beach, Cal., a year ago. He was shot while in a stateroom aboard the vessel. Mrs. Wanderwell and members of the exploration party were questioned at length, but the murder never was solved.

Pastors Rap Malone Appointment

'Same Order Over Again,' Says Robinson

Clergymen who have backed former Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington as Mayor-elect William N. McNair's logical choice for director of Public Safety greeted with ill grace the probable naming of James F. Malone, former Republican chairman of the Fifth Ward and rejected candidate for Council in the fall primaries.

The Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, said of Malone:

"I don't like him at all. I'm not for Malone and never have been.

"It's just going to be the same order over again, in my estimation."

The Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side, said:

"I think it would have been much more to the advantage of the McNair administration and of the people who want a clean and fearless administration if he named a man with no political entanglements. For that reason I think Mr. McNair would have done better to name Mr. Pennington rather than Mr. Malone."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, said:

"If he gives us a clean city with a police department wholly divorced from politics he'll have both our support and our gratitude, much as we deprecate what we think lies back of this appointment — promises that should never have been made.

"The public ought not to be traded on."

Political Deal for Job Charged by Shelton

Asked if he believed the Malone appointment the result of a political deal whereby Malone supported McNair for mayor after his own defeat in the Republican primaries, Dr. Shelton said:

"Certainly—everybody knows that."

MORGENTHAU'S GOLD ORDER AIMED AT 'BIG HOARDERS'

TREASURY HEAD WARNS OF 'MOP-UP'

'We Mean Business,' He Says; Will Close Leaks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Acting Secretary Morgenthau said today his new anti-hoarding order was directed at the big hoarder and that the Treasury expected to get in several millions in gold and yellow backs.

Morgenthau said:

"There is several million around in the banks and other places and we are going after it. The drive is still against the big hoarder, not the little one, but we think small holders will come along and turn in their gold.

MEANS BUSINESS'

"It's a mopping up at the end of the year. I think we'll get several millions. We mean business."

Asked whether the Treasury was going to call in gold held by Federal Reserve banks, which constitutes three-quarters of the nation's monetary gold stock, Morgenthau replied:

"I just can't discuss that. We're on a 24-hour basis."

Morgenthau said the new order would not alter the Reconstruction Corporation gold purchase policy. Today the corporation again quoted a price of $34.06 an ounce for newly-mined metal.

One phase of the order, the penalty involved, was still in doubt. Under President Roosevelt's proclamation against hoarding, the penalty was $10,000 fine, 10 years' imprisonment, or both. Morgenthau's order places it at twice the value of the gold held.

In practical operation it was believed by officials the new penalty would be more effective against big hoarders who would rather pay the fine than surrender their gold.

There was no indication the old penalty of $10,000 fine would be urged against small gold holders.

TWO MAJOR AIMS

The new Treasury command was interpreted as having two major aims:

It eliminated the $100 exemption allowed holders of gold and gold certificates by President Roosevelt's previous proclamation and it sought to close legal loopholes whereby large hoarders might seek to evade the policy in the courts.

While the Treasury declined to say so officially, a recent New York federal court ruling that Mr. Roosevelt's original anti-hoarding order should have been issued by the head of the Treasury was considered a major factor in prompting the new command.

Last February, just before President Roosevelt stopped the use of gold money, there were $1,220,900,000 in circulation—that is, outside the Treasury. Of this, $571,337,000 was in coin and bullion and $649,563,000 in certificates.

By the end of November, the circulation figure had dropped to $528,530,000—$311,044,000 in metal and $217,486,000 in certificates. Most of the difference was turned in voluntarily, but about 40 million dollars was obtained from hoarders through the Justice Department's persuasion.

COURT UPSETS W. VA. TAX PLAN

International News Service.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 29.—The Supreme Court of West Virginia today upset a second attempt to solve the state's muddled tax problem and to free $25,000,000 in impounded property taxes.

In a three-to-two decision, the court held unconstitutional that section of a new tax collection act passed two weeks ago by the State Legislature, stipulating that the state should assume payment of six million dollars annually of county district road and school bonds.

The act violates the constitutional provision forbidding the state to lend its credit to local units of government, the court held.

GIMBEL SEES BETTER TIMES

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Bernard F. Gimbel, merchant, said today that a survey of the opinions of more than 40,000 women disclosed "an overwhelming vote of confidence for the (Roosevelt) administration and all of its policies."

Basing his statement on a canvass made for Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee, the president of the large department store firm declared:

"Well over three-quarters of the women of this country believe we are on our way out of the depression. Eight hundred and fifty out of every 1,000 believe we are coming into a period of unprecedented prosperity. Almost all of the women in America believe implicitly in the NRA and in the firms who are loyally supporting it. A quarter of all the workers of America have some leisure because of the NRA.

"I am confident that we can enter into the new year with very sane expectations for better business everywhere, judging by the expressed attitude of the real purchasing agent of America—the housewife."

BUDGET SIFTED BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt set aside today entirely for working out his first budget to be sent to Congress next week.

Director Dougles, of the budget, and other fiscal aides, had the call at the White House as Mr. Roosevelt sought a balance for the new year between income and outgo.

The President and congressional leaders are agreed that the approaching session shall be devoted principally to supply and revenue bills with a short meeting in prospect.

COLBY PRAISES WILSON'S AIMS

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Wilson, declared in an address last night that 17 more years must elapse before the national principles espoused by the late President will bear the fruits which their creator intended.

Colby spoke to 500 persons attending the eighth annual Woodrow Wilson memorial dinner, sponsored by the Democratic Women's Club of Camden.

He said evidence of Wilson's governmental sagacity is being unfolded gradually, but because of the deep-rooted foundations of some of his policies, at least 30 years must elapse after his administration before the wisdom of his teachings will be appreciated fully.

He was sentenced to three months imprisonment, which will not be enforced if Cronin will supply bail to keep the peace for two years.

MONEY POLICY ASSAILED BY ECONOMISTS

Sprague Leader of Fight Against Roosevelt

By GEORGE H. KENNEDY, Jr.
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—Many leading economists of the nation will leave their annual convention today prepared to carry on a fight against the Roosevelt monetary policies in every section of the country, according to Ray B. Westerfield, of Yale.

Prof. Westerfield is president of the newly-organized Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, which yesterday voted outright disapproval of the Roosevelt monetary policies.

SPRAGUE ON BOARD

Dr. E. W. Kemmerer, of Princeton, "the international money doctor;" H. Parker Willis, of Columbia, author of the Federal Reserve Act, and O. M. W. Sprague, former economic adviser to the Treasury, who resigned in protest, are on its board.

Within a few days a questionnaire will go to the 2,200 members of the American Economic Association. It will ask if they think the country should return to a gold standard, when it should do so, should it be a bullion or coinage gold standard, and whether they believe it advisable to restore the 1926 price level.

The consensus of opinion will determine how many things counter to the Roosevelt policies the economists will fight for.

The questionnaire is also a first step in getting the university economists to leave their academic groves for the public forum, its framers admit. A speakers' bureau will be organized, radio broadcasts will be used and every method of propaganda utilized in order to give the American public free of charge a university course in orthodox economics.

WARREN SPEAKS

George Frederick Warren, of Cornell, monetary adviser to President Roosevelt, came to the convention and with an elaborate series of charts explained the workings of his monetary theory of increasing the price of gold in order to increase the price of commodities, the theory which the government is now following.

He had an interested audience but, according to the sound money leaders, he made few converts. The administration had few defenders among the speakers at the convention. Kemmerer and Willis hammered away at administration policies and Sprague's talk later today was awaited with great interest.

NOISE MAY HELP DISEASE WAR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Discovery that high-pitched noise may aid in producing immunity to disease was announced at the Society of American Bacteriologists.

This was learned during an investigation of the ability of high-pitched, audible sound to kill bacteria, a well known effect. In addition to the killing, it was reported yesterday by Earl W. Flosdorf and Leslie A. Chamber, of the school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, these sounds caused chemical changes in egg albumen.

The changes were like those produced by heating the albumen in either alkaline or acid solutions. If the sound was long-continued, the albumen dispersed into an opalescent condition.

The albumen was tested on rabbits by injection under the skin. This substance possesses the power to produce antigens in a living body.

LEADERS BLOCK PEACE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

President Firm on Non-Aggression Proposal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The White House today became a listening post for reaction to a stern challenge by President Roosevelt that world political leaders must assume all blame for the blocking of a universal peace accord.

The President rested today behind a three-step plan for a world non-aggression pact, by which, he said, any nation still believing "in the use of the sword for invasion" could be singled out.

POLICY ON LEAGUE

Standing before a seventy-seventh birthday anniversary commemoration of Woodrow Wilson last night, Mr. Roosevelt praised the War President's League of Nations realization as "a prop" but not the answer to the world peace structure. Of the League he added, while an audience of its advocates sat in temporary silence:

"We are not members and we do not contemplate membership."

Many observers today interpreted his speech as his strongest exposition of American foreign policy. He termed his administration unequivocally opposed to intervention. He flayed those world leaders he said were overriding the wishes of the people they represented in throwing bars across the path of a peace accord.

He said:

"The blame for the danger to world peace lies not in the world population but in the political leaders of that population."

OUTLINES PLAN

The President outlined again his plan under which he would have every nation agree to eliminate over a period of years, by progressive steps, all offensive weapons; at the same time joining in a universal declaration that no nation would allow its armed forces to cross its own borders.

He said:

"It is clear, of course, that no such general agreement for the elimination of aggression and of the weapons of offensive warfare would be of any value to the world unless every nation, without exception, entered into the agreement by solemn obligation.

"If then such an agreement were signed by a great majority of the nations on the definite condition that it would go into effect only when signed by all the nations, it would be a comparatively easy matter to determine which nations in this enlightened time are willing to go on record as belonging to the small minority of mankind which still believes in the use of the sword for invasion of and attack upon their neighbors."

France, Germany Claim Support of Roosevelt

Associated Press.

President Roosevelt's proposals for a new international peace movement were received today by France and Germany, who hold opposite views on how international peace may be maintained, as direct support of their respective attitudes.

France thanked Mr. Roosevelt officially for his stand, believing he had given his wholehearted support to her Franco-German and League of Nations policies.

In Berlin, on the other hand, German official circles were equally certain that Mr. Roosevelt was viewing the question of disarmament as a purely European affair.

Cuba Gratified by Roosevelt's Policy

HAVANA, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's pronouncement of policy declaring adherence to non-intervention in the affairs of other nations was received as "gratifying" by Cubans, but elicited no great surprise.

Although widespread comment was unavailable, Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the Cuban army and a powerful factor of the new government, said he was "not surprised," and his attitude was regarded as reflecting a general government viewpoint.

Batista said:

"It does not surprise me because I always knew Roosevelt's policy was based on the solid, ample force of the great, free American people, which respects the rights of other free nations.

"President Roosevelt's words were gratifying, as they sustained my opinion."

Pinchot Gets Shingle As New Years Card

An unusual New Years greeting has been sent to Gov. Pinchot, a patient in a New York hospital, suffering from "shingles," an extremely painful nervous disorder.

Its cheery legend was inscribed on a shingle and bore this message:

"Greetings: From the Pinchot Forestry-Science Club. May you speedily recover from your illness of 'shingles.'

"Be hopeful: this shingle lasted 70 years; yours only for days."

On the reverse side of the weather-stained shingle was written:

"Shaved white pine shingle taken from a barn at Cooksburg, Pa., Cook Forest State Park."

The card, or shingle, according to an Associated Press dispatch, was sent to the Governor by B. M. Ogden, guardian of the Pinchot Forestry-Science Club of the Schenley High School.

Widow at Tribute Paid To Wilson's Memory

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Seated at the right side of President Roosevelt, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson listened last night to the nation's Chief Executive speak in memory of her husband.

National leaders had gathered, 900 strong, to observe the birthday anniversary of Wilson.

Hanging over them was an illuminated oil painting of the man in whose memory the meeting was held.

The list of guests read like a roster of those whose names in the last 15 years have helped shape the policies of the nation.

The appearance of Mrs. Wilson at the banquet was one of her very infrequent public appearances since the death of her husband. She looked very much as she did when she was first lady of the land, except that white is beginning to touch her hair at the temples. Both she and Mrs. Roosevelt wore black dresses, trimmed sparingly with rhinestone.

BOY SLAYER MUST DIE IN GAS CHAMBER, GOVERNOR RULES

DEATH PENALTY HELD BLOW AT LYNCHINGS

Colorado's Executive Declines to Spare Life of Boy

International News Service.

DENVER, Dec. 29.—Walter Reppin, 18-year-old Newark (N. J.) youth, the boy who "never had a chance," must die in the lethal gas chamber at the Colorado Penitentiary next week.

Gov. E. C. Johnson today declined to extend executive clemency to the boy.

The Governor expressed opposition to capital punishment and sympathy for the youth, but declared he did not feel justified in interfering with the due process of a trial court.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT

His statement follows:

"I have considered every angle of the case and I do not find anything that warrants my interfering with the sentence given young Reppin in the orderly processes of a trial court.

"The fact he is only 18 years old is to some extent a mitigating circumstance, but the only real reason I might have had for granting clemency to the boy is that legal executions are barbarous. I am opposed to capital punishment.

"However, in Reppin's case I do not see any reason for interfering with the verdict of a trial court. There is absolutely no question of his guilt.

"I feel that carrying out the court's sentence in the case will discourage any effort at lynch law in this state."

'TANK' TESTED

CANON CITY, Col., Dec. 29.—(Universal.)—The experimental stage for the new lethal gas death chamber at Colorado State Penitentiary was successfully completed yesterday when a 30-pound pig and an aged collie dog, a prison pet crippled by rheumatism, were put to death.

The pig was dead in 47 seconds; the dog in 18 seconds. The pig tore its crate to pieces in its death struggle. The dog was loosed in the chamber, took one whiff, lay down, looked up plaintively and died.

Three other tests will be made before Walter Reppin, stickup slayer, becomes the first victim next week.

During the tests Reppin was but a short distance away in a cell in the old death house. After the second test Warden Roy Best told him that he need worry on the score of experiment no longer. Reppin said:

"Thanks, warden, but that doesn't help much. I don't want to die no matter how easy it is."

THREE SLAYERS DIE IN CHAIR

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—In quick succession, Dewey Hunt, convicted slayer of a Dallas street car motorman, and two Negroes sentenced to death for slayings, went to their deaths in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here early today.

Hunt walked into the death chamber with a smile on his face and the current was turned on.

Immediately afterward one of the Negroes, Carl Stewart, 23, sentenced to death for killing an Austin Negro, was electrocuted.

He was followed to the chair by Clarence Booker, 25, given the death penalty for killing and robbing Andy Smith, a storekeeper at Cameron.

WHITE HOUSE DOGS 'BANISHED'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Two White House dogs—"Meggie" and "Major"—have lost their home because of their biting ways.

Mrs. Roosevelt parted with her 7-year-old Scotch terrier today, giving her to a friend for keeping. "Meggie" bit a newspaper woman this week.

"Major," the huge police dog which nipped at Prime Minister Bennett, of Canada, and Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, has been sent back home to Hyde Park.

MRS. GLORIA CRAIG, 23

MOVIE SHOOTING PUZZLES POLICE

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—An investigation of the mysterious shooting of Mrs. Gloria Craig, 23, wife of John Craig, film producer and deep sea diver, was started yesterday by detectives, who said they were not satisfied with her explanation that a purse snatcher wounded her.

The attractive brunette was found wandering on a street Wednesday night by J. T. Wright, who took her to a nearby drug store. She had been shot through the chest and stabbed in one arm. Her condition was reported as critical.

Mrs. Craig first told detectives that she did not know what had happened, they said, and later declared she had been shot and stabbed by a purse snatcher at the rear of a church.

Two years ago Craig, a producer of travel and deep sea motion pictures, and his wife were rescued from lonely Cedros Island, where they said they had been held prisoners by a Mexican fish cannery foreman who "didn't like Americans." They were removed from the island by Willits J. Hole, wealthy Los Angeles yachtsman.

Shortly before that trip, Mrs. Craig was treated at a hospital for a bullet wound in her thigh, which she said was inflicted accidentally while she was examining her husband's revolver.

NAME AND BATH FOR JAP PRINCE

TOKIO, Dec. 29. — (AP.)—Emperor Hirohito, in court ceremonies founded in the lore of the ages, today conferred a name upon the infant heir to the Japanese throne, born seven days ago.

The name chosen was Akihito Tsugu No Miya, meaning "prince of the august succession and enlightened benevolence."

As the one hundred and twenty-fifth emperor of Japan, the little crown prince will be known as Akihito.

The name was chosen, not by the infant's father, but by learned men of the imperial household.

The characters were written by Emperor Hirohito on a sheet of soft white paper and carried into the presence of the unimpressed infant.

Included in the procedure was the giving of the ceremonial bath, a rite so ancient its origin has been lost even to court sages. While the bath was in progress, eloquent passages from ancient Japanese literature were read to the infant by attendants hidden from his view by screens.

GIRL, 13, TELLS OF KILLING PLAYMATE

'Told Lies About Me,' She Declares in Explanation

International News Service.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 29.—"I did it.

"Josie told lies about me and my family. I lost my temper. I did it."

With those half-defiant, half-frightened statements confronting them like gruesome fragments of a nightmare, Westchester County officials today prepared to renew questioning of 13-year-old Mary Kavala, who climaxed a four-day series of testimony with the admission that she had murdered Josephine Woropay, her 8-year-old playmate and neighbor in Hastings-on-Hudson.

STARTLING SOLUTION

The startling solution of one of the most brutal murders in the annals of the county came from Mary after she had inferentially laid the slaying at the foot of one man or another in the Polish settlement near where the children lived and hinted at orgies, "dope parties" and other fantastic explanations for the crime.

Mary, a child with the precocious worldly knowledge of a girl many years her senior, began her recital in a defiant manner. But when it ended, she was sobbing.

She told her questioners:

"I did it. Josie told lies about me and my family. She said I went to see men in Shantytown (the laboring settlement in Hastings-on-Hudson). She said my mother was a drunkard. I took her up to the Lyceum. I told her 'Josie, you're a bad girl.'

HIT WITH ROCK

"I hit her with a rock. She fell down on the ground and I hit her again. Then I shook her. She didn't do anything and I hit her with the rock.

"I took a piece of rubber then and twisted it twice around her neck. Then I turned her over and took some string and tied her hands and wound it around her neck."

Mary faltered, then broke out sobbing:

"Now I'm sorry."

Josephine's body was found under the porch of St. Matthew's Lyceum at Hastings-on-Hudson on Christmas Eve. Her face was battered and cut and her throat bruised.

Mary told police she had "played around" with high school boys, and had once pushed a baby carriage off the curb "for a thrill."

The District Attorney said he could prefer a first degree murder charge against the girl, despite her age, but was undecided what course he would pursue pending renewed interrogation of the child.

FIVE STRICKEN AFTER MEAL

Stricken ill after dining in their home at 1208 Gibbon street, three women were treated at Mercy Hospital early today. Another woman and a boy were affected, but did not become seriously ill.

One of the victims, Mrs. Lillian Horn, 48, was detained at the hospital for observation. Two others, Helen Schutzski, 19, and Jean Lewis, 23, returned to their homes after receiving treatment.

Mrs. Katie Moran, 50, who told police she prepared the meal consisting of spaghetti and noodles, and her son, Vincent, 14, became ill, but did not receive medical treatment.

She's Still a Princess

JANET SNOWDEN . . UNWILLINGLY SHE'S PRINCESS CARAVITA

Court Refuses to Annul Heiress-Prince Wedding

Universal Service.

NEW CITY, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor, Jr., in a decision on file here today, denied a marriage annulment to Janet Snowden Caravita, estranged wife of Prince di Siriggnano Don Francesco Caravita.

Evidence has been given before Referee Floyd D. Frost. Frost had recommended the annulment be granted.

In rejecting the referee's recommendation, Judge Taylor said:

"In view of the public policy of the state related to the still (with us) sacred institution of marriage, the proofs before the learned referee are wholly insufficient to warrant annulment on grounds of fraud, even though the parties are apparently willing, if not anxious, to have it annulled."

Princess Caravita, 19, is a sister of Princess Rospigliosi. She married the prince August 17.

Justice Taylor mentioned that according to the testimony, the princess "visited a speakeasy with the defendant shortly after she first met him" and commented that, despite her youth, she was an intelligent, sophisticated girl.

The decision continues:

'She claims to have been imposed on and induced to marry the defendant (an alleged nobleman whom she knew for one day only), by the latter's 'false representations as to his extensive property and as to his ability to give her $300 a month as an allowance.'"

Justice Taylor then quoted Referee Frost, who had asked:

"Did you accept him on the basis of this?"

To which the princess had replied:

"No, because I loved him."

The plaintiff testified that after the marriage they occupied a room in her sister's house, visited friends in Connecticut and lived together at a hotel. The referee asked:

"On these occasions was the marriage consummated?"

The plaintiff's rather remarkable answer was:

"Not that I recall."

The referee asked:

"As far as you are concerned, it never was?"

The plaintiff replied:

"No."

The Justice, dealing with these questions and answers, said:

"The testimony is simply incredible, and its lack of credibility casts an adverse reflection on the plaintiff's claim that she was induced to marry the defendant by reason of allegedly false representations as to his property and income."

He emphasized that the prince did not contest, and added:

"There may be grounds for annulment. If so, they were not presented. If the plaintiff wants to offer further proof, she may have 10 days in which to do so. The matter will be remitted to the referee."

DOG DIES SAVING FAMILY FROM FLAMES

Pet Trapped by Smoke After Awakening Household

The heroism of "Bob," a 4-year-old Belgian police dog, cost him his life early today.

He barked when an overheated stove set fire to the kitchen of the home of Rene Stauffer, owner of the Overbrook Market, at 2033 Sawmill Run boulevard. His barks awakened a son, Edward, 21, who attempted to extinguish the flames with a garden hose.

Failing, he called his parents and sisters, Jean, 26; Pearl, 24, and Audrey, 9. They made their way to safety after breaking down an unused door.

Firemen summoned by a still alarm extinguished the fire after it had caused an estimated loss of $1,500.

VICTIM OF SMOKE

They found the dog unconscious in the ruins—a victim of smoke. Carried to the garage of a new home Stauffer is building on the rear of the property, firemen under Fire Capt. Harry Crockett, of Overbrook, revived him after applying restoratives for more than an hour. The dog had inhaled too much smoke, however, and died shortly before dawn.

The pet was highly prized. On several occasions, the Stauffers told firemen he aroused them in time to prevent robberies.

BURNS FATAL TO GIRL

Helen Gaza, 12, of 1200 Canal street, Sharpsburg, died last night in St. Francis Hospital from burns suffered several hours before when her clothing ignited while she was lighting a gas stove in her home, according to the Coroner's report.

Fire of undetermined origin caused $500 damage to the home of Arthur L. Ainsworth, 8525 Pershing street, last night. Ainsworth, his wife and two children, were visiting at the home of his father-in-law, P. J. Joyce, who lives directly in front of their house, when the fire broke out.

NEW WYNEKOOP PUZZLE PROBED

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The fantastic story of John Van Pelt, 69, witness in the forthcoming Wynekoop death trial, that he was kidnaped and held captive 10 days by two doctors, was being investigated today by Police Capt. John Ryan after flatly saying he did not believe it.

Van Pelt, handyman around the home of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, accused of the murder of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Rheta Wynekoop in the basement of the residence, appeared at a police station yesterday after he had been reported missing. Police quoted him as saying, as he arrived in a taxicab:

"Here I am, the missing witness in the Wynekoop case."

Then he launched into his story of how the doctors had kept him in lake front hotels and "treated him royally," even to the extent of buying him new clothes, while they plied him with questions about the case.

Attorneys for both agreed to a postponement until February 14 to permit preparation of briefs.

Since the trial in Newport, which ended when Judge Charles A. Walsh said neither was entitled to a divorce, both principals have shunned the limelight. Recently, however, Jelke was spotlighted when included on a list of the "ten best dressed men in the world."

Mrs. Jelke is the former Eugenia Woodward, daughter of a prominent Alabama family.

YOUTH ADMITS KILLING MUTE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—William McMann, 20-year-old electrician, was held in the city jail today for Grand Rapids, Mich., police who telegraphed they want him on a charge of slaying Margaret Peevey, 22, a deaf mute, in their city.

Detectives here stated the youth admitted killing the girl and insisted he had ample reason for the shooting. He said:

"She played a dirty trick on me."

McMann signed a waiver of extradition.

The frozen body of the girl deaf mute was found in a meadow two miles beyond the Grand Rapids city limits December 23. She had been dead more than 24 hours.

McMann was arrested when he appeared at the telegraph station to wait for a message from his mother.

2 PARKS OPEN TO SKATERS

The season of frosted toes and bumps was officially opened today in Pittsburgh with announcement that the ice is safe for skating on Lake Elizabeth, West Park, and Panther Hollow Lake, Schenley Park.

The pool in South Park and an artificial rink in North Park was in use by skaters yesterday, according to the County Bureau of Parks. The artificial rink was created by flooding lands from a creek near Pearce Mill road.

Two nurses from Allegheny General Hospital, Edna McClelland and Mae Eyles, were the first "official" skaters at Lake Elizabeth today. Arthur Kunzelman, of 141 Zara street, took the first "recorded" spill.

GIRL FLIERS MAY REMAIN ALOFT TILL SUNDAY

Both in 'Gay Spirits' After Shattering Endurance Mark

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The record-breaking endurance fliers, Frances Marsalis and Helen Richey, in a note dropped after they had completed their two hundred sixteenth hour in the air, shortly before 1 p. m. today, said they planned to remain aloft until tomorrow or Sunday.

Mrs. Marsalis wrote to her ground crew:

"We feel pretty good, and the motor sounds okay. Talk things over and let us know. We could land tomorrow or Sunday."

Continuing, the woman who was co-holder of the record of 8 days 4 hours and 5 minutes, broken at 6:08 p. m. yesterday, attributed her sudden recovery from exhaustion that threatened success of the flight several days ago, to the "excitement of breaking the record."

"We are in gay spirits—perhaps this is due to the Florida climate, perhaps to the excitement of breaking the record and hanging up a new one. Anyway, we don't seem like two people who have just spent the busy and fatiguing nine days that we have."

An order for an extra heavy load of gasoline, to be taken aboard at the contact just before darkness tonight, was contained in the message.

The women entered their tenth day in the air at 1:03 p. m. A large crowd watched the endurance plane as it slowly circled the airport territory.

SPY CHARGES AGAIN DENIED

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Benjamin Bercowitz, suspected by police of being the cashier of a big international spy syndicate, today joined others under arrest in emphatically protesting his innocence.

Authorities, meanwhile, searched the hotel room of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, of East Orange, N. J., also held on espoinage charges. In the room, police said previously, they found secret documents.

Bercowitz told Examining Magistrate Benon he first met Switz in New York, but that they were merely casual acquaintances and saw each other rarely.

His wife, Clara, also under arrest, came to Paris with him two months ago, Bercowitz said. He testified he sought a business opportunity here after living in the United States and Canada, where he was in the fur business.

Michael Forgets Royal Manners With Mother

International News Service.

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 29.—Crown Prince Michael, 12-year-old heir to the throne of Rumania, today began a one-month visit with his mother, Princess Helen, whom he had not seen for nearly a year prior to his arrival here last night.

Michael, jubilantly happy, forgot royal decorum at the meeting. He waved wildly from his railway car as it pulled into the station, and as it stopped rushed out into the arms of his mother and smothered her with kisses.

It was not until several minutes later when, observing the stern faces of the two Rumanian colonels who had accompanied him as his bodyguard, he recovered his official composure and formally kissed his mother's hand.

Brother Divorces Wife Revealed as His Sister

International News Service.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 29.—On the ground that five months after their marriage he had discovered she was his sister, Robert Foehler, a Hungarian industrialist, today obtained a divorce from his American wife, Maud Firstein, daughter of a New York merchant.

Twenty-six years ago, shortly after his birth, Foehler told the presiding judge, his mother, Greta Nielsen, emigrated to the United States, leaving him in the custody of his grandparents, who had always opposed her marriage.

His mother and father finally were separated by divorce and the mother married Firstein in New York. Maud Firstein was born of this marriage.

Foehler met Maud at Monte Carlo last year and promptly fell in love with her. The tragedy was revealed when Foehler showed his wife an old family picture. He pointed out his mother as a member of the group.

And Maud exclaimed:

"Why, that is my mother, too!"

The divorced couple will shortly go to the United States to visit their mother.

PRINCETON SEES MYSTERY MAN IN EINSTEIN

By LINDESAY PARROTT
International News Service.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 29.—A stumpy little figure, with a straggling gray mustache and a halo of unclipped hair under a wide-brimmed, black, cowboy hat—Dr. Albert Einstein, father of relativity and the world's greatest mathematician—is growing today in local legend as the town's most famous man of mystery.

It is nearly three months now since the exile from Nazi Germany settled down under the Princeton elms in what the university community has learned was to be almost utter seclusion.

The plump, bustling Mrs. Einstein is a familiar person in the town by now. Housewives have seen her do her shopping—eyeing her vegetables closely through an ever-present lorgnette, and driving thrifty bargains in Princeton's less expensive stores.

EINSTEIN HAS GUARD

Einstein himself has ceased to be a portent to the town. You see him walking, daily, to his office half across the campus and walking some at night, a secretary always at his heels.

But into the stone house which he took when there were difficulties over the home first picked for him scarcely a dozen of the faculty have penetrated.

Einstein was elected an honorary member of the Nassau Club, retreat of the professors, even before he landed. He has not once been in the place.

But, though Dr. Einstein is a mystery to most of Princeton a crop of legend and of anecdote is growing around his name.

No one, so far, has come forward to deny the story of his sudden change in homes a short time after his arrival.

Mrs. William R. Hall is back in the modest house at 11 Cleveland place she rented him when he first arrived. Her only comment is:

"Everything is all right now, I won't say anything about it."

SILVER REMOVED

But the town knows for certain that it was because the family silver had been removed and certain personal belongings locked in an attic room before his arrival that Einstein and his wife declined to occupy the house.

Unfamiliar with American ways, the story goes, the Germans saw an insult in the common renting practice here.

There is another Einstein story, patched together, evidently, by irreverant undergraduates from legends of the traditional "absent minded professor" and from the constant presence of Dr. Einstein's secretary.

It was late evening, the tale goes, when a puzzled resident of Princeton found himself approached by the celebrated figure—alone.

The wayfarer asked:

"Can you tell me where the Einsteins live?"

The resident obliged. The questioner said:

"Thank you. I had forgotten."

And Dr. Einstein strolled away, in the direction of his home—never admitting his identity.

JAZZ AND WINE TO BOOM OPERA

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Opera and jazz are to get together on an equal footing tonight in the Civic Opera House, that temple of music that Samuel Insull built before his utility empire toppled.

A masque opera ball in which opera singers, stage and vaudeville actors will mingle with social leaders as they dance on the huge stage of the opera house, was the occasion.

The merry-makers will dance the hours away to the tune of three jazz orchestras with an undertone of popping champagne corks.

The ball is being sponsored by the directors of the newly organized Chicago Grand Opera Association and is designed to call attention to their efforts to revive interest in opera and make it self-supporting.

The hour of 11 was fixed for the festivities to begin, with songs by members of the opera company, with introductions by De Wolf Hopper.

Next Vincent Lopez will take up the baton of jazz, and there will come dances by Bobby Arnst, blues singing by Janet Reade, and other numbers, concluded with the Duncan Sisters in a "Duncanized" version of "Rigoletto."

Divorces Artist Who Wrote of New Love

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29—(AP.)—Mrs. Anne Foucar Salkaln obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce here from Arnold Salkaln, Russian painter and honor graduate of the National Academy of Arts.

She charged her husband deserted her last January and three months ago wrote her from New York saying he had fallen in love with another woman, "an artist, like myself."

113 Snakes Found Under Schoolhouse

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb., Dec. 29—(AP.)—The magician who pulls bunnies from silk toppers has nothing on CWA workers, who pulled 113 snakes out of the foundation of a Scotts Bluff schoolhouse.

As the snakes were of the water, or garter variety, and believed harmless, school authorities allowed the youngsters to keep them for pets.

Returning to the Opera

MARION TALLEY . . . MAKING UP FOR HER RETURN 'DEBUT'

Miss Talley, now only 27, the girl who in 1929 retired to a farm from her Metropolitan prima donnaship, now preparing for her return to the opera as "Gilda" in "Rigoletto" in the Chicago Grand Opera Company's New Years eve performance. Her debut was in 1926. This is a Wide World News Photograph Service picture.

Appeal of Editor Serving Life Denied

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The Oregon Supreme Court yesterday denied the appeal of Llewellyn A. Banks from a second-degree murder conviction and a sentence to life imprisonment for the slaying, at Medford last March 16, of Constable George Prescott.

Banks, former editor and orchardist, shot Prescott, who carried a warrant for Banks' arrest on a ballot theft charge. Banks insisted he shot in defense of his home.

RUM IMPORTS EXHAUST QUOTA

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Original import liquor quotas for the initial permit period from Great Britain, France, Spain and Portugal have been exhausted, the Federal Alcohol Control Administration announced today.

No further permits except those already in process of issue can now be granted.

Until the allotments for the second permit period, which will be provided for as soon as possible, no permits of any kind can be issued except for importations from those countries whose quotas have not been exhausted, and these only on applications already received.

No further new or supplemental applications can be received, the FACA said.

HELD IN THEFT OF RAIL PASS

Visiting at the home of a countryman, Simon Castoreno, 48, Mexican, made off with a railroad pass, according to testimony before the United States Commissioner.

A stranger in the city, Castoreno, who has only one leg, was invited by Corenlio Durate to stay a few days at the Durate home in Gilmore way. The host said his guest disappeared Christmas Eve and Durate, a Pennsylvania Railroad trackman, missed his railroad pass to Chicago.

Suspecting that Castoreno might have taken the pass he notified the railroad company and Christmas morning Castoreno was taken from a train at Niles, O. He was brought back to Pittsburgh and turned over to special agents of the Division of Investigation, Department of Justice, because the pass was said to have been used illegally in interstate transportation.

Castoreno was held for court and in default of $500 bond was committed to jail.

First County Rum Store Soon Ready for Use

Allegheny County's first state liquor store will be completed tomorrow in Coraopolis, Roy A. MacGregor, agent for the Liquor Control Board, announced today. Several other stores are nearing completion throughout the county, MacGregor said.

At least one store in downtown Pittsburgh will be finished by January 2, when the state stores are scheduled to take over the job of dispensing all packaged liquor in the state, according to MacGregor.

The Control Board has approved the following contracts for remodeling stores in Allegheny County: 340-342 Boulevard of the Allies, D. T. Ripple, $3,122; 5934 Baum boulevard, Kerr & Ingram, $2,650; Thirty-seventh and Butler streets, Kerr & Ingram, $3,620.

The board also announced an option had been taken on a store site at Liberty avenue and Edmond street.

Efforts are being made by the liquor authorities, according to an International News Service dispatch, to find a suitable location for a store in Homested, following objections made against a tentative site in West Homestead.

There will be no deliveries made by the state stores, it was made clear by Harry L. Frye, manager of the Try Street Terminal Company, the state warehouse. Frye said:

"It will be strictly a cash and carry business and the only deliveries we'll make will be from the warehouse to the state liquor stores."

Ten more applications for liquor licenses were tturned down today by the State Liquor Control Board, bringing the total to date to 502. Among those refused were the Del Moro Canoe Club, Wadle's Cafe and John Balkovec, all of Pittsburgh.

Pal Drags Injured Coaster Mile to Aid

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Injured in a sled mishap, Edgar Hooker, 16, was carried more than a mile on his 14-year-old friend's sled to receive medical attention.

Richard Gardner struggled through snow and ice with the injured boy until he saw a police car which took him to a hospital, where it was revealed a splinter had been pushed through his thigh.

BATTLE TO BAR FRENCH WINES RENEWED

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—A fresh wave of congressional protest against granting France increased import advantages while she remains in default on her debt to the United States was provoked here by news that the French government has reduced her import quotas by 25 per cent.

While the French quota cut was nominally imposed upon goods from all countries, it was obviously calculated to result in a reduction of American imports into that country as compared to the volume of French commodities entering the United States.

CRITICISM AIRED

The new protests, taking the form of vigorous criticism of the State Department's arrangements to swap American pears and apples for French wines, came from both wings of the capitol.

Senator McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, voicing displeasure, proposed that the Washington government reply by cutting in half the amount of French commodities permitted to enter here, while Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, assailed the State Department as "a spineless institution" in its dealings with the French government.

McCarran said:

"The American government should answer France by making a flat 50 per cent cut in all imports from that nation and should revoke the permission to double the importation of French wines. Such action would bring the French government to its senses."

SCORES 'DEFAULTER'

Britten's comment was:

"The State Department once more showed itself to be a spineless institution when it humbly consented to trade some American apples and pears for a million and a half gallons of French brandies for importation into the United States at a time when the French government is deliberately defaulting in its payment of its debt of honor to us.

"Defaulter France will later find excuses for not taking our apples and pears just as they found subterfuge for breaking other agreements with us."

Johnstown Dealer Bans French Wines

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 29.—You can get almost anything you want in A. M. Meek's diner but wines from France.

Mr. Meek announced today that until France pays Uncle Sam what she owes him wines served in his place will be exclusively from outside France.

Widow Succeeds Mate in Congress

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marian W. Clarke, Republican, was elected Representative from the Thirty-fourth Congressional District yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, Representative John D. Clarke, who was killed last month in an automobile accident.

'YOUNGEST' VET AND WOMAN DIE

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—An apparent murder and suicide authorities said, ended the lives of Mrs. Esther Crowell, 30, Leroy Vestal, 31, a World War veteran, in the woman's apartment. Friends said they were to have been married shortly.

Authorities said they believed she had shot Vestal and then taken her own life.

Vestal claimed the distinction of being the youngest member of the A. E. F. forces in France, having enlisted when only 15, although giving a legal age, in a Texas artillery corps. He held medals for bravery in action.

BRITAIN CURBS BRIDGE BIDS

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The apparent determination of the Portland Club, Britain's contract bridge authority, to wipe out virtually all the artificial conventions of the game today resulted in an order ruling a favorite British bidding convention illegal.

The convention is known as the "Barton club bidding system." It was ruled out on the same grounds that the Portland club blackballed the Culbertson four-five no trump bidding convention, an action that aroused an international storm of protest.

NEW YEARS EVE LID CLAMPED

Proprietors of whoopee spots who are hoping that the new liquor laws will be ignored on New Years Eve—Sunday—were warned today by Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide.

McQuaide said he will send police around to hotels, restaurants and night clubs to see that no liquor is sold before 7 a. m. Tuesday—and, what's more, that the local ruling against dancing before Sunday midnight is observed.

McQuaide's superior, Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., isn't even certain that dancing may begin at midnight Sunday. He said he'd see City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt.

However, one hope of celebrants is that there won't be enough police to go around.

Jamaica to Ship U. S. 49,000 Gals. of Rum

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Jamaica exporters will be permitted to ship 49,000 gallons of rum to the United States within the next four months under the import quota system, it was reported yesterday.

Already 13,700 gallons have gone from the colony to quench American thirst.

SEIZED LIQUOR SOLD BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Government sales of confiscated bootleg liquor have approximated 39,000 cases in the New York era since the repeal of prohibition.

Attorney General Cummings said today that between 115,000 and 120,000 cases were seized in the southern and eastern districts of New York and in New Jersey during the year and a half prior to repeal. This stock was kept on hand in expectation of the legalization of sales.

The liquor was stored in Brooklyn and sales now are in progress. The Attorney General had no figures available for seizures and sales in other parts of the country, but ventured the opinion the total was less than that taken in the vicinity of New York.

Full Liquor Board Urged on Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot's office had a request today that the executive appoint immediately the third member of the state Liquor Control Board and that the appointee be a repeal sympathizer, preferably from Western Pennsylvania.

Charlotte Augusta Lea, of the Pennsylvania division, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, in her letter asked that the appointment be made "not next spring, but now."

LEADERS WAR OVER MALONE SELECTION

independent Republican sentiment which they thank for electing them in November.

NEW CONFERENCE

McNair has been invited to another conference later today. He may attend. If he does, the present mixup may be clarified.

Meanwhile, one quarter had it that the naming of Johnston and Dunlap by McNair will be in the nature of a temporary affair, with Johnston dropping out after a few months to make way for Evans.

In the circle surrounding Benedum and McNair it was intimated today that the Councilmen-elect were bluffing, and would fall into line Monday when Malone's name comes up for confirmation. To this a spokesman for the group today said:

"Wait until Monday and see. If Malone's name comes before us."

It was reported from the councilmanic circle that pressure was being exerted to get votes for Malone, the promise of patronage being used extensively.

McNair declined to comment on the situation or to make any official statement as to his cabinet, explaining that the names now included were "subject to change."

His tentative inclusion of Col. Dunlap to remain as Director of the Department of Supplies is, however, the only listed name about which there is doubt. Dunlap is understood to have been approved by the citizens' group which pushed the supplies investigation during the Kline administration, as a result of which Dunlap was appointed to succeed Bertram L. Succop.

It was indicated, however, that McNair would not make any official announcement of his cabinet until New Years Day or later.

JOHNSON SELECTION

Johnson's selection is recognition of the Citizens' League, of which he was the head. After the Republican primary the majority of the leaders of this organization, including Johnson, William P. Witherow, Grant Curry, Francis S. Guthrie and Mrs. John O. Miller and Mrs. Templeton Smith supported McNair.

Benedum, it is known, has felt that the sentiment of the independent Republicans should be noted in the formation of a cabinet, and he has been able to impress this view upon McNair.

Guffey, Lawrence and the four Councilmen-elect also held that view, but they insisted recognition should not take the form of appointments to the two richest cabinet prizes within the gift of the new Mayor.

The manner in which the Johnson appointment was decided upon is one of the most amazing stories of politics. Apparently it was done without the slightest advance knowledge to Lawrence, the county party leader. Even this morning Lawrence expressed some doubt as to whether the offer actually had been made.

This skepticism prevailed despite the fact that more than 12 hours before Benedum had succeeded in persuading Johnson, who was reluctant, to take the place. It was evident that the conference between Benedum, Johnson and a handful of other men—not in the Lawrence-Guffey political organization—had proceeded without the knowledge of the Democratic leaders.

There is no personal opposition to Johnson among the Democratic Councilmen. At least one of the most forceful of the group is known to admire his courage during recent political conflicts. There is, however, vigorous antipathy to the manner in which Benedum has come into the picture as dominating Mr. McNair on important appointments.

MAGEE POSITION

The position of Councilman-elect William A. Magee becomes of extreme importance in view of the threats to vote against confirmation for Malone. The four holdover Republican Councilmen are understood to favor Malone as is Magee. Five votes are necessary to confirm.

On this subject, as on the election of a president of Council, Magee holds the deciding vote. Today he conferred with the Republican holdovers, who asked him to cast his vote for Robert Garland, Council veteran, as president.

Later he was to meet with John M. Huston, candidate of the Democratic faction.

Huston faced a bad stumbling block in that meeting as it became known that Magee is more sympathetic toward Garland than he was a month or so ago. His attitude then was to play along—in the voting for council's president, at least—with the winners of the November election.

STAND SHAKEN

But the strange antics of the Democrats and their seeming lack of a program for governing the city have made his stand less decided and Huston must do a lot of talking to win Magee's deciding vote.

Magee is understood to feel that Southard Hay, named for Welfare, and Dr. Ray P. Moyer, for Health, don't live up to the standards set by his appointments when he was mayor — those of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, now Director of Welfare, and of Dr. Carey J. Vaux, former Director of Health. There may be some discussion over those nominations next Monday.

Moyer is a McNair name; Hay, former contractor and bank receiver, was suggested by his friend, Guffey.

Ralph E. Smith, former member of the Tax Board, is to be appointed Magistrate of Morals Court, according to indications today. It also is reported that A. D. Brandon and Charles E. Papale will be named police magistrates. Both have had previous experience in Police Court.

Brandon was Morals Court Magistrate in the first Kline administration and dropped at the start of Kline's second term.

Papale then turned Democrat.

The buck was passed right back to McNair today by ministers who have been backing former prohibition administrator John D. Pennington for the job of Director of Public Safety.

McNair yesterday said of his conference with 58 Pittsburgh pastors who urged Pennington's appointment:

"I told them my serious objections."

Asked what they were, he suggested:

"Go to the ministers—get them to tell you."

And queries put to the leaders of the ministers brought the universal answer that McNair hadn't stated any objection to Pennington.

PASTOR REPLIES

The Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, said:

"Let him tell the objections. I remember he discussed Pennington but he didn't have any more objections than he had to everybody named—he seemed to have some objection to everybody.

"If he has objections to Pennington, let him put them out in public.

"I don't know why in the world they're talking like that—this is the most confusing thing I was ever in. I'm glad they don't elect a Mayor every year."

The Rev. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, declared:

"His principal question at that time was this: Whether or not Mayor Herron had signed the ordinance making it unnecessary for the director to be a resident of the city. I told him he had.

"That wasn't an objection—that was a question. He also wanted to know whether or not Pennington had made any attempt to close in on a prominent Republican politician. I told him he had."

The Rev. Dr. P. W. Snyder, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, said:

"That's tommy-rot.

"Of course, there may have been something I didn't know about."

The Rev. Dr. S. N. Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, declared:

"I didn't hear any objections."

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, said:

"I don't know that he made any objection as a reason for not naming Pennington."

M'NAIR TO GET 'CLEAN CITY,' DENNY SAYS

When William N. McNair "inherits" the City of Pittsburgh, after New Years Day, he will get, according to its present police officials, the "cleanest city of its size in the nation."

Thus spoke Harmar D. Denny, Jr., director of Public Safety, and Franklin T. McQuaide, superintendent of police, anyhow.

But there are those men-about-town who point out speakeasies in the downtown, North Side, South Side, West End, Oakland, East End and other sections.

And other men-about-town will point out that there are bookie joints still operating with either front or back or both doors open—including some lately in the news.

And still others will tell you that three fair gambling spots are starving to death, but still open. There's no gambling money to speak of except—

The numbers! And it's been rumored that numbers writers are writing them daily everywhere in town. Included are some police. And some of these are downtown, these men-about-town say.

They add that this information is not in the form of complaint. They don't want these fellows touched.

But Denny and McQuaide had this to say to questioners today:

Denny:

"I am satisfied and convinced that Pittsburgh is a clean city. Since I have been Director of Public Safety, I have made a survey of the conditions in Pittsburgh in regards to crime and racketeering, and compared Pittsburgh with other leading cities in the country. I have facts and figures which prove beyond a doubt that Pittsburgh is one of the cleanest cities in the country today.

"In regard to crime, there is no question about Pittsburgh having less crime here than any other city of the same size in the United States. I can honestly and truthfully say that Pittsburgh as far as I know, is clean.

"As far as rackets and violation of the liquor laws are concerned, I believe that Pittsburgh is comparatively a clean city."

NO CRIME WAVES

McQuaide said:

"As far as crime, there is no question about Pittsburgh. Records and statistics prove that Pittsburgh is the lowest city in the country in regards to general crime. Taking in consideration the area and cosmopolitan population, Pittsburgh is recognized by police departments throughout the country as one of the few cities where a serious crime wave has not occurred during the depression years.

"We have had a few minor cases where criminals came into the city, particularly pickpockets, but the police department quickly ferreted them out and took them in custody. In regards to the selling of booze, we have not yet received a list of persons who have been granted licenses to sell. We are expecting this list from Harrisburg in the near future and when we learn who has license we will co-operate with the state in arresting any persons who violate the state liquor laws.

"I believe that insofar as rackets and racketeers are concerned, we have a clean city. Since I have been superintendent of police, I have never failed to take action against any racketeer, speakeasy, gambling house or resort where I received a complaint. When I was made superintendent I informed my subordinates to clean up and as long as I remain superintendent I will carry out this policy. Any complaint I receive from the citizens I assure them that action will be taken. Taking Pittsburgh as a whole, I believe that insofar as crime and racketeering are concerned, the citizens here should be proud to claim Pittsburgh as their home."

GUMBERT HOME BUDGET CUT

The threat of the County Commissioners to abandon the Gumbert school for girls has apparently been dropped at the price of a $4,744 cut in the school's budget.

Headed by Judge Richard A. Kennedy, a committee appearing yesterday in behalf of the school told the Commissioners it was the only place where girls whose delinquency did not merit detention in Morganza could be sent.

Beyond criticizing what they said was the excessive cost of the home, the Commissioners did not mention their previously announced closing proposal.

After J. A. Hollinger, secretary of the financial committee of the school, had expressed willingness to help cut costs, the Commissioners devoted a long afternoon to that effort.

The appropriation for 1934 was reduced to $38,974. This was based on an average of over 50 girls in the school in 1933.

Further budget slashing yesterday brought the total cut to date to $445,341.

FIGHT TRANSFER OF LAYFIELD

The contemplated transfer of Harry Layfield, veteran supervising inspector of the government steamship inspection service, from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, was protested yesterday in a telegram sent to Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper by A. J. R. Vandermyn, of the Propeller Club.

Slated to take Layfield's job here is William J. Buchner, of Erie, prominent Democrat, who rivermen say has had no previous connection with the steamboat service.

Protests from many river points between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati are being made to Washington. The Pittsburgh Coal Exchange expects to join in the protests from Pittsburgh.

An undetermined amount of furs were believed to have been stolen from the display window of Jerome Wolk and Brother, at 709 Penn avenue, early today.

BABIES IN NEWS; HEART THROBS IN HEADLINES

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Little babies are beginning to disport themselves in dispatches as well as diapers.

They have become headlines. The little dickenses are in print. They are news.

Julio Amarriego is the postmaster at Luchana, near Bilbao, Spain. There came to his office a large package, unaddressed. Said Amarriego:

"I shall open this package for I am the postmaster of Luchana. I shall see what sort of article it is that seeks to move through the mails of Spain without an address on't."

Inside was a little baby, cooing and content.

Amarriego looked and shrugged his shoulders, for in Spain it is the custom to shrug one's shoulders. He said:

"Nice little thing. I have six already, so one more—"

He re-shrugged his shoulders and took the baby home. In its swaddling clothes—and Amarriego began shrugging his shoulders in double-quick time—was the sum of 50,000 pesetas.

* * *

"Where did you come from, baby dear?
Out of the everywhere, into the here."

Two boys knelt in a pew of St. Peter's Church at Troy, N. Y., yesterday. The cry of an infant reached them. Behind the curtain of the confessional booth, lying naked on the kneeling couch, was a babe hardly an hour old. A headline—a heartache.

The baby is well. The mother? Who she was, where she is—living or dead after her lonely Gethsemane—the authorities do not know.

* * *

Babies by stork? Nonsense. Babies by airplane, babies by mail—(ah, there, Senor Amarriego!)—, babies by dogsled and babies by automobile; dear little mites in the headlines.

In New York a frantic father, driving his wife to one hospital, realized he could not reach it in time. He changed his course for a nearer hospital. He arrived and dashed in to get stretcher bearers. To his ears came the honking of his motorcar horn. He ran out. His wife was pressing the horn button signaling that a child was born.

At Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Anthony Di Pasquale died. A doctor labored over her dead form. Thirty minutes after her death the doctor completed an operation; and from the dead mother he delivered a seven-pound baby girl.

A crepe on the door at Tony Pasquale's; a baby in the headlines—a baby girl "quite healthy and perfectly normal."

* * *

A swift airplane flew the night skies, landing on an ice-crusted field at Baltimore after a 1,400-mile ride from Texas so that a 5-months-old baby, Sue Trammell, might have the benefit of a specialist's skill at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

A dog team of 11 huskies mushed all but impassable New Hampshire trails to get a nurse to the side of a worried, expectant mother.

* * *

In Findlay, O., a baby so tiny that a shoe box was its crib, was born—and died.

In Tokio, in all Japan, there is public rejoicing because a baby has been born—a boy baby to the Empress; an heir to the throne of Japan. War, catastrophe or pestilence could write no bolder headline than he, the prince!

* * *

But in a field on Staten Island, N. Y., the body of a baby was found. The mother, Mrs. Elsie Smith, is held today for first degree murder. The baby, she said, was dead in its crib. There was no money for a funeral. She left the baby in the field, where she thought some one would find it and provide proper burial.

NEW ANIMALS PRODUCED BY SCIENTISTS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Making new kinds of animals by subjecting their parents to unaccustomed heat—new evidence that heat has been one of the causes of evolution by producing new kinds of creatures—was described today at the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The new animals in this case are brand new kinds of fruit flies, which have been born with characteristics not before found in their families, such as stub wings, smaller eyes and changed color of eyes and body.

The new characteristics were produced by subjecting the parent flies to a temperature of 98 degrees Fahrenheit for 24 to 30 hours, causing changes in the "genes" or heredity-carriers of the parents that are passed on to their offspring.

EVOLUTION AT WORK

This experiment, believed to be a sample of evolution actually at work, was performed by Dr. Harold H. Plough and Philip T. Ives, of Amherst College. They believe it is evidence that heat, acting on the bodies of living creatures, has been one of the causes of the process of evolution that many scientists agree has gradually developed the human race from primitive one-celled animals.

Heat helps along the process of evolution by producing changes in the germ cell, known as mutations, developing new types of creatures which in turn pass on their new characteristics to their offspring, Dr. Plough explained. Under conditions of nature, he believes, heat might be expected to speed up the process of evolution by speeding up the production of new types of animals. He added, however, that Darwin's old idea of natural selection, survival of the fittest, is the chief directing force in evolution.

HEAT AND HUMAN RACE

The Amherst scientists' discovery may be a step toward learning whether heat of any sort has played a part in the direct evolution of the human race, which most scientists believe evolved from some lower type of animal.

Their work confirms the findings of German scientists, made recently, that heat plays a part in evolution.

Another discovery about heredity, showing that the tiny genes or heredity-units that carry inherited characteristics from father to son seem to be essential to life, was reported by Dr. M. Demerec, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

He has found in experiments with fruit flies that the living cells that make up the substance of all animals cannot live without the genes that exist within all of them. Heretofore it has been believed that genes functioned only as heredity-carriers.

Sex Education Failure, Asserts Woman Doctor

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Sex education, as a means of solving many of the difficulties of marriage and relationships between men and women, has failed, the American Student Health Association was told today by Dr. Elizabeth Whitney, consultant in mental hygiene at Stanford University.

In a discussion of the love problems of the college girl, before the association's convention, she said:

"Twenty years ago there was a general movement for sex education, taking the place of positive silence on the subject."

But the results have not realized the high hopes entertained for it, she said, declaring:

"There is more unhappiness in marriage and more confusion in relationship between men and women than ever before."

She deplored the movement for general sex education, declaring:

"It has loosed a flood of talk until sexuality has become an obsession."

Furthermore, she contended that woman's struggle for education equal to that of man's was bringing destruction to her finer senses and ruining her moral character.

Women today areu ndervaluing the family and marriage, she said, adding:

"We are informed that marriage is nothing but an outworn convention legalizing sexuality. oMthers with large families are discredited."

The ollege girl today must realize that her feminine and emotional qualities must not be stifled in her strufggle to equal the other sex mentally, she said.

PRE-GLACIAL MAN DISCUSSED

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Man trod the North American continent as far back as 20,000 years ago.

Evidence of this—a 17-year-old Mongoloid oman's skeleton found buried deep in the silt of Lake Agassiz in Canada—was discussed today by Dr. George A. Thiel and Dr. Clinton R. Stauffer, of Minnesota University, at the Geological Society of America meeting here.

Iake Agassiz, drained since the passing of the Glacial or Pleistocene Age, is estimated by geologists to be 20,000 years old.

Near the human skeleton excavators found other evidences of man, including a broken dagger of antler.

Anthropologists described the skeleton as that a young woman about 17 years old with distinct Mongoloid affinities. Features of the skull closely resembled the condition seen in anthropoid apes, it was explained.

BISHOP ASSAILS WAR 'THEORY' OF SCIENTISTS

Claims of scientists that evilization makes the next war inevitable were disputed by the Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, bishop of Cleveland, as he pointed to history in an address before the American Catholic Historical Association convention today in the Hotel William Penn.

Questioning if the history of mankind has a meaning, Bishop Schrembs said:

"In the light of past events, I say that all the various systems of 'isms' agree in rejecting the realty of a personal god creating and directing the universe. Under such a system of thought, history is nearing a chaos of meaningless movements and empty agitation. Whereas, in the light of supernatural as represented by Catholic philosophy, everything becomes purposeful in the consideration of intelligent history."

PHILOSOPHERS ELECT

The Rev. Dr. Francis A. Walsh, of Catholic University, Washington, was elected president of the American Catholic Philosophical Association, which is meeting concurrently in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Prof. John O. Riedle, of Milwaukee, was named vice president, while the Rev. Charles A. Hart, Washington, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The executive council is Bishop James H. Ryan, Washington; Dr. Gerald P. Phelan, Toronto; the Rev. Francis A. Diehl, Philadelphia; Dr. James A. McWilliams, St. Louis; Prof. Francis E. McMahon, Notre Dame, and the Rev. Dr. Edward F. Murphy, New Orleans.

Besides Bishop Schrembs, the historical group heard the Very Rev. Felix Fellner, prior of St. Vincent's Archabb . Latrobe, discuss the "Two Cities" of Otto von Freising and their influence. The Rev. Paul C. Perrotta, Providence, R. I., was speaking on "John Baptist Vico and the Philosophy of

HEAR CALLAHAN

Social forces was the general subject before the philosophical group, in which the family and society was being discussed.

The history of governmental forms was traced by the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, at the joint annual dinner last night. Father Callahan said:

"The history of government from the beginning shows two antagonistic forces striving for mastery. The contrast between them is that between organization and personal liberty, between enforced social action for the common welfare and absolute freedom of the individual. The party in power today, the party of Wilson and democracy, the old party of states' rights, is busily engaged in curbing, in favor of controlled social action, the "rugged individualism" that has marked the progress of our democracy particularly since the Civil War. It shows that political parties and political party labels have little meaning when they come into conflict with the irresistible forces that manifest themselves in history."

Chartiers Valley Pioneer Painter Presents Exhibit

By PENELOPE REDD

Albert C. Daschbach, the pioneer painter of the Chartiers Valley, is serenely visiting the Little Gallery at Elliott's. He rarely wanders far from home to seek subjects. A triad of Thornburg landscapes represents Mr. Daschbach's tranquil point of view. An untitled canvas showing the Chartiers Valley divested of autumnal glory and not yet mantled by the snow is a poetic report of a transition in nature when earth and air seem held in suspense.

Miss Redd

In "First Snow," another season has arrived and with it a change of nature's mood. The inevitable hill overlooking the Chartiers Valley is now white. Across the valley are homes. Above is the clear blue of the winter's sky.

Leaving the seasonal paintings, one finds Mr. Daschbach equally sympathetic with the joys of summer. There are a number of canvases inspired by the flowers from his garden. He places them in pottery vases, sets them on the windowsill, and gives us a vista of Thornburg through the window.

In all of Mr. Daschbach's paintings one finds the evidence of painting as a pleasure. His technic is well adapted to the gait of his gentle visual poetry.

Mr. Daschbach has also given generously of his time in encouraging young people to paint against economic odds. He has been one of the chief supporters of the Associated Artists in their long struggle to develop a strong Pittsburgh group of painters.

Foreign Languages For Children Hit

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The teaching of foreign languages to children was described as "doubtful wisdom" in a paper by Dr. V. A. C. Henmon, of the University of Wisconsin, read before the Modern Language Association of America here.

The paper, read for Dr. Henmon by Dr. B. Q. Morgan, of Wisconsin, reported psychological tests show that adults can learn foreign languages more easily than children.

JEWS, GENTILES BID ADIEU TO GOLDENSON

In synagogue and church, Jews and Gentiles will tender farewells to Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson Sunday as he leaves Rodef Shalom Temple to become rabbi of Temple Emanuel in New York.

Dr. Goldenson will speak twice—in the morning at Rodef Shalom, and in the evening at Trinity Cathedral. The latter will be a civic farewell to the rabbi who has led Rodef Shalom congregation here for 15 years, taking a deep interest in civic and social welfare, and winning admiration among all denominations.

In addressing his congregation in his last sermon at the temple, Dr. Goldenson will speak on "The Priestly Benediction." The services will be held at 11 Sunday morning and will be open to all.

An address typical of the rabbi—"The Art of Living Together"—will be made by him in Trinity Cathedral at 8 Sunday night. Bishop Alexander Mann also will speak. Members of Rodef Shalom Congregation, their friends and all clergymen in the city have been invited to attend.

A reception in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Goldenson will be held at 8:30 Wednesday night in Hotel Schenley. Because of a lack of accommodations for a larger number, the guests will be confined to the temple congregation.

NEW YEAR FETE SUGGESTIONS IN RECIPES

If you've decided to celebrate New Years Eve at home this year, you're probably ransacking your mental cooking lists for something other than the usual sandwiches, coffee and cake to serve for that midnight or early morning snack.

Shelve your worries and decide on the New Years ham and eggs awarded the $5 prize today and you'll find your popularity as a hostess insured. Men especially, Prudence Penny is sure, will welcome it with telling appetites.

With the ham and eggs you'll be serving plenty of steaming hot coffee. See that it is surprisingly good by preparing it in Mrs. Andrew Anderson's way which is decidedly different.

You, too, must have any number of recipes which are worth either the $5 prize or one of the 10 $1 prizes awarded daily. Send them in at once to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, remembering only one thing, that no recipes will be returned.

Five-Dollar Prize Winner

LAURA L. KIRKWOOD,
50 Nutt avenue, Uniontown.
HAM AND EGGS NEW YEARS EVE

Two cups baked or boiled ham cut into small pieces (a good use for odds and ends).
One cup milk.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons pimento, cut small.
Six slices toast.
Six fresh eggs.

Make a white sauce by making a smooth paste of flour and butter over low dame. Add milk slowly. Cook five minutes, stirring to keep the sauce smooth. Add ham and pimento, and when ready to serve spread mixture on toast. Top each slice of toast with a poached egg (or fried egg, if preferred) and garnish with sweet pickle fans which are made by cutting a small pickle lengthwise into thin slices to within one-half inch of the end and then spreading slices apart fan-wise.

Roll in waxed paper and put into refrigerator until hard. Slice and bake.

Flag Group Fails To Block Auction On Anthem

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(Universal)—Efforts of the United States Flag Association to prevent the original manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner" from being knocked down at auction to the highest bidder, January 5, today had proven unsuccessful.

Col. James A. Moss, president general of the association, appealed to Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of Baltimore, as executors for the Henry Walters estate, the owners, to set a reasonable price on the document and dispose of it at private sale at a later date.

Pending such sale, Congress would be asked to make the purchase, so the manuscript "would come into the possession of the American people." Failing this, the association would raise the fund by popular subscription and present the manuscript to the Library of Congress.

BANK LIABILITY LAW UPHELD

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 29. — An opinion written by Judge John Fox in Dauphin County Court today held that the act of 1876 imposing double liability on bank stockholders is constitutional.

Unless reversed in higher courts, the decision may affect stockholders in all closed banks in the state.

The opinion held that the title of the act sufficiently explains the purpose of the statute and gives sufficient notice to warrant any interested party to make a further search for information.

J. D. Swigart, chief bank examiner of the State Banking Department, declared that the ruling is important only to a small number of state banks chartered under the act of 1876. Most of the banks have later or amended charters, he explained.

There'll be new dancing partners galore for the debutantes today—the Princeton Triangle Club is coming to town. And the Princeton men have received individual invitations to all the deb affairs of the day—and evening.

Besides all the deb affairs, there's the Princeton Triangle play "Fiesta" tonight at Syria Mosque—the play, of course, is bringing the Trianglers to town.

First of all the dancing affairs to which the club is invited was the tea-dance which the George H. Deikes gave this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club for their daughter, Helen Ruth Deike, to present her to society.

Before the tea, there was a debutante luncheon in the Twentieth Century Club which Mrs. Welford Tyler gave for debutantes Frances Gott and Frances Frampton.

Debutante Wears Fuschia Bagheera

At the Deike tea-dance, Christmas greens and spring flowers were the decorations. The debutante wore a fuschia-colored bagheera gown having a round neck-line and long sleeves, and she carried a muff of orchids. Her small hat was of the same velvet as her gown.

The mother of the deb chose an amethyst velvet gown, which harmonized with that of her daughter, and she had a small gold hat and orchids.

They didn't have any aides. Among the out-of-town folks here for the debut who are house guests of the Deikes, are Marjorie Nash and James Nash, of Bradford, Pa., and Napier Caldwell, of Fredonia, N. Y.

The debutante is studying drama at the drama school at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Late this afternoon the A. N. Otterbeins will entertain for the Princeton Triangle Club at a cocktail party in honor of Mrs. Otterbein's brother, Lawrence Wendell Knapp III, one of tonight's players.

Debutante Dance To Follow Play

After the play will be one of the most notable debutante entertainments of the season—the T. A. McGinleys and Capt. and Mrs. Cyrus R. Miller will entertain at a ball in the exclusive Pittsburgh Club. And the Triangle boys are invited.

The guests of honor will be Gertrude McGinley, of Milton, Mass., who made her debut in the East in October, and Marian Mackie, of Princeton, N. J., who made hers in the East in November.

Gertrude, a frequent visitor here, is the daughter of T. A. McGinley, and a niece of the Millers. And Marian Mackie, whose mother is Mr. McGinley and Mrs. Miller's sister, is, of course, a niece of both.

The decorations are to be beautiful—and although holidayish, they'll not be red and green, but blue and silver with a bit of green.

Visiting Buds Much in Demand

What the girls will wear I can't tell you, for their gowns are late arriving.

Of course these visiting debutantes, together with visitors Adelaide Frick, New York deb, and Hildegarde Schultz, of Hewlett, L. I., house guest of deb Gwendolen Holmes, are receiving much attention.

Adelaide, who is the house guest of her aunt, Miss Helen Clay Frick, really belongs to Pittsburgh, too. She's the daughter of the Childs Fricks, of Roslyn, N. Y. Miss Frick and the Norman McLeods are to give a dinner-dance in the Pittsburgh Club tomorrow night for Adelaide and Gwendolen Holmes, Pittsburgh deb, as I've mentioned before. Of course Gwendolen's guest will be there, too.

An attractive event of New Years day will be the luncheon the William S. Moorheads will give in the Pittsbugh Golf Club with two of the visiting debs and two of the Pittsburgh debs as guests of honor—Adelaide Frick and Marian Mackie, Constance Drake and Althea Robinson.

New York Society Attends Opera En Masse

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—It seemed olden times—ploughing through the snow to attend an "opening night" at the dear, old Metropolitan. It seemed like olden times—seeing so many familiar faces in the celebrated "Golden Horseshoe." It seemed like olden times—to note so many of the feminine opera-goers with jeweled ornaments in their coiffures. It seemed like olden times—just to be back in the gilded temple of the lyric muse, over on Broadway.

No matter how many revolutions—social and financial—New York society may undergo, the opera will always remain the undisputed "big parade" of the Mayfairites.

That fact was proved last night when, bundled in furs ranging from the precious chinchilla and sable to the less-costly, but none-the-less luxurious mink and ermine, arrayed in shimmering satins and brocades and wearing jewels worth a king's ransom (or, rather, what a king was worth back in the days when royalty was in fashion) Manhattan's social registerites turned out, en masse, to salute the formal opening of the forty-ninth season at the great gilded and red velvet auditorium at Broadway and Thirty-ninth street, devoted to Orpheus.

BOUDOIR JACKETS FOR COMFORT AND CHIC

The three warm little boudoir jackets sketched across the top are, first, white velvet with Alencon lace epaulettes and cuffs, and a side-tie sash; second, pastel silk quilted and interlined, and embroidered with bowknots, nosegays and French dots; third, a pink silk bed cape, appliqued with fine lace.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT USED to be difficult to find pretty boudoir jackets that were not part of gown and negligee sets, unless they were whipped cream woollies of the definitely old lady type. But that was a long time ago. The shops are stuffed to overflowing this winter with all sorts of independent bed jackets and capes, made of everything lovely from washable velvet to fine handmade woolen lace. Any one languishing on a pillow of pain, or one of sheer feminine indolence, has every chance to be lovely at any sum she wants to pay for her little lisseuse.

* * *

THERE ARE those that combine a wisp of lace with a breath of chiffon, frippery nothings that are co-operating with radiators for hot house beauties.

There are other models as warm as tea cozies, but you wouldn't know it to look at them for fragile silk or chiffon or fine hand knitting camouflages their padding or interlining.

Naturally quilted silk is a honey for this warm type of bed jacket, but it is possible to have one's quilting delicate as a baby's wrap.

* * *

ALL THIS sounds as if the old-fashioned hug-me-tight, which provides a pair of purled wristlets and a shoulder band hitching them together, was an also-ran. It is not. But now it uses fancy stitches, has broad sash ribbon run through its meshes, eschews the blue and the gray of utilitarian tint, and goes in generally for light femininity. The price of a pretty one is about the same as that of a pair of every day stockings.

Almost every color can be found in some sort of lisseuse, even black, which is a new idea and not so bad, if you have that sort of early morning complexion.

Clever, these Chinese! For by some hook or crook they've presented us with some of their famously beautiful embroideries which are selling at 75c and $1 . . . ONLY! We saw them when they were unpacked . . . and promptly bought two. Round ones and oblongs . . . long or short . . . in every Chinese-y shade from their own queer yellow to the rosy reds.

You've all heard about the internationally famous game of IMP . . . which is taking Europe by storm, and New York as well?

Well then . . . trot in to the store which is offering it special these days for 70c (instead of its regular $1) and find out how to play it. There is a representative (perhaps we should say "there is an IMP") who will teach you. And the game itself comes in a frightfully swank red patent leather case.

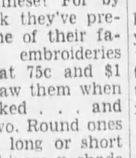
Pffff! (That's a sigh!) We're almost weary with the numerous grander - than - grand events which are stirring up the old town these days . . . and here's another.



Dexdale Hosiery . . . well known to preferrers - of - the best. It usually sells for $1 and $1.25 . . . but being as how this is the holiday season you can now get it for 79c . . . 89c . . . and $1. In chiffon and service weight . . . and every pair a product of that silk-sealing which Dexdale features. All sizes . . . all colors . . . and you can't beat this for value.

Now HERE is something to do any woman's soul a lot of good!

We know the VERY place where you should go when you have a dress whose hem needs fixing . . . whose underarm or side seams need attention . . . or whose sleeves are crying for help of some sort! This thing of taking home a newly-purchased frock and trying to fix its alterations yourself is all very well (for we are budgeteering too) but these are budget sums . . . and a great comfort to almost any woman. Hems —50c and $1 . . . underarm seams 35c and 50c . . . and sleeves 50c and $1 (the pair of course).

* * *

Try this little duet on yourself (not the piano) and see how well it will tone in! For there is a new assortment of duet clip pins just in . . . for $1 . . . and that's something to note so soon after Christmas. Rhinestones with red, green, or black stones . . . and quite the best looking designs we've seen for some time.

* * *

And with New Years practically here (and all the plates and glasses you're going to have on hand to wash . . or HAVE washed) we come to the fore with the announcement that we know where you can get real linen huck towels for19c each . . . hemmed and ready to use.

Big fellows too . . . about a yard long by 18 inches (if our eyes didn't deceive us) and excellently well suited to all sorts of heavy work such as wrapping 'round the beer to keep it from dripping, and so on!

MUST PAY AUTO JUDGMENTS IN FULL

The new financial responsibility law for automobile owners and drivers will be effective January 1 in Pennsylvania. The Sun-Telegraph has obtained a resume of the law from the State Department of Revenue and the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

The following is the conclusion of a series of questions and answers designed to clarify requirements:

Q—Suppose a person is unable to pay a large judgment which has been rendered against him for damages in a motor vehicle accident. His operator's license and car registration have been suspended. Will any consideration be given him if he is able to make partial payment on the judgment to the satisfaction of the judgment creditor?

A—No consideration will be given toward partial payments on judgments. The judgments must be satisfied to the extent provided in the Act before operating privilege can be restored and before registration of all vehicles in the name of the affected person can be restored. Remember that in addition to satisfying judgment, proof of financial responsibility must also be furnished.

Q—If a person has become subject to the Financial Responsibility Law and subsequently goes into bankruptcy, is he relieved thereby from the provisions of the law?

A—If his license and registrations have been suspended because of an unsatisfied judgment, he may again be accorded these privileges if proof of financial responsibility is furnished.

Q—If a person becomes subject to the Financial Responsibility Law, for how many years is he required to show proof of financial responsibility?

A—If he desires to continue his operating privilege (and in some cases continue the registration of cars owned by him) he must show proof for three years after once coming under the requirements of the act. If he is willing to give up these privileges, no proof is necessary, and after a period of three years he may, under certain conditions, have the return of these privileges without showing proof.

Q—Once having furnished proof, is there no way by which a person can be relieved of this necessity prior to three years?

A—There is not. Proof must be continued for three years and even then the Secretary of Revenue is not required to relieve an individual of having to continue to furnish it. It is possible that because of pending litigation a claim for damage may cause a person to file proof of financial responsibility. After the civil case has been completed and settlement made for damage he may find that the actual value of damages sustained was less than originally claimed and therefore may not come under the provisions of the act. Our plan in that case is to rescind our original action of requiring proof to be furnished.

Q—Once having furnished proof, is it the duty of the Secretary of Revenue to relieve a person of this necessity, if, during three years, he has a good record?

A—It is not the duty of the secretary to relieve a person of the necessity of furnishing proof after having done so for three years. This can be done or not at the secretary's discretion.

Q—In order to be relieved of proof is it necessary to satisfy standing judgments or pending claims for damages resulting from automobile accidents? Does this mean in any amount or must they aggregate more than $200 to be considered?

A—Although judgments must amount to more than $200 to originally require the filing of proof, yet, to be relieved of the necessity of furnishing that proof, claims or judgments in any amount must be satisfied, even though they aggregate $200 or less.

Q—In case of an unsatisfied judgment, is there any length of time during which, by not driving a car, a person can live down the necessity of furnishing proof?

A—There is not. In cases of judgments being rendered for a large amount of money, it is possible that an operator may not be able to drive again in Pennsylvania. This feature of the act makes it quite possible for people of moderate means to be penalized for a considerable period if they do not carry insurance. Although it is not a function of the Department of Revenue to recommend insurance generally, nevertheless, we wish to stress the usefulness of automobile insurance in preceding such a dilemma as just pointed out.

Q—If a person has shown proof of financial responsibility for three years and during that time was arrested once on the charge of operating without an operator's license, can he still be relieved at the expiration of the three-year period?

A—Technicallq, it will be necessary to continue for three consecutive years without committing a violation of the Vehicle Code of any nature. Actually, the Secretary of Revenue may not require persons to continue proof in case that one trifling violation occurs during the three year period. If the violation was serious enough to have had license suspended during that time, even for a short period, proof of financial responsibility would, after restoration of privilege, have to be continued for three years.

Q—Can information regarding financial responsibility of persons be furnished to anyone who makes the request, if a fee of $1.00 is paid?

A—Not to anyone. It can be furnished only to those persons who have a right to recover damages because of an automobile accident. Then the information will be furnished concerning only those persons involved in the accident for a fee of $1.00 for the record of each person.

Q—If there is no record of financial responsibility, shall the fee of $1.00 be charged for so advising the person making the request?

A—Yes.

PLEA TO SCOUTS BY ROOSEVELT GOING ON AIR

President Roosevelt will make a special appeal to the Boy Scouts of America on Saturday, February 10, at 12 o'clock noon, over both the National and Columbia broadcasting chains, the local Scout headquarters announced today.

In his address the President will request the Scouts from coast to coast to undertake a special service which has a direct bearing on the relief situation. His personal call will be for a "good turn" for the national government.

A. T. Benson, Scout executive for Allegheny County, said that the county's more than 8,000 Scouts and their leaders will gather in 12 or more concentration centers to listen to the address which will be made from the White House.

Following the radio talk a sealed letter coming from the President will be opened and read to the Scouts as a further explanation of his plans. The letters will be mailed in advance of his talk throughout the United States.

ALFONSO COUP ALARM CURBED

International News Service.

MADRID, Dec. 29.—The Labor newspaper El Socialista, appearing on the streets with a report former King Alfonso XIII had threatened to return to Spain and head an uprising leading to his restoration, was confiscated today almost before a copy had been sold.

The paper stated that Alfonso, who fled Spain when the republic was established in April, 1931, had sent a letter to the leader of the monarchists in Madrid outlining his plan.

Alfonso was reported to have threatened to cross the frontier from France at Pamplona with Gens. Martinez, Anido and Barrera, who at present are living in exile with him.

The former King was portrayed as believing his appearance in Spain would be the signal for a nationwide uprising which would restore him to the throne.

The story was not regarded seriously in official circles, where it was said the monarchists themselves realize that any attempt at a restoration at this time would be futile.

BLOCK SLAYERS' ESCAPE PLOT

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Their plan to escape from prison frustrated, Wallace Skawinski and James J. Riggs remained in the county jail today, sentenced to die for the murder of Police Lieut. Lewis Roberts.

A meeting of the Lackawanna County Prison Board revealed that Harry Colle, warden of the jail, spoiled well-laid escape plans of the two prisoners by discovery of half a dozen hacksaw blades in the cell occupied jointly by the youths.

An investigation by prison authorities revealed that the blades were smuggled to the prisoners in a box of candy that contained a false cover. Officials said the box was brought into the jail by a girl, who described herself as a sister of Joseph Casey, of Binghamton, N. Y., serving a term for larceny.

Skawinski, formerly of Colchester, Conn., and Riggs are under sentence of death for the slaying of Lieut. Roberts during the robbery of a chain store last April 1.

TUBBS ON STAGE IN DEBUT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Tallant Tubbs, 36, of San Francisco, who ran up 750,000 votes against William McAdoo in California's 1932 senatorial campaign, was well received tonight in his professional stage debut here.

He is playing a modest part in "Dark Victory," which opened last night before going to New York.

Tubbs, who plays the part of Bill Ewing, playboy and errant husband, in the play, said last night that he has no intention of deserting politics. At 27, Tubbs was elected state senator in California.

Fans Protest When Drama Is Banned

By AIRCASTER

With dignity becoming such graybeards of Broadway, a play jury seated itself last week to decide the fate of radio drama and sketches as exemplified by the theatrics of one of New York's better stations.

And with finality which only a play jury could achieve, the 12 or more good men and true voted that the present dramatic idiom was too immature to be continued.

No leniency in the form of experimentation was shown.

"And so," said the station executives, "We sentence the drama and all its relatives to exile from our studios.

"As judges, we are pretty well aware of what the listeners want. "We've struggled along this far, virtually without satisfactory drama, so drama and its kin are out."

* * *

FANS PROTEST

The banishment of radio theatricals caused much interest when it became known through the public prints.

Whereupon, twenty thousand listeners, with gumption enough to know what they wanted, sat down indignantly and wrote pieces of their minds to the station whose officials suddenly discovered how little they knew about public taste.

They were swamped with protests and demands. And immediately, all of those dramatic pieces tossed aside were brought back like prodigal children.

I hear that the station executives are all washed up with dignified gents who constitute play juries.

JINGLE BELLS

New York's first heavy snow is reviving that almost forgotten thrill of sleigh-riding. Even the broadcasters are becoming conscious of that.

Yesterday CBS sent Gertrude Niesen and Gypsy Nina to Central Park, put each in a separate sleigh and had them race four and one-half miles through the park to settle an argument over who was best driver.

Gertrude won by about 10 feet.

This afternoon NBC loaded some of its mobile equipment upon a bobsled together with Madge Tucker and eight of her kiddie performers of the lady next door for a broadcast at 3:15 p. m., as the unfamiliar contrivance glided through Central Park behind a team of prancers.

CHARITY BALL

Another county is heard from! There'll be big excitement up Butler way tonight at 10:30, when the annual Charity Ball to raise funds for the Butler County Memorial Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary goes on the air in a big way over KDKA.

Col. Hedges and his Pioneers pickup the dance music as a gesture to Butler County.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

You can add to the streets already mentioned by the Department of Public Works as permissible to rope off for a sled track, Clifford street, Twelfth Ward, requested by Mr. Douglass, of Dean street.

* * *

Hampshire avenue at Beechview is all right if used with extreme care by the coasters. Cinders have or will be placed at the bottom so the sleds can't get into trouble. The same applies to Clairtonica street, Crafton Heights, requested by Clair Lydic. On both those streets no ropes are to be used.

* * *

The others that have been requested have been turned down by the department, and wisely, too, because of traffic use or because of danger.

* * *

The city has been liberal. Director Lang would comply with every request if that were possible.

* * *

He points out that where ropes are used the automobile driver is sometimes endangered. He might not see the rope. Therefore it is a duty of every group to see that some one of their number is stationed at intersections to flag down automobiles as well as give the signal for sleds to go ahead.

* * *

Have a good time, but don't get hurt.

December 30 is a big day in Latrobe. It is the eighty-seventh anniversary of the birth of Jacob Blansett, one of the oldest Civil War veterans west of the Alleghenies. There will be a birthday cake with all the candles on it and his old comrades who fought through many a fierce battle will be on hand to help him celebrate and listen to his greeting over the air.

Georgianna Savage—It is difficult to get a song published. Write to the larger music publishng houses before you spend any money in publishing it yourself. When the publishing house undertakes the job its organization offers a better opportunity in most cases to distribute it.

How's YOUR HEAD THIS MORNING?
For that "something you ate"... Take Sal Hepatica

The minute you wake up—take two teaspoons of Sal Hepatica in a big glass of water. Within an hour your intestinal tract will be flushed clean—free of wastes and poisons.
Your head will clear. Fit and fresh, you'll find new energy in your steps . . . a new interest in life.
And take Sal Hepatica—the mineral salt laxative—any time that you feel out-of-sorts, logy, headachey as a result of clogged intestines. Be sure to get a bottle today!
SAL HEPATICA
TO START YOUR DAY FIT AND CLEAR-HEADED

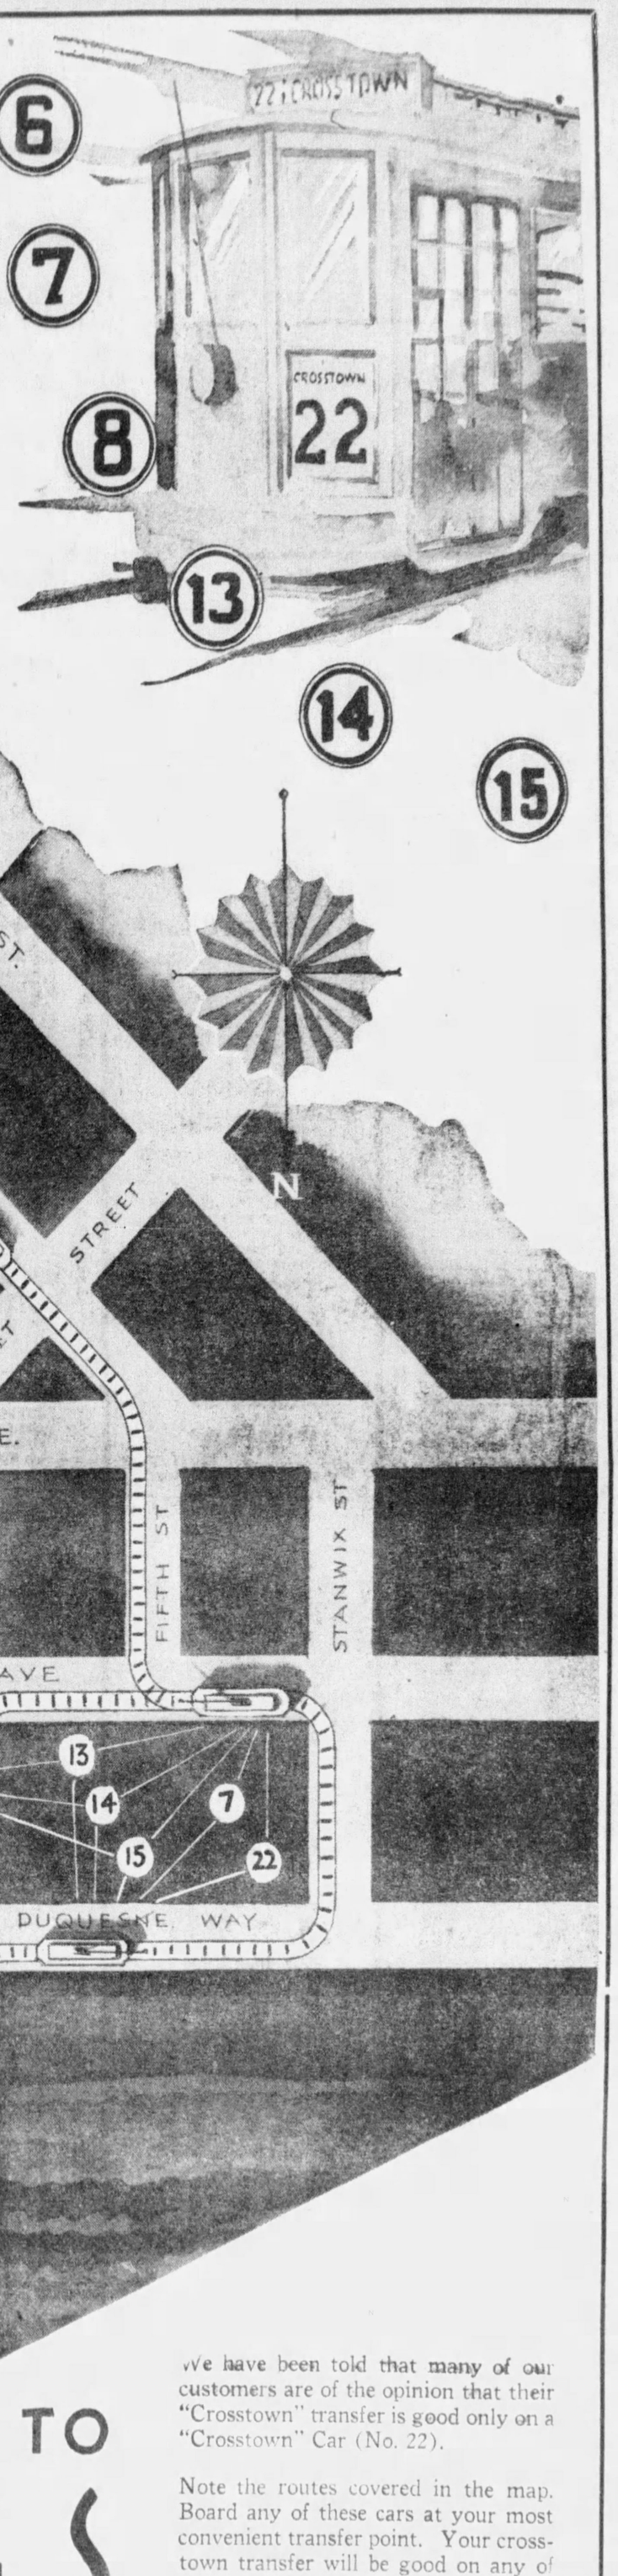
Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings the familiar and delightful "Sylvia" by Oley Speaks as the highspot of his 6:45 'Eventide Songs.'

Two good early evening bets—Mickey Bell's songs and Fran [illegible]

Eddie Peyton is [illegible] Southland, so his band plays a medley of Southern favorites during the 11:30 Frivolities.

YOUR TRANSFER IS GOOD ON ANY OF THESE CARS



The CITY "TRACKS" TO BOGGS & BUHL
We have been told that many of our customers are of the opinion that their "Crosstown" transfer is good only on a "Crosstown" Car (No. 22).
Note the routes covered in the map. Board any of these cars at your most convenient transfer point. Your crosstown transfer will be good on any of them to Boggs & Buhl. Likewise, returning to the downtown district, board any of these seven cars and ask for a "Crosstown" transfer. It is acceptable on all city cars leaving the downtown district.
Wherever you find Street Car Service you will find either a car passing close to this store—or a transfer point with abundant service to bring you to this great shopping center.

KAUFMANN'S Year End CLEAN-UP

Kaufmann's must present a clean slate to the auditors on the day after New Year. Every piece of merchandise must be counted and inventory-checked beforehand—a stupendous task. We must clear out remainders, small lots, etc., at any cost to-morrow before 6 P. M.

DISTRICT GETS THREE MILLION FOR FLOOD CONTROL

COUNTY TO ASK PWA TO AID PROJECTS

Create Authority To Borrow, Pay Back Loan

Having formally created the Allegheny County Authority, County Commissioners today were planning to apply to the federal government for money and instruction necessary for execution of a self-liquidating public works program.

Joseph C. Trees, of the state advisory board on public works, has been asked to head a delegation to Washington to press action on the county's application for thirty-one million dollars to be spent on projects under the Authority, Commissioner C. C. McGovern said yesterday.

PRIVATE CORPORATION

The Authority will consist of a private corporation of three men, empowered to borrow money, issue bonds, direct work on self-liquidating projects, and assume responsibility for collection of tolls and payment of debt to the federal government.

As for the personnel of the Authority, McGovern would hazard no prediction. Although they are to be named by the Commissioners, the three members would be agents of the federal government, McGovern said, indicating that the government would have a good deal to say on the choice.

The Authority scheme fulfills a purpose for which the Commissioners have been working for more than a year; namely, it provides a medium of borrowing money without creating debt against the county. In addition, 30 per cent of the amount borrowed by the Authority from the government is to be an outright grant. The remaining 70 per cent of the loan will be payable over an extended period from income, chiefly from toll bridges.

Should the program, as presented, be approved by the PWA, it is estimated it would provide jobs for 4,600 men a month for 26 months. Many of the projects have already been approved by federal engineers and attorneys.

PROJECTS CONTEMPLATED

County plans have been presented to the government in four separate applications, as follows:

1—Homestead High Level and Highland Park or Aspinwall bridges. The Homestead span, to cost $2,863,000, would be a toll bridge. The Highland Park Bridge would cost $2,800,000, and with it would come improvement in the north end connection with the Freeport road.

2—Wabash Bridge and Tunnel. Wharf improvement along the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers from the Liberty Bridge to Eleventh street. Ramp to the Liberty Bridge from Water street; a grade separation at the south end of the Liberty Tubes; widening of Banksville road and extension of Saw Mill Run boulevard from Banksville road to the West End-North Side Bridge. Prcject cost, $16,143,000.

3—North Park swimming pool and lake, cost $892,000.

4—Glenwood, Dravosburg, Youghiogheny and Rankin bridges; widening of Jerome avenue in McKeesport.

Reports from Washington that the three billions of dollars for public works had been allocated will not prevent Allegheny County getting its requests, it was explained. Of this sum, 147 million dollars worth of projects have not been announced yet, and Congress is expected to grant additional sums for public works when the legislators reconvene.

Man Found Dead In N. Side Street

Morgue officials were investigating the death of Joseph McEldowney, 37, of Island avenue, North Side, found on the sidewalk near his home, was pronounced dead upon arrival at Allegheny General Hospital.

Police said they believed McEldowney had fallen. His death was pronounced due to a probable fracture of the skull.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The big Pan-American Conference in Uruguay adjourned. While it did nothing, it did it so well that they all left friends, which is more than any conference in years has accomplished.

Will Rogers

You can't hope to gain ground at a conference, you only try to remedy the damage done at the last one.

Our Mr. Cordell Hull must have done a very creditable job for us, for I see he is able to visit Argentine, Chile, Peru and other countries under his own name. Generally our delegates arrive at a conference with a band, and leave incognito. Yours, WILL.

P. S.—You may have to look that incognito up, I did.

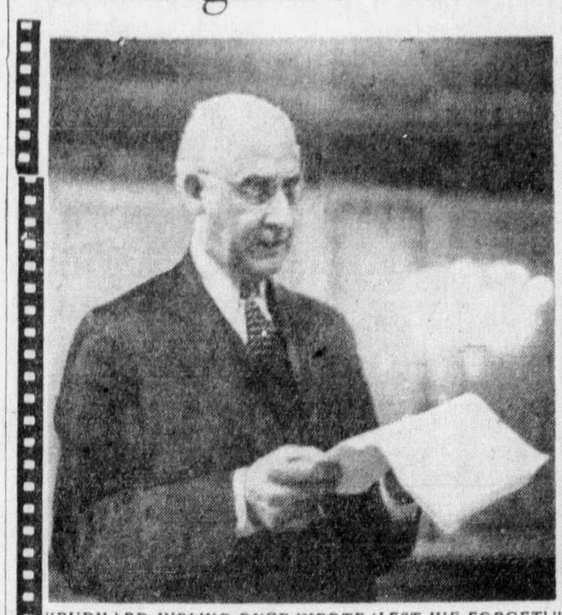
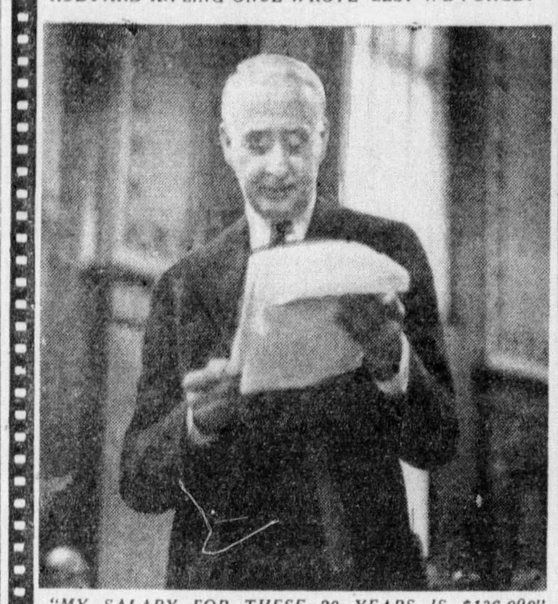
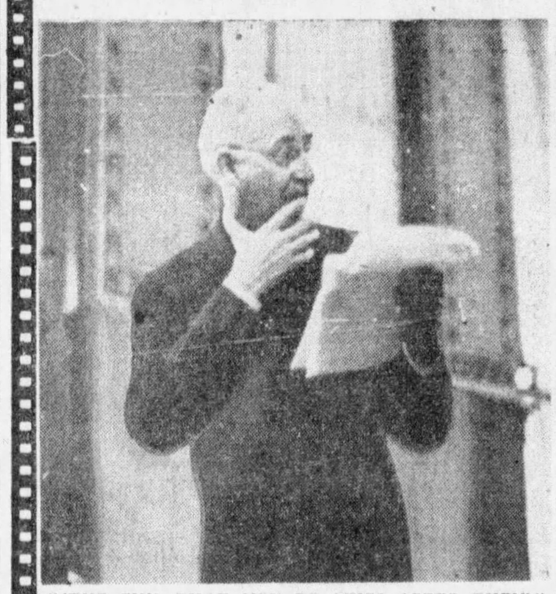
Candid Camera Watches Mr. English's Farewell



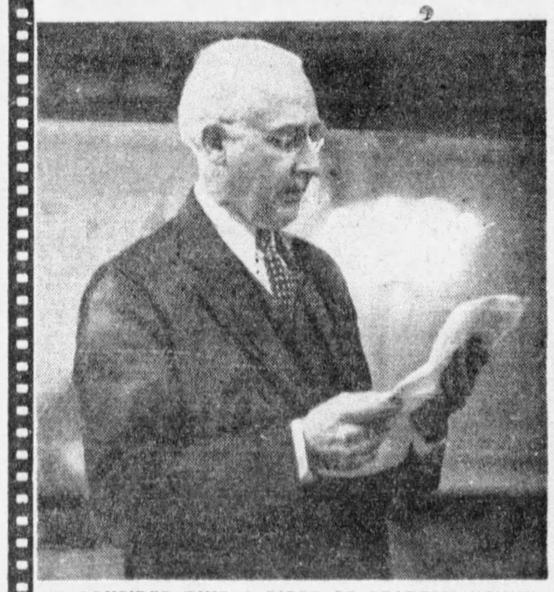
"RUDYARD KIPLING ONCE WROTE 'LEST WE FORGET'"



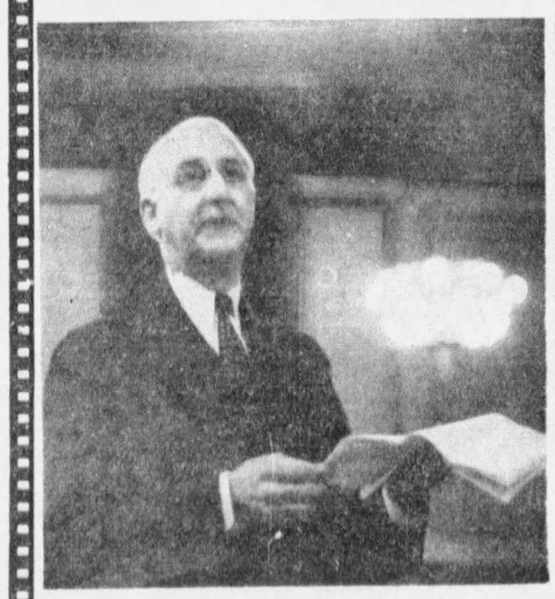
"MY SALARY FOR THESE 20 YEARS IS $136,000"



"THE EVIL THAT MEN DO LIVES AFTER THEM"



"I CONSIDER THIS A PIECE OF STATESMANSHIP"



"CHARITY TOWARD ALL, MALICE TOWARD NONE"

Councilman W. Y. English as the Candid Camera watched him making his farewell speech after 20 years on the public payroll. Earless, the camera didn't hear him quote Kipling, Shakespeare and Lincoln to his colleagues.

SWAN SONG OVER ENGLISH TURNS TO BIBLE

Gospel of St. Matthew Quoted in Reply To Critic

Councilman W. Y. English, who quoted Shakespeare, Lincoln and Kipling in singing his swan song yesterday, returned to his first love, the Bible, today, in replying to a newspaper article which failed to please him.

The Councilman, who retires tomorrow, with the consent of the voters, after 20 years in Council, didn't like the Biblical quotations resurrected by the Post-Gazette in a piece about him, so Statesman English retorted today in Council by urging the Post-Gazette editor to read the fifth chapter, verses three to 12, Gospel of St. Matthew.

The statesman asked that the newspaper article be read into Council's record. Councilman P. J. McArdle objected. But President Harry A. Little, who is also retiring, pointed out that English was out of a job and, he implied, shouldn't be required to pay for a private printing.

So English, who reviewed his own accomplishments yesterday, did pretty well by himself today when he suggested that the editor read twice the eleventh verse of the fifth chapter, which is:

"Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake."

And the twelfth verse:

"Rejoice, and be exceedingly glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets that were before you."

Willing to Scrap Warships When They're Worn Out

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Let's look over the disarmament business. Japan has invented a deadly machine gun but claims it ain't loaded.

France is willing to scrap two hundred bombing planes in the interest of international peace. That will still leave her two hundred bombers in the interest of international peace.

Germany has no planes or guns to scrap. But is willing to do so.

England and America are both building battle scows, submarines and dynamite rafts. Both nations are perfectly amicable and will scrap anything just as soon as it wears out.

And just to show how we keep tabs on our peaceful diplomats we will ask you one question. Did, or did not, our peaceful diplomats come home for the holidays?

Aero Club Opposes Rodgers Field Sale

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is to be invited to attend a meeting of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh next Thursday, when he will be asked to lend his support to the movement to retain Rodgers Field, Pittsburgh's pioneer landing field.

Politicians were blamed yesterday for the agitation to sell the field by Edison Speer, representative of the Commissioners, who said the latter wanted to sell the field to pay for mandatory projects forced upon them by state legislation.

CITY HOSPITAL PLANS STARTED

Plans for a new Municipal Hospital were begun today by Richard Neff, chief engineer of the Department of Building Inspection.

The project is one of several advocated by the Department of Public Health and approved by the Civil Works Administration. Actual construction is not included in the plans, but estimates, charts and blueprints will be arranged so that work on the building may be started as soon as funds are available.

Complete plans will be drawn up by a corps of CWA workers who are to be installed in offices in the Frick Building Annex next week. The projects also call for an addition to the Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Leech Farm, and the construction of a new cafeteria and bakery at Mayview.

According to city health officials, the new Municipal Hospital would be located on the same property near Washington boulevard, in East End, where the city hospital for tuberculosis is situated.

DRY CRUSADER DIES AT 90

Mrs. Louisa Griffiths Innis, 90, believed to be the last member of the World Crusaders, a temperance organization which preceded the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in this country, was dead today in her home in Carmichaels, Greene County.

Mrs. Innis, a native of England, leaves one granddaughter, Mrs. T. S. Grogan, Jr., of 335 Chalfont street. Her parents brought her to America as a child and her father was a pioneer in the tin plate industry in Western Pennsylvania, according to the Associated Press.

FUND ALLOTTED BY PWA FOR RESERVOIR

Monongahela Basin To Be Improved At Grafton

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—Funds for the first unit of the Pittsburgh Flood Control program had been allotted today by the Public Works Administration.

An allotment of three million dollars to War Department engineers for construction of a reservoir on the Tygart River in the Monongahela basin about two miles above Grafton, W. Va., was announced yesterday by the Public Works Administration.

This is the first unit in the Pittsburgh flood control project. The amount is for the first year's work. The completed project, according to PWA estimates, will cost 12 million dollars.

REGULATES STREAMS

The purpose of the project is to provide stream regulation and flood control facilities on the Monongahela River and its tributaries besides improving navigation and flood control conditions in the Pittsburgh area.

The reservoir, which will have a capacity of 327,000 acre feet, will create approximately 48,000 man-months' employment. It will control 1,220 square miles of drainage area and will involve the relocation of nine miles of highway and three bridges. The project has been indorsed by the Pittsburgh Flood Commission and the Tri-State Authority, an organization of municipalities in the states of West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

A number of men can be put to work immediately on borings and actual construction can start within five months, it was announced.

At the same time an allotment of $22,590,000 to aid in financing the construction of 14 reservoirs in the Muskingum Valley of east central Ohio was announced.

DISTRICT GIVES AID

The allotment was made on the application of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District which has agreed to furnish an additional $22,715,000 to be used in the purchase of rights-of-way, flowage rights and other expenditures not directly involved in the actual construction of the reservoirs.

Plans for the completed project, of which the total estimated cost is $45,305,000, contemplated a coordinated program for navigation and conservation along the Muskingum River and its tributaries which will also be of great importance in improving flood control and navigation conditions along the Ohio River.

Engineers estimate that the project will provide approximately 240,000 man-months of direct employment in addition to widespread indirect employment.

Other projects in the Pittsburgh region are:

Mercer County, bridge construction, $200,000; Ben Avon, street improvements, $50,000.

HOPKINS WANTS 100 MILLION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP.) Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, told newspapermen today that Congress will be asked for 100 million dollars to carry on direct relief until next July.

Hopkins also said an additional appropriation will be necessary from the Public Works Administration to carry the Civil Works Administration through until May 1.

He explained he did not know the exact amount, but it was said recently at the White House and about 250 million dollars would be necessary.

Should direct relief be continued beyond July, further appropriations would be necessary.

DENTIST ERECTS PLAYHOUSE

Takes Three Months To Complete Model Structure

An East End dentist, making a try at the building trades during his spare moments, has built his three young children a model playhouse.

He is Dr. E. E. Alvin, of 138 Stratford avenue. Not very skilled at the art of hammering nails and sawing boards, he said it took him three months to build the house. But it is perfect in every detail.

Dr. Alvin said:

"The children asked for a play house and so I promised I would build it. It was quite a job, but I finally fulfilled the promise."

The house, in the yard, is six feet wide and eight feet long. It is built of brick, is steam heated, has sliding windows, is electrically lighted and plastered.

Dr. Alvin said that his children, Anna Marie, 3; Stephen, 5, and Ernest, 8, find the house an ideal place to play, even on cold days.

WIFE CONTESTS DIVORCE

Her husband forced her to leave home, having changed the locks on the doors and nailed the windows, Katherine M. Myers Linn, Black street, declared in her answer to the divorce suit of her husband, Karl H. Linn, 5626 Broad street, on file today in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Linn denied many allegations of her husband's bill of particulars. She averred that accusations that she assisted her sister, Rose Myers, and Olga Evrard, a friend of her sisters, in entertaining boy friends, is not true and that she did not stay out all night as charged by her husband.

Divorce suits were also filed by Marjorie M. Shaner against Bernard K. Shaner, Caroline Duggan against William J. Duggan, Bertha S. Lemmon against Harry W. Lemmon, George W. Dunlap against Elizabeth Dunlap, Corey Perella against Marion Perella, John H. Walbert against Lauretta Walbert, Willa Fisher against Harve S. Fisher, Mary Beluscak against Joseph R. See a play if you can, fellows!

The movies are good, but a real play of the right kind is worth seeing, too.

Last night, we saw a good play ourselves — "Hamlet," which was written by William Shakespeare many years ago. Yet it is one of the greatest plays ever written. The writing is powerful, expressive and beautiful. When you get a little older you should begin reading it, for no matter how many times you read it, you can always learn something new by reading it again.

Seeing a play is a nice party some times. When there is a play which you think you might like, why not get your club together and have a theater party? You could get all your seats together, and then maybe afterwards you could all eat a lunch at the home of one of your members.

Now here's a letter from Capt. Charles Jurist, of McClellandtown, Pa., Box 336, Edenborn Mine. He writes:

"I am sending in 16 pledges. I am very glad to let you know that I am the first one to organize a club in our neighborhood. All the members elected me as captain of our new club. Please send the pins and armband, for I will be waiting eagerly. I am in the fifth grade and I go to St. Mary's School. And I like to read the funnies every day and I still hope there will be a comic strip in the Sunday papers."

And maybe there will be some day, Charles. You bet we will send your armband and the badges for all your members right away. Lots of luck, and be sure to remember to write us and tell us all the news about your new Patrol as fast as it happens. Maybe you could appoint one of your members to write a letter every week.

And now here's a letter from Charles Haransky, of Box 37, New Alexandria, Pa. He says:

"Please send me 10 membership cards and send the badges with them. Send Steve Merickko and me chiefs' badges because we are going to make a Junior Patrol clubhouse at Salemville. And will you please give us some information in building a Junior Patrol clubhouse. We watch the Sun-Telegraph every day. I have tried to get all the members I could. And I shall try hard to get more."

Fine and dandy, Charles. But we must tell you that we can't send any badges until we get pledges signed up from all your members. There is only one armband for each club, too. In another Mail Box, we will try to tell you how Junior built his club house.

"HERE IT IS, DEARIE—ON A CARD FOR YOUR RECIPE FILE. DON'T FORGET WHAT I TOLD YOU ABOUT THE KIND OF BAKING POWDER TO USE—AND THE AMOUNT!"

Calumet Finger Rolls

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or other shortening
⅔ cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on well-floured board and knead lightly 2 to 3 minutes. Shape dough into balls; then roll out with hand on board until of desired length. Make rolls smooth and of uniform size. Place in greased pan; brush tops with melted butter. Cover and let rise in warm place 20 minutes. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 10 minutes. Again brush tops with melted butter and continue baking 5 to 10 minutes longer. Remove from oven and brush tops with melted butter. Makes 12 to 15 medium finger rolls. (All measurements are level.)

This small proportion is right for Calumet. The double action lets you use less!

Your Granddad sometimes eats 8 at one meal!

Use Calumet Baking Powder in all your baking — that's my advice!

Man's Carelessness After Marriage Disapproved

We've heard plenty about wives working to hold their husbands—

But how about husbands working to hold their wives? Midge wants to know.

Dear Elsie:

I'm on the warpath. When I was married, everybody told me all about "working to keep my husband"—and I've done it. But I seem to have given him the notion that he couldn't lose me, no matter what he did.

I have worked to keep myself neat and clean, to be as interesting as I knew how, and to make him a nice home. I am jolly and full of fun, and I have taken pains not to let our marriage get dull, so far as I could prevent it. But—

Shouldn't a husband stir himself to keep his wife interested, too? I think so. This business of always acting as if all the burden of a smooth-running marriage rested on the woman makes me so mad!

"Keep yourself pretty and sweet," all the advice-givers say. "Don't scold! Don't nag! Be always the lovely person your husband married—or some prettier dame will nab him."

Oh, yeah? But how about the other side of the picture? Why should husbands be so sure that they are a Lasting Treat? Isn't there also a chance that some handsomer or more agreeable man will charm the wife away if he doesn't watch out?

HUSBAND CARELESS

My husband seems to think that, no matter how careless or untidy or uninteresting he gets, it's okay, because he's a man. And I'm getting fed up with it. I keep myself neat and clean, but he sits around with his hair frowsy and a stubble on his chin whenever he pleases. He throws his clothes down anywhere, and expects me to pick them up. He never thinks of any little attentions. He never makes the slightest effort to be interesting or to make life more interesting for me.

I'm not thinking of leaving. I do love him, with all his faults. But I don't think it's fair. Why can't he do his part? I've done mine.

I know he would be outraged and horrified if I did fall for someone else—but why should he be? Isn't it just as much up to him to keep me interested and happy as it is up to me to keep him that way?

I'd just like to know what the men think about this. And I'd suggest to some of them that they'd better think about it. I know of two women who are flirting with the idea of someone else, just because their husbands are so sloppy and pay so little real attention to them.

MIDGE.

CIRCUMSTANCES CHANGED

And believe me, Messieurs, that's good medicine for what ails a lot of you!

Time was when you were "The answer to a maiden's prayer," even though you were the heck of an answer. And having gotten you, she spent the rest of her life in a frantic endeavor to hold you—which you complacently believed was due to your masculine charm.

But you believed wrong, Brother. It wasn't your charm that kept the girl enslaved; it was her own helplessness. Holding you was her only chance of eating steady.

But those days—thank Heaven!—have gone forever. And now—

You've got to rate, Big Boy, or be disqualified!

And how much do some of you rate, after the honeymoon haircut is fuzzied and the wedding shirt has lost its shine? Think it over.

Fay King Writes About the Returning of Engagement Rings

VERY WELL, IF YOU WANT TO BREAK OUR ENGAGEMENT, GIVE ME BACK THE RING
NO! I INTEND TO KEEP THE RING!
IT IS BEAUTIFUL!
HOW GORGEOUS!
BEWARE OF THE FELLOW WHO ALWAYS HAS A DIAMOND RING HANDY FOR PERSUASION!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

A young man recently went to court about an engagement ring which the girl refused to give back when she broke the engagement. The judge ruled that the ring must be returned.

An engagement ring is given with a promise of marriage. If a girl changes her mind it is only fair that she return the ring.

But if a couple have been engaged for a long time, and it is the man who wishes to be released, it would seem fair, too, to let the girl keep the ring as compensation.

A young man should count the loss of a ring slight compared to his lucky escape from a scheming girl who became engaged only to get the ring and refuse to give it back.

A Sequel Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and the Girls Watch Avis

Noel saw nothing in my injunction not to leave the kitchen save a desire to preserve the tete-a-tete which he and Mary were enjoying. I knew that, from the ingenuous gratitude in his dark eyes and the fervor of his voice as he said: "Oh, thank you! That is an injunction I'll obey rigidly."

But Mary looked at me with eyes that had suddenly widened. She would ask no question in Noel's hearing. I knew that. But she had caught something of my uneasiness, and would be on her guard for the rest of the time Avis should be in the house.

Despite my reluctance to bring her any uneasiness, I was glad she had sensed my own qualms, and looking at her squarely I gave her a little signal, imperceptible to Noel, which told her that I was exercising constant vigilance in her behalf.

"Are you all ready for rehearsal?" I asked casually, as I turned to the door.

"As ready as we'll ever be," Mary returned carelessly. "We're not dressing at all for it. Bad luck and all the rest of it, you know, to put on my own gown beforehand."

"Of course," I agreed, smiling. "And I'll see to it that everybody else is ready before we disturb our love birds."

I regretted my jest when Katie suddenly bent double in a gust of laughter.

"Lof birds; lof birds," she squealed. "Oh, dot's reech! Oh, you so foony, Missis Graham! Lof birds!" And she went off into another peel of laughter.

AVIS UNTIDY

I hurried out of the room, conscious that Noel and Mary, trying painfully to be casual, had gone back into their alcove retreat. But I forgot them when I went up to my room, into which Avis had managed to cram more disorder than I would accumulate in a month.

Her hat box and dress box had been opened, and the green and silver dress and its accompanying flower hat were spread out upon the bed. Her suit case was open upon one chair, and its contents distributed upon all the other chairs in the room. Avis herself, enwrapped in a thin kimona, sat at my dressing table, regarding herself in the mirror and fingering the different bottles and boxes which she had arranged in front of her. She turned at my entrance, and spoke in her most wheedling voice.

"I've been looking for that new dress you so kindly had made for me today," she said, "but can't find it, and the girls say they haven't the slightest idea where it is."

Neither Carolyn nor Marion looked at me, but I hastened to spare their patent embarrassment.

"It just happens that they weren't around when Mrs. Underwood and I put the gowns away," I said, "and we've all been too busy to say anything about them since."

WANTS TO BE ALONE

"Oh then it's in Mrs. Underwood's room," Avis said quickly, and with a sudden thought I smiled at her, purposely putting a touch of admiration into my expression.

"You're a quick thinker, Avis," I said noncommittally, "but I must ask you to dress as quickly as you can, for we want to get through with the rehearsal as soon as possible and get everybody to bed. And your supper will be ready in a very few minutes."

"I won't be long," she promised, "but will you think me awful if I ask you to leave me by myself while I prink? I never fuss much, goodness knows, but I simply have a horror of anybody looking at me while I'm fussing over my face."

"Of course, we'll go right out," I told her. "I think you'll find everything you need on my table. If you should want anything, just open the door and call me. I'll be right in the hall."

She turned a suddenly perturbed face to me.

"Oh, don't do that!" she exclaimed. "I have absolutely everything I need right here. I just checked up. It will make me terribly uncomfortable to know that you're having to wait around for me. Please, please say that you'll go downstairs and be comfortable, and leave me all to myself!"

Household Hints

Always cover vessels in which water is heating, and never let fire flare up round the sides of the kettle or saucepan. This ruins your pans and wastes the gas.

A few spoons of milk added to the rinsing water when washing white silk blouses or lingerie will keep them from turning yellow. This has a better effect than using blue-water, which often imparts an undesirable bluish tinge to silk.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

One Handle Only

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to drink soup out of a double handled cup providing you hold only one handle? Or do you have to use a spoon? T.

If the soup is a simple soup, of the consomme or bouillon variety we take the first few sips with the spoon, to test the heat, and then drink the rest as we would drink tea. The two-handled soup cup is lifted by only one handle.

Delayed Wedding Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to give a reception a week following the wedding? Kindly advise if this has been done before. H.

Yes, giving a reception in the new home a week following the wedding is entirely correct form. And while it is not often done, there is no reason why it shouldn't be done.

As a matter of fact, I have known quite a few brides-to-be who have chosen to have only the religious ceremony on the marriage day, postponing the reception until after they return from their wedding journey. And personally I think that this is an excellent idea, and a very wise one.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Hand

The recent annual contest for the Vanderbilt Cup, one of the classic events on the Bridge players' calendar in the United States, produced an extremely large number of interesting hands. One of the most interesting of these occurred in the final matches of the event, which was won by a "dark horse" team, the members of which were Messrs. Francis Rombion, Sydney Rusinow, Philip Oramsohn and Benjamin Sheer. It fell to the part of a member of the defeated team, Mr. Richard L. Frey, to play the deal below with great accuracy. The hand was:

North, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 53 ♡ A 9 8 ◇ A 10 9 6 3 ♣ A Q 2
♠ K Q J 8 ♡ 10 2 ◇ Q J 7 ♣ K 10 7 3	North West East South	♠ 10 6 2 ♡ K 5 4 ◇ K 8 4 2 ♣ J 9 6
	♠ A 9 7 4 ♡ Q J 7 6 3 ◇ 5 ♣ 8 5 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♢	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead against this aggressive bidding was the spade King. This Mr. Frey permitted to win. West did not continue the spades in view of his partner's play of the deuce to the first trick, but shifted at once to a heart, and the finesse lost to East's King. East returned a heart, which was won with the Ace. Mr. Frey then led from Dummy the diamond Ace, and returned to his own hand by ruffing the diamond 3. He then laid down the Ace of spades and ruffed another spade with Dummy's last trump. He returned to his own hand by ruffing a third round of diamonds, and drew East's last trump, a small club being discarded from Dummy. Mr. Frey now led a small club from his own hand and finessed the Queen. He completed his series of accurate plays by leading another diamond from Dummy, which East was forced to win.

Through the careful manner in which Mr. Frey had played the hand, East was now void of all other suits but clubs and the now established diamond in the Dummy gave Mr. Frey the tenth trick to fulfill his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

	♠ A J 2
	North West East South
	♠ K 9 5 4 3

Spades are trump. South can afford to lose only one trick in trumps. How should he play the spades, assuming entry cards in both hands?

Answer—South should lead to the Ace in Dummy or if in Dummy play out the Ace, then get back in his own hand and lead up to the Knave-two. By so playing he can lose only two tricks even if one adversary holds all five unseen spades.

This quaint basket, suggesting flowers placed geometrically in triangular patches, works up into a prim motif that makes a most attractive quilt block. Basket designs containing flower motifs had a great fascination for the needlewoman of the past. How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Advice on Treating 'Athlete's Foot'

Within recent years a great deal has been heard about the treatment of "athlete's foot." Advertisements daily appear in magazines, newspapers and other periodicals offering cures for this common malady.

Dr. Copeland

Yet it may surprise you to learn that athlete's foot is just another name for ringworm. The technical term for the affliction is a terribly big name, "dermatomycosis trichophytina." "Ringworm" and "athlete's foot," are names which are less difficult to pronounce and easier to remember.

Contrary to the common belief, ringworm is not caused by a worm. It comes from a vegetable fungus, called "tricophyton," which finds its way to a place under the skin. It may occur anywhere on the body, but is most commonly found on the face, neck, hands and forearms. Athlete's foot is the term applied particularly to ringworm which affects the soles of the feet or the skin between the toes.

Another common error concerning ringworm is the belief that it forms rings on the skin. Though a characteristic, ring-like inflammation sometimes appears on the skin, in most instances this is not the case. The absence of this ring-like appearance, however, does not mean that the disturbance is not ringworm.

The inflammation has two characteristics that aid in diagnosing the affliction. As a rule, the infection itches. This leads to uncontrollable scratching. In all cases of ringworm small, watery blisters form on the skin.

Ringworm in its severe form is a serious condition. It may lead to marked symptoms of nervous prostration. In any event, it should never be neglected. Chronic forms of ringworm are difficult to cure, but its treatment should begin at once.

Since ringworm is highly contagious and easily spreads from one individual to another, it is important that the necessary hygienic measure be taken to prevent this. If you have an eruption of the skin that itches and contains water blisters, ringworm should be suspected and you should guard others against infection.

Consult with your doctor or apply for aid at the skin clinic of any large hospital. Avoid irritating salves and patent medicines. It is advisable first to determine that you actually have the disorder before applying any medicine.

Too often a sufferer from a skin disturbance confuses ringworm with eczema, psoriasis or some other chronic inflammation of the skin. This is another reason why your suspicions should be confirmed by a doctor. A delicate and sensitive skin is often irritated and inflamed by the application of an ointment recommended by a well-meaning friend. Your doctor has been trained in the recognition of skin disease and will prescribe the proper and beneficial treatment.

SOCIETY HAILS OPERA DEBUT OF MARTINI

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—A nervous young Italian tenor shifted from one foot to another on the stage of the glamorous old Metropolitan Opera last night.

Applause rolled like high waves through the house.

Women stood up in their boxes, joining in the swell.

Two of them, from their front box in the "Golden Horseshoe," tossed their corsages to the youth.

Awkwardly, he bent over, picked them up, his face all agleam, his lips quivering in excitement.

The youth was Nino Martini.

DEBUT IN RIGOLETTO

In his Metropolitan Opera debut, he sang the role of the Duke in Verdi's tragedy of love and fickleness, Rigoletto.

Lily Pons, in her first appearance of the season, was Gilda. In the title role was the venerable Giuseppe De Luca, long one of the favorite baritones at the Metropolitan.

The Martini debut had been long heralded. The house was packed—even though the show was a benefit with orchestra seats at $7.50 each. There was a capacity of standees around the rail.

Martini's nervousness—he had no full rehearsal of the opera, only by piano—spoiled his chances in the first act.

REGAINS CALM

But calmness and self-assurance came in the second as he swept through the love scenes with Gilda. He was on firm ground with the great tenor aria of the last act, "Donna e Mobile," the prelude to the quartet.

The show, however, was not all for Martini. Not by any means.

The applause that greeted Mlle. Pons' "Cara Nome"—her love song to the Duke—was tremendous.

With it, the coloratura showed New York she had recovered completely from her several weeks' illness with a bronchial cold, which forced her to cancel a concert tour.

No one could fit the role of the happy-go-lucky Duke, physically, better than Martini.

HERO-WORSHIP

Tall, handsome, trim, with sleek hair, he brought women by the hundreds down close around the stage in the final curtain calls.

Only then were the other singers able to maneuver him out in front alone.

Then came the corsages and the cheers; not until 20 minutes afterward did he get to his dressing room.

Martini's tries for opera fame have been tedious. Once before he came to America, in 1929, to sing with the Philadelphia Grand Opera. Then the opera closed.

In the audience today were his teachers, Giovanni Zenatello and his wife, Maria Gay. They also taught Mlle. Pons.

American Pop Corn, Introduced by Red Skins, Should Be Used Not Only as a Confection but Also as a Food. It Has Many Health-Giving Properties and Inexpensive

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Did you know that "pop corn" may be used as a breakfast food? With milk or cream, and sugar added to it, it makes a nourishing and inexpensive cereal dish. Usually pop corn is consumed as a sweet and is hardly thought of as a food. This is unfortunate, because pop corn contains many health-giving properties.

Corn is a native American plant, believed to be the oldest known cereal. The Indians introduced this sturdy food to the early white settlers. Today, next to wheat, it is the most popular grain. Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana are the states growing the largest corn crops.

The corn chiefly used for pop corn is found in small ears having small, hard grains. When the ears of pop corn are compared with the ears of other corn they are found to be decidedly smaller. The ears may be pointed or flat. The corn kernels may be white, yellow or red. White corn is the most popular variety. Pop corn differs from other corn in that it has a larger proportion of "endosperm," the horny substance of the kernel.

OF GOOD QUALITY

Nebraska and Iowa cultivate the largest crops of pop corn. Nearly a half million bushels of this corn are sold annually. During its growth pop corn requires the same attention as any other corn. Rich soil and an abundance of rain during the growing season develop the best product. When the corn is being dried, special care must be given in order that it will "pop" properly.

Pop corn must be of a good quality and properly dried before it is used. The best pop corn is that which is sent to market the summer following the season in which it is grown.

The popping of corn produces a fascinating sound. Many wonder what causes it to pop. The explanation is a simple one. When it is held over a hot fire the moisture found in the starch cells expands. Pretty soon this swelling causes the covering of the grain to burst. The puffed white inside of the grain of corn turns inside out and sometimes becomes 20 times larger than it was originally.

RICH IN PROTEINS

Pop corn, like other corn, has a high starch and fat content. It is rich in proteins. The protein found in corn is not in itself sufficient to sustain life, but when combined with milk or eggs, it is made a nourishing and wholesome food. Vitamins A and B are contained in corn. It is rich in phosphorus and iron, good for bones and teeth.

Children and adults alike may eat pop corn as a cereal or as a confection. Indeed, it may beneficially be substituted for other confections. Of course it should be chewed carefully to insure ease in digestion. Over-indulgence in the eating of pop corn is as undesirable as is the overeating of other foods. When eaten in moderation it makes a valuable addition to the diet.

POPE DISMISSES 600 WORKERS

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Pope Pius has extended his economy program to workmen employed on Vatican City construction and repair jobs.

More than 600 men who had been on the payroll during the last year were discharged.

This was in addition to the cancellation of contracts with skilled artisans, announced December 15, and an order for a 10 to 15 per cent cut in the salaries of prelates and civilian officials of the church in Rome and Vatican City.

In connection with the Pope's order it was explained that the amount of work in immediate prospect did not justify the retention of such large forces.

OXYGEN FAILS TO SAVE YOUTH

NEW KENSINGTON, Dec. 29.—Despite efforts of his parents, who labored throughout the night administering oxygen to their stricken son, Charles Doering, 18, of 253 Ridge avenue, died early today at his home, a pneumonia victim.

Doering, a graduate last spring of the New Kensington High School, was stricken ill several days ago. When he became worse, late yesterday, an inhalator was rushed to the Doering home by New Kensington firemen, and the family instructed in its use. The family alternated in administering to the youth.

Doering was employed by the Aluminum Company of America and had been studying to be an undertaker, relatives said.

RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY

The following recipes were among those to receive an honorable mention in the Prudence Penny contest:

BAKED TROUT WITH CHEESE—Select a nice fresh trout, wash and clean, cut on the side and remove bones carefully. Stuff trout with 1½ cups cracker crumbs, ½ cup cooked fine-chopped mushrooms, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons grated American cheese. Pepper and salt to taste. Moisten with juice mushrooms have been cooked in. Roll fish in grated American cheese, place in buttered paper, place piece of butter on top, double the paper all around. Place on buttered baking sheet, and bake in a moderate oven for 15 or 20 minutes. Lift on a warm dish being careful not to disturb the paper. Garnish with parsley and lemon. Serve with Hollandaise sauce.

* * *

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE—Yolk 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup margarine (or butter). Few grains of cayenne or paprika.

Combine egg yolks, lemon and one-third of margarine. Cook over, but not in, boiling water until thick, stirring constantly. Add next third of margarine and cook. Repeat with last third of margarine. Add paprika and remove from heat. A moment too long will cause it to curdle. The above recipes were submitted by Miss Ida Costello, Aurelia street.

* * *

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES—6 baked potatoes, medium size, ½ cup milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoonfuls salt, wash of pepper.

As soon as potatoes are taken from oven, cut them in halves lengthwise and remove edible portion, taking care not to break the skin or shell. Mash potatoes, add milk, butter and seasoning and beat mixture with fork until it is light like mashed potatoes. Then return mixture to potato shells.

Put a bit of butter and a dash of paprika on each portion of potato. Place stuffed potatoes on a pan and bake uncovered at 475 degrees for 12 minutes or until filling is browned. Place in an uncovered dish or on a chop plate and serve at once. Submitted by Mrs. Elsie Stone, Park Mansions.

CRANBERRY PIE—2 cups cranberries, 1 cup boiling water, 1½ cups sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 tablespoon water, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon butter, ½ teaspoon almond extract.

Cook the cranberries and water until the cranberries are soft. Add the sugar and cook five minutes. Mix flour and water, add the egg yolk, butter and extract. Mix thoroughly. Add to the cranberry mixture. Pour into an uncooked, rich pie crust. Place pastry bars, lattice fashion, across the top. Bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven.—Submitted by Mrs. Mary Sater, Dormont.

* * *

ESCALLOPED EGGS WITH CHEESE—3 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, ½ cup cheese, cut fine, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon parsley.

Melt the butter, add the flour and mix well. Gradually add the milk. Cook one minute, add the cheese and the eggs, cut in slices. Add the parsley and the salt. Place one-half the crumbs in the bottom, a well-buttered baking dish, add the egg mixture and cover with the remaining crumbs. Dot with butter and brown in moderate oven.—Submitted by Mrs. Blair Virgie, Clarksburg, W. Va.

* * *

ROAST TURKEY—Wash and singe the dressed turkey. Rub with salt and pepper, inside and out, and stuff, pressing the stuffing firmly into the fowl. Tie the legs down firmly to the body and place in a roasting pan. Grease well with butter or olive oil, dredge with flour and place in a hot oven (about 450 degrees F.), to sear the outside quickly and prevent the escape of inner juices.

After about 25 minutes lower the heat to a moderate oven (375 degrees F.), baste with water, to which a small amount of butter and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce have been added. Cover the pan, if desired, and bake until the breast is tender. Baste several times during the baking, and allow from 20 to 25 minutes per pound of turkey. An eight-pound turkey will require about three hours in a moderate oven.

All in a Day

Odds and Ends

FROM A SMALL town in Massachusetts comes one of the best laughs of any season. The story has to do with a middle-aged spinster who was the owner of a rather impressive bankroll. But she wasn't having much fun in life, and she decided that a mate might not be such a bad idea after all.

The prospects in her vicinity were very meager, however, so she placed an advertisement in a matrimonial journal. You know the sort of thing.

"Attractive maiden lady with comfortable income wishes to meet a refined gentleman who is a decent and law-abiding citizen." And so on and so forth.

From the many replies our heroine picked the one that impressed her the most. She wrote to him, and he returned the compliment. A few more letters, and they agreed to exchange photos. Marion, the spinster in the case, dug one out of the family album and sent it along. Then she waited for her suitor's picture to arrive.

Arrive it did—and Marion was agreeably surprised. The picture was that of a handsome, distinguished-looking, grey-haired man. The woman was certain now that she had made no mistake. Such a kind and noble-looking gentleman would surely make a fine husband. Marion's heart bounced wildly as she decided that this was her Ideal Man.

There was a slight catch, though. After a few more letters, Henry, the Ideal Man, wrote that, while he would like very much to come up from New York and meet her, he was temporarily financially embarrassed.

His financial difficulties, he assured her, were little more than a laugh. He had plenty of money, but it was all tied up at the moment. If Marion would like to send him $500, he would come to see her immediately and explain everything. And Marion sent him the dough.

You know, of course, what happened. The 500 bucks disappeared, and so did the Ideal Man. Marion waited several weeks, and then got in touch with some police official in New York. She wrote a lengthy letter, enclosing the photo, the name and the address of the man who had gypped her, and asked that the police try to trace him.

She received a polite and regretful reply. The police informed Marion that they received many such complaints, but that it was very difficult to do anything about them. There was no one named Henry Jones at the address he had given her.

Furthermore, the letter stated, the photograph that had influenced her to send her money to a stranger was not that of the man who mailed the letters.

Musical

Joan Marsh is featured in "Rainbow Over Broadway," musical film that will supplement the vaudeville in the Pitt New Year's Day.

It was, they told her, a picture of Walter Winchell! . . .

BROADWAY was treated to another tremendous night club premiere last week when Ben Marden reopened the famous Palais Royale. Marden, a lavish spender in any undertaking, has turned the old spot into one of the most beautiful clubs in America. He will offer plenty of competition to the other Broadway cafes.

At the opening, I spoke to a young performer who has been employed in a number of cabarets from season to season. He is not working for Ben Marden at the moment, but he waxed enthusiastic about the man.

"I love that man," he cried. "He knows what he's doing all the time. He's probably the smartest fellow in the cafe field."

He hesitated, probably figuring that he had gone too far.

"Don't misunderstand me," he added hastily. "I love Joe Moss, over at the Hollywood, too. He's great. And Nick Blair, over at the Paradise, is a swell guy. I love him. And up at the Cafe de Paree. I love—"

"Just a minute," I interrupted. "You're throwing your love around a little too freely. Do you really think so much of all these people?"

He grinned. He leaned closer.

"To tell you the truth, Mark," he whispered, "I love anybody who's got a cafe that's big enough to pay me!" . . .

ONE of the oldest, but still one of the best rackets in existence was successfully pulled on a Fifth avenue department store last week.

Into the store came a well-dressed woman. She marched into the fur department, and picked out a coat that was priced at $2,100. She told them haughtily that she'd take the coat with her, and carelessly took three bills from her pocket. Two were $1,000 denominations, and the third was for $500.

The employes became a trifle nervous. This was a rather unusual thing. The bills were sent down stairs to the cashier, but he didn't feel like taking any chances either. So he shot them over to the bank for an okay.

Meanwhile, the customer was growing highly impatient. She asked the reason for the delay and was told that her money had been sent to the bank. Whereupon she grew furious and tossed the coat to one side.

"I have never been so insulted in all my life," she cried. "I now refuse to do business with such a concern as this. There's your coat. Give me back my money."

Over in the bank, the bills were found to be perfectly legitimate. They were sent back, and the employes apologized all over the place. But the woman refused to be placated. She stuffed the bills into her purse and stormed out.

Three days later, she was back again. She regretted having been so hasty, she explained, and had now decided to buy the coat. The employes, of course, were the souls of courtesy to her on this occasion. She took the coat, again paid for it with two $1,000 bills and a $500 one, received her change, and walked out.

This time, the bills were counterfeit! . . .

Varied Occupations Known to Stars

A checkup on stars and featured players in Hollywood reveals that almost every walk of life is represented on the screen. Among the current actors and actresses are former movie ushers, stenographers, prizefighters, swimmers et al.

For example, Johnny Weismuller came from the ranks of Olympic swimmers; Max Baer is a pugilist; Dick Powell was a crooning master of ceremonies; Kay Francis, a private secretary; Mali, just an unknown Eskimo until W. S. Van Dyke decided to star him in "Eskimo;" Chief Thunder Horse was just another Indian until he was featured in "Massacre;"

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir, Ernest Lunt directing, gave its yearly performance of Handel's Messiah in Carnegie Music Hall last night. There was no decrease in interest on the part of its devoted hearers than heretofore, nor any in the enthusiasm of the choir.

Mr. Lissfelt

Assisting the singers was an orchestra of 50 men chosen from among Pittsburgh musicians, and Earl Mitchell at the organ. It is questionable whether the assistance of these men materially helped the singing, for both parties were not always in accord, though the orchestral accompaniment tended to lessen somewhat the brilliant tone of the choir, in this case, to the advantage of the choir.

Soloists, too, were chosen from among Pittsburgh singers. Doubtless the best was the tenor, Arthur Davis, who both vocally and musically set a high standard for his colleagues on this occasion.

Sarah Logan sang the contralto solo parts with far too much restraint so that her voice hardly competed with the accompaniment, though there was a beautiful tenderness in her singing.

Irene Cramblett was the soprano and is a clever singer. Her solo, "He Shall Feed His Flock," was especially fine. Edward Williams was the basso, a good voice also, but not in full control of his powers.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Distraction Keeps Baby In Picture Pose

To get a good "still" picture of Baby LeRoy is quite a job. Instead of the customary blare of lamps, only one is lit. Baby LeRoy's mother and the studio chool teacher, Miss Rachael mith, hold the youngster still in he position desired while the ameraman focuses with the light.

He slips the plate in place, loads his flashlight "gun," and turns out the light.

Mother and Miss Smith step hurriedly away. The three, and the man posing the pictures, then start shouting at the top of their voices, screeching anything that comes to mind. Naturally, LeRoy is astonished at all this excitement and forgets to move from the pose they have placed him in. The flashlight is popped, the camera snapped, and there's a perfect picture "in the box." This is repeated for each picture, until the set is completed.

DOLL LADY
Stays Until New Year's With
"HONEYSUCKLE"
"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.
"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.
Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."
"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for New Year's. You must, however, get your orders in this week.
DOLL LADY HEADQUARTERS

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The Palais Royal is now another of my favorite rendezvous. Where the Yacht Club Boys make funny faces and holler sassy songs—where the Boswell Sisters bozz the blues—where Jeanne Aubert is Frenchier than a postcard, and where Fred Keating of "All Good Americans" doubles after the play with his routine of spell-binding magic—and makes the darndest things disappear—except your check . . . Pretty Laura Walters, who was among the Dillingham show lovelies, is so ill at St. Vincent's Hospital in Toledo—desperately combating pneumonia, poor thing . . . Wonder if all her one-time admirers, important men and women of New York, will help her? . . . Olin Miller's observation is so true. He says that when an author builds a reputation to the point that people will read anything he writes—that's just what he writes.

I like what Mary Pickford did before she opened in her abbreviated version of "The Church Mouse" at the Paramount . . . In her playlet there was a robust free ad for a well-known chain of local soda fountain-restaurant places . . . Miss Pickford sent her representative to the company and suggested that they donate $1,000 to the Actors' Dinner Club, a worthy group which feeds theater people gratis daily . . . The firm decided it would give only $200 for the advertisement . . . So Mary jerked the line, for which hurray! . . . Eddie Cantor and some of us realize that because of the free admissions to radio entertainments in Rockefeller Center—on certain nights many Broadway theaters are not crowded . . . It was thought that if the sponsors of the free shows were to ask the spectators to donate a dime to the various theatrical charities—that would be a nice gesture . . . On Thursday eves, for instance, the playhouses suffer most. This is blamed on Rudy Vallee's free show at the studios—Jack Pearl is another crowd enticer . . . But Mr. Vallee is now in Hollywood and Thursday nights are still weak . . . On Sunday nights the Cantor show greets about 1,500 pass-seekers and George M. Cohan a similar audience, and Jack Benny plays to capacity, too . . . But on Sunday nights the plays are closed and the movies turn them away . . . So the radio czars sent me home to figure out a saner argument.

The expression "carrying the torch" is, I agree with a pal, a little dated . . . He suggests that it be revised to "carrying the beacon"—which he has been doing so long he's sun-tanned . . . One day soon I'll holiday while I fill the pillar with Howard Swain's grand letter, in which he cynically relates the other side of the newspaper game. Howard argues I am fortunate, for I have never stopped being a cub . . . A cub ant? . . . Other lads say that the newspaper profession is a tough habit . . . Mebbeso—but better than cocaine . . . I go for the way Gertrude Niesen wails "More Than You Know"—with the sadness of a bereaved oriole . . . That lady in California made Walda so very happy with that tiny doll and a tiny trunkful of the tiniest trousseau . . . Memo to big heads: Always remember that you're only playing hookey from oblivion.

The fact is, that if I put a line or two or three about the incident in the column—the mice will say: "Get a load of Winchell squawking! After the way he's been cracking the whip all these years, too!" . . . But it isn't a squawk, at all . . . It makes good copy—and good copy is what makes a column . . . And I presume that's exactly what the other fellow thought when he did it . . . I mean the chap who drew several salutes from me just before he started a new job on a new paper . . . My employer wondered what the idea was, anyway? Me being so generous to a new paper in the same town—with his ink, paper and presses! . . . Nevertheless, I went ahead and banged the big drum about the new enterprise, welcomed it to the field (New York newspapers just don't do that) and drew his thanks, etc. . . So what happened? . . . So this happened . . . One of the very first issues featured a blast at me—plus editorial comment about what terrible persons are my brand of paragraphers and other familiar wordage—aimed, of course, to peddle a few papers. . . . A form of holiday greetings, as it were . . . Well, all right . . . It's happened before. . . But it doesn't throw me—all the way . . . My unexpected socks, which they all were, came only from friends and people—I once or twice befriended . . . I know of no enemy, really, who ever tried to even matters with me . . My scars are merely the autographs of men and women who once asked a favor—and got it.

Considering the army of people who are waiting to get even with me for this and that—I know of no sane reason why I shouldn't stand up there and take it like a columnist . . . But I do face the sour music of the flat-noters, and I expect to fall when one of them finally rates a diploma from his archery tutor . . . Lucky for me, the present crop of pop-gunners needs a little more target practice . . . Every pup has his day, as Percy Hammond always pepigrams, and one day, no doubt, mine will arrive—for I am no different than any other mongrel . . . Until then, however, I intend to keep teasing the midgets, just for the fun of it . . . It hasn't been a winning fight, by any means . . . Occasionally a decision has been rendered that had that Fulton Market smell about it . . . But, no matter. When I come in second, it naturally is pleasant news to some people, who argue that I disregard the rules, too . . . And so I mustn't at any time holler "Foul!" . . . I am a bit of a Hitler, it appears . . . I live by the Remington—and I must expect to take the consequences—even if it is from an Underwood . . It is nice to know, however, that none can confront me and shout: "He doesn't like it, look at him wince!" . . . When "old Rockin' Chair's got me" and I am readying for my nook in Hell—my reminiscences will not be dull . . . How I do go on! . . . But even a clay pigeon has its brief moment—as it is perched on air—and it looks down—on the marksmen.

Gable Wants To Work as Extra

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—Most of Hollywood thought it was a publicity story when Clark Gable said he wanted to play an extra in "The Merry Widow." To the contrary, the star is so keen that he has just written Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer a letter offering to waive his salary for one day and to accept the usual $7.50 atmosphere check.

Mr. Gable

Back of the gesture is the sentimental idea of recapturing the past. For it was in the silent version of "The Merry Widow," and not so many years ago, that Clark did his first extra work in motion pictures.

To him at that time, the stars of the film, Mae Murray, Jack Gilbert and Erich Von Stroheim were creatures of another world.

Today he is a star and the envied ones, save Jack Gilbert if he makes a comeback in "Queen Christina," have passed their zenith.

Red-headed Tommy Shagrue, little Irish still photographer at MGM, is ill, but he is to receive the finest hospital and medical care that money can buy.

It is the gift of his friend, Joan Crawford.

Tommy and Joan have been friends for a long timme. It goes back to the day when the star took her first screen test at MGM. She was terribly earnest but also pitifully nervous. Right in the midst of the scene she burst into tears.

Tommy was on the set. This newcomer didn't mean any more to him than dozens of other Hollywood yearners. But with quick sympathy he went into a tap routine. He asked Joan if she could follow. She could. She also lost her nervousness and got the job.

Being the sort that doesn't forget, she now is taking care of Tommy when the tables are turned and he is in a tough spot.

The Greta Garbo house in Brentwood seems to have a strange fascination for film people. When the Swedish star moved out, Miriam Hopkins took the place. Later, it was rented by Claudette Colbert and, still later, by Frances Dee and Joel McCrea.

Miss Davis

Now Bette Davis has taken over the lease.

Warner Brothers would like to know if she also has taken over some of La Garbo's exclusiveness. They've been trying for three days to arrange interviews and to get pictures of the Bette with her visiting spouse, Harmon O. Nelson, Jr.

But, with Garboesque exclusiveness, Bette simply can't be reached.

You can take it for what it is worth, but when a close friend congratulated Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., on his reported engagement to Gertrude Lawrence, the youthful actor came back:

"Don't believe everything you hear."

Adult (?) Hollywood has gone crazy over kids' electric trains. Ginger Rogers gave one to Lew Ayres for his Christmas present, and Wesley Ruggles' "Folly" (he bought $450 worth of equipment for a baby 11 months old) was the piece-de-resistance at a grownup party on Christmas day. Now Bill Seiter vows he is going to have a train.

* * *

Some of the Paramount boys and girls got in a gay mood the other afternoon and started out to visit Josef Von Sternberg's set. By the time the parade got to the "keep out" sign, however, it consisted solely of the dance-director Leroy Prinz . . . Al Schacht, baseball comedian with the Washington Senators, has dropped into the Hollywood plaza and, report has it, will do some clowning for the films.

Biggest thrill of Mrs. Robert Young's stay at the hospital (not counting the baby, of course) was when Walt Disney showed up with an original drawing of the three little pigs as a Christmas gift for the youngster. Now, Bob is having the nursery furniture decorated with piglets and is framing the picture as a souvenir for his daughter . . . May Robson personally made silk ties for the boys of her acquaintance. Each tie carries her autograph embroidered on the under side

Miriam Hopkins is co-starred with Gary Cooper and Frederic March is "Design for Living," now showing in the Stanley. In it a playwright and an artist both love the same girl. And she loves both of them. Edward Everett Horton is prominent in the picture, too.

"Dinner at Eight," in the Penn, pictures dramatic incidents affecting guests invited to a dinner arranged for a couple of British aristocrats who don't show up. Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Billie Burke, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe and Madge Evans are in the principal roles.

"Convention City," a comedy now in the Warner, is a hodge-podge of fun at a convention. Joan Blondell, Dick Powell, Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor and Guy Kibbee have featured roles.

* * *

Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore are featured in "Her Sweetheart, Christopher Bean" photoplay in the Sheridan Square. Helen Mack, H. B. Warner and Jean Hersholt are in the cast.

* * *

James Dunn, Cliff Edwards, June Knight, Lillian Roth, Buddy Rogers, Dorothy Lee and Lillian Bond have the principal roles in "Take a Chance," musical comedy opening tomorrow in the Enright.

* * *

Charles Farrell, Charlie Ruggles, Marguerite Churchill, Gregory Ratoff and Walter Woolf have the leading roles in "Girl Without a Room" photoplay opening midnight Sunday in the Davis. It is all about artists in Paris. "Alice in Wonderland" continues through Friday and Saturday.

The new bill in the Pitt will open New Years Day, and will include a number of vaudeville acts and a film, Joan Marsh and Frank Albertson in "Rainbow Over Broadway," a musical romance.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Harriet Hoctor, featured dancer with Joe Cook in "Hold Your Horses," coming to the Nixon Monday, January 8, left her home town, Hoosick Falls, N. Y., at the age of 12 to study dancing in New York. After she made her stage debut in "Sonny," she appeared on the vaudeville stage from coast to coast. She faced Broadway with the Duncan Sisters in the musical comedy "Topsy and Eva." Following that engagement she appeared in the Ziegfeld productions of "The Three Musketeers," "The Show Boat" and "Simple Simon." Last season she was the dancing star of the Earl Carroll "Vanities."

* * *

The third production of the winter season of the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will be the Broadway comedy success of some years back, "Up Pops the Devil," by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich. It will be given in the Hotel Schenley Theater at three evening performances, opening Tuesday, January 9. Alfred E. Smith, who directed "Three-Cornered Moon" for the playhouse, is directing "Up Pops the Devil."

* * *

Blanche Friderici, who died Sunday while en route with her husband, Donald Campbell, to spend the holidays in Grant National Park, will be remembered by film fans for her capable depiction of "hard" feminine roles. She was aged 55.

GILDA: A thing happened to me which usually happens to men. You see, a man can meet two, three, or even four women and fall in love with all of them. And then by a process of interesting elimination he is able sometimes finally to decide which he prefers. But a woman must decide only on instinct—guesswork—if she wants to be considered nice. It's quite all right for her to try on a hundred hats before she picks out one, but . . .

TOM: Very fine. Which chapeau do you want, Madame?

GILDA: Both. You see George, you are sort of like a ragged straw hat with a very soft lining. A little bit out of shape, very dashing to look at—and very comfortable to wear. And you, Tom—chic, piquant, perched over one eye. And has to be watched on windy days. And both so becoming. I'm the most unhappy woman in the world.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Another Lion Handicap.
Stanford Much Heavier.
Class of Irish Lacking.
Rosey Hits All-America.
Grid Record of Miami.
Dempsey Keeps Going.

An enervating climate, a lack of capable replacements, the ineligibility of a star tackle and the loss of much outdoor practice following the close of the regular season are not the only handicap that will hurt Columbia's chances in the Rose Bowl football game next Monday. The Lions will be at a disadvantage also in the matter of weight. There will be a particular bulge for the Stanford line, of which Bill Corbus is the star, the figures showing an advantage of 11 pounds per man for the Cardinal forwards, and a lesser edge will be held by the Coast backfield.

Bill Corbus

This, too, without reckoning the fact that a number of the Columbia players lost weight on the trip to Tucson. Here's the normal poundage of the men who will start the game for the Light Blue and White: Ends, Tony Matal, 177, and Owen McDowell, 175; tackles, Paul Jackel, 180, and Joe Richavich, 210; guards, Steve Dzanba, 185, and Lawrence Pinckney, 197; center, Newell Wilder, 200; quarterback, Cliff Montgomery, 165; halfbacks, Ed Brominski, 170, and Al Barabas, 190; fullback, Bill Nevel, 170.

The above figures show a line average of 189 pounds, a backfield average of 173, and a team average of 183. The Cardinals will go well above those marks, Stanfords' line, for instance, averages a shade better than 200 pounds from end to end when Wes Muller plays center, which means that in the forward wall the Lions will be outweighed by more than 11 pounds per player.

SIMILAR IRISH HANDICAP OFFSET BY CLASS

Similar handicaps have been overcome in the Bowl, it is true. Notre Dame's famous Seven Mules were 12 pounds below Columbia's line figures, averaging only 177 pounds, and the team average was only 171, yet the Irish walloped Stanford at Pasadena on New Years Day of 1925 by a score of 27 to 10.

But it must be remembered that that Notre Dame team of Four Horseman days was one of the greatest, if not actually the best, that ever represented any college. To offset their lack of weight, the Irish of nine years ago had a wealth of exceptional class which the present-day Lions cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be said to possess.

ROSENBERG SAYS BEST BACK WAS OMITTED

The most vigorous protest yet heard against the all-America football selections of 1933 comes, strangely enough, from a player who was practically a unanimous choice himself. Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California's great guard, merely pooh-poohed when informed that he had been selected and requested that he be spared any all-America talk. Troy's star declared indignantly that not one all-America team in the lot even mentioned a player whom he pronounced the "best back in the United States." He said he referred to Bob McNeish, of his own team. "McNeish could block better running backward than anybody else could going ahead," said Rosenberg; "but what of it? He was a star on offense and defense, but because he didn't carry the ball often he was ignored."

Aaron Rosenberg

Rosey declared the hardest games he played in his three varsity seasons were those against California, that his toughest individual opponent in 1933 was Schwammel, of Oregon State, and that by far the best game the Trojans played this year was against Notre Dame. As to what caused the slump of the Irish, he expressed the opinion that there was something wrong with their spirit. Rosenberg denies the report that he intends to become a professional boxer. He wants to be a moving picture director, and with that end in view has started to work under Irving Cummings and Jack Boland at the Fox studio.

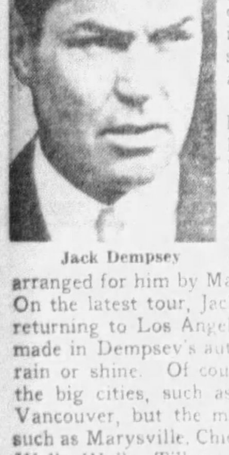
SIX WINS AND ONE TIE IN MIAMI'S RECORD

Letters have been received from several readers requesting information about the record made during the regular season of 1933 by the University of Miami football team, which will meet Duquesne University in the annual Festival of Palms game in Miami, Fla., next Monday afternoon. The record shows that Miami played seven games, winning six and being held to a scoreless tie by Tampa in the final contest.

The Hurricanes rolled up a total of 199 points against only 13 by opponents. The only teams to score on them were Piedmont and Louisville. Miami's highest score was 71 against Piedmont. The complete record follows: Miami 20, Bowden College 0; Miami 71, Piedmont College 6; Miami 48, South Georgia State 0; Miami 33, University of Louisville 7; Miami 18, Rollins College 0; Miami 9, Stetson University 0; Miami 0, Tampa University 0.

DEPRESSION NEVER OVERTAKES DEMPSEY

Jack Dempsey is one prominent sports figure from whom no complaints about the depression have been heard at any time. He keeps ahead of it by living up to his old reputation as a man of action, always on the go where there is a dollar to be picked up. When he isn't promoting a big fight or touring the country with a topline heavyweight battler, he's refereeing wrestling matches and adding color to the show, whether or not it is part of the act, by landing a kayo on one of the grapplers. And between shows in the large cities he's cleaning up in the sticks by making personal appearances as a ring official.



Jack Dempsey

The former heavyweight champion has been doing so well on the kerosene lamp circuit out West that it is said he has made more money in six months than in any except the one or two big years of his career. In the last six months Dempsey has made three barnstorming tours of this sort, filling dates arranged for him by Maurice Cain, old time theatrical manager. On the latest tour, Jack and his wife started out November 8, returning to Los Angeles about two weeks ago. The trip was made in Dempsey's automobile, and they never stopped going, rain or shine. Of course, the ex-titleholder did not overlook the big cities, such as San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Vancouver, but the main route was around the small towns, such as Marysville, Chico, Grass Valley, Los Banos, Wenatchee, Walla Walla, Tillamook, Lewiston and many more. Thirty-one appearances were made in six weeks, and now Dempsey is on another trip that will be concluded Sunday. He'll take New Years Day off and visit East shortly afterward to see if he can't promote a big fight. While others in the boxing game moan about the hard times, Dempsey goes out and does things. His name is an asset and he makes the most of it.

HEAVIES CLASH IN NEW YORK, CHICAGO RINGS

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Towering Ray Impellettiere, the giant who considerably tormented Tommy Loughran not so long ago, meets Walter Neusel, of Germany, in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

There will be a difference of some 64 pounds when they hook up, yet this should not burden the German. Long arms and not weight will be Neusel's trouble.

Impellettiere has the arms of a gorilla, and were he to put that animal power behind them every time he used them, no man alive could cope with him.

Ray showed in the Loughran fight that he can bear down like an Army mule when he elects to sock, but it isn't often he clicks. It is hard to see him doing anything but coming home a winner tonight.

Neusel isn't a soft mark. He outpointed Larry Gains and Lawrence, you know, outguessed the present world champion, Primo Carnera. Also Neusel's topped Les Kennedy and Stanley Poreda.

The German is up against weight and reach but—so was Joe Walcott—always!

KINGFISH IN ACTION

By JOHN C. HOFFMAN
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Another comedy of the cauliflower art is to be offered the customers when King Levinsky, who swings from the fire exit, and Dan McCorkindale, a South African importation, mix in combat tonight at the Chicago stadium.

Levinsky is currently engaged in a voluble campaign intended to bring him a match with the redoubtable Big Feet Carnera, who is champion by virtue of having beaten the oft-beaten Jack Sharkey. The fish merchant is so sure he can punch Big Feet into oblivion that he has taken to swinging his arms when he walks.

At that, there are few heavyweights who shove the Kingfish around; certainly there are none who can be more mirth-provoking that the Poisonality Kid. Levinsky is said to be preparing himself for Max Schmeling, who is beginning to lean on his heels, and a subsequent tussle with Max Baer, who is currently conditioning in night clubs.

They're placing 7-to-5 odds that if McCorkindale does not escape the ponderous heavings of the Kingfish for three rounds they will be carrying Donnie from the ring looking like something that had come through the mail.

PRO NET STARS ADVANCE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Making his first appearance in the national professional indoor tennis championship after receiving a default, Big Bill Tilden last night pounded Emmett Pare, fifth seeded player from Chicago, into submission, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3, in an hour and 10 minutes.

The victory placed Tilden, seeded first in the semi-final round along with Vincent Richards, defending champion; Bruce Barnes, of Texas, and Francis T. Hunter.

Richards, seeded second, downed Charles Wood, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. Both players are from New York.

Shawkey Named Newark Manager

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Selection of Robert J. (Bob) Shawkey, former manager and pitcher of the New York Yankees, as manager of the Newark Bears, of the International League, for the 1934 season was announced today by Vice President George Weiss.

The North wind doth blow and it whispers low . . . Thus and as follows, to-wit: . . . There's going to be a new coaching deal at Western Reserve University in Cleveland next year, with Tom Keady out after three years of trying to build up a winning team. . . . Karl E. Davis, formerly of Pitt, is the athletic director of the Reservists . . . Frankie Wallace and Kid Chocolate are to meet in a return bout of 12 rounds in Cleveland on January 5 . . . Phil Zwick and Lew Feldman are in the eight-round semi-final. Chocolate and Wallace fought a good 10-rounder on the recent Christmas Fund card in Cleveland.

Don McCorkindale, the South African heavyweight, who boxes King Levinsky in Chicago tonight, has had only 27 professional fights, but he engaged in 250 as an amateur, beginning in 1922 . . . The reason Babe Ruth was not signed as manager of the Detroit Tigers this year, it is said, was because Frank Navin, owner of the club, was afraid the Babe, accustomed to the hullaballoo of New York, would feel "like a 12 o'clock guy in a 9 o'clock town" and would not be satisfied . . . Pittsburgh's All-America team pickers are in a class by themselves . . . MYSTERY HORSE, OWNER BARRED

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 29.—Slowly turning from a deep black to his natural brown, West Virginia's "mystery horse" frisks about a farm near Charles Town, barred with his owner from West Virginia tracks.

The suspensions were ordered yesterday by Agriculture Commissioner McLaughlin, ex-officio racing commissioner, following a hearing of the tangled story of the horse being "painted" or dyed, and sold at a paddock auction.

Michael Krock, of Perth Amboy, N. J., who purchased the peppy little 2-year-old under the name of Hustle Over denied generally any knowledge of the change in the colt's color.

He said he knew nothing of the horse until he was told by a Mrs. Kelly, of Baltimore, that a likely 2-year-old would be sold and at a bargain.

Specific charges by the stewards at the Charles Town track who recommended Krock's suspension were "failure to co-operate" in efforts to identify the horse and determining who changed his color.

The stewards expressed the belief in reports to McLaughlin that the horse's color was changed to throw them off the track of the rightful owner who they believe to b. Patrick C. Barrie, already ruled off the track.

Amateur Heavy Champ to Be Pro

The Pittsburgh district amateur heavyweight boxing champion is getting ready to turn professional. He is Nick Malloy, of Duquesne, who has been boxing for three years and has been beaten only a few times. He has won three district titles.

Malloy is 22 years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall, and weighs 190 pounds. He will box under the management of Andrew Black, of Duquesne.

COLUMBIA NEAR PEAK FOR ROSE BOWL GAME

By BILL CORUM
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 29—So many conflicting reports have been coming out of Pasadena about the physical condition of Tiny Thornhill's Stanford Indians that we thought it might be a good idea to pop in during one of their workouts in preparation for Columbia in the Rose Bowl football game on Monday, and get the lowdown, if any.

So far as the roaring Lions of Morningside are concerned, they are as ready for the question as they are ever going to be. Even yesterday Little was tapering them off in the last workout, but one on the University of Arizona field at Tucson, and there was nothing further than anybody could have asked in the matter of condition. They are as sharp as thoughtful, careful training under ideal conditions can make them.

LIONS PUZZLED

But if one may judge from such editions of the public prints as reached Tucson, it has been a different story with the Indians of Northern California. The big center, Muller, was in the hospital with the influenza and wouldn't play. He was not in the hospital. He didn't have influenza and he would play.

Bobby Grayson had a sore heel and was a doubtful starter. He didn't have a sore heel and he was not a doubtful starter. Monk Moscrip was suffering from a leg injury that had Thornhill on the hot seat. Thornhill laughed at reports that Moscrip had a bad leg.

So we decided to go all the way to Pasadena, if necessary, and get one peep at the Indians before the bowling started in the Rose Bowl. As we understand it, it was Southern California that gave football back to the Indians this fall, and we would hate to see them lose it by default.

TEAM A MYSTERY

We are getting right close to the old question in this football game now, and perhaps it would not be amiss at this time to examine the strange record of the Lions. It has been a strange season for Little's team. The night we rode back to New York with them after the Princeton shutout, they were as far from Rose Bowl aspirations as the "Tigers" on the vacant lot nearest your home.

But they came back, and they came back a-clawing. Why?

Well, the writer thinks he comes as near knowing why as anybody, but he is not privileged to tell. And the fact is that nobody, not even Little himself, knows for sure. It is enough to say that after the Cornell game, which was won in far from brilliant fashion, four veteran players were severely disciplined.

Then they started clicking like billiard balls under the touch of Willie Hoppe's cue, and they kept right on clicking.

FACE TEST MONDAY

How really good they are I frankly don't know. Monday should tell. A close game either way would be the tip-off. If they hold Stanford close, we can be reasonably sure that they were just about as good as anything the true East, meaning East of the Mississippi in this instance, had to offer.

But I suspect that Little himself is more or less guessing about 'em. That deep down inside he, too, was pleasantly surprised and astonished when they started tearing things wide open. That this Columbia outfit is, in all truth, a football team that nobody knows. But of this I am certain, those kids have somehow got the idea that they can't be licked and that is at least a part of any battle.

STANFORD ACE PUT TO BED

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Bobby Grayson, star Stanford fullback, has been ordered to bed by the team's physician, Dr. E. F. Roth, who said the fleet-footed ball carrier was suffering from a heavy cold.

Asked if there was any possibility of Grayson not being able to play in the New Years game against Columbia in the Rose Bowl, Dr. Roth said it was likely he could start.

Grayson is the mainspring of Stanford's running attack and the fastest man on the Cardinal squad.

CHICAGO TRIUMPHS

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blue Ribbon lacrosse team defeated the Milwaukee team in a league game here last night, 16 to 15.

TEAM TO REACH MIAMI EARLY TOMORROW

EN ROUTE TO MIAMI WITH DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM, Dec. 29.—Headed for Miami and the New Years Day Festival of the Palms football game with the University of Miami Hurricanes, the Duquesne University varsity football squad and more than a score of followers rolled through the South today.

The Dukes departed from Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon and made a brief stop at Washington, D. C., last night, where the special cars were shifted from the P. R. R. to the Seaboard line. The players will take advantage of several stops along the line today to limber up, beginning this morning when the train halts at Hamlet, N. C.

The arrival in Miami is set for early tomorrow morning and the team will hold a light workout in the afternoon with the final drill scheduled for Sunday.

MIAMI NEARS PEAK

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29.—Coach Tommy McCann began tapering off his University of Miami Hurricane grid warriors yesterday afternoon for the intersectional clash with the powerful Duquesne University team here New Years Day.

The practice was devoted to passing, punting and dummy scrimmage. Mike Sissman, rangy end, who will exchange punts with Sil Zaninelli, husky punter of Duquesne, was setting off long kicks which were good for 50 to 60 yards. Sissman was kicking much faster than he had in the early season games. It is upon this left foot that Miami will depend for the majority of its booting.

The team is showing daily improvement and McCann and Bob Zuppke hope to have them in tip-top shape for the game Monday.

Miami's main weakness will be its lack of reserves. With Bierkamper, end; Fahrney, fullback, and Thompson and Lewis, quarterbacks, benched because of injuries, Zuppke has changed the men about and hopes to have a clicking combination. Frank Petrow, guard, was not in uniform yesterday because of hip injuries received in scrimmage. Charley Heckman, who was ill the early part of the week, alternated at guard and tackle.

TO ABANDON SHIFT

In an effort to save every ounce of energy the Hurricane coaching staff decided to abandon the now famous shift into the line. The team will go directly from the huddle into the formation.

McCann continued to use the combination of Sissman and Wilson at ends; Craczyk and Buck, tackles; Dansky and Heckman, guards; Leonard, center; Cook, Petrowski, halfbacks; L'Italien, fullback, and used both Ott and Baker at quarterback.

The officials in charge of the game will include Shorty Hunt, of Michigan, referee; Dick Hunt, Arkansas, umpire; Red Cole, Albion, linesman, and Jess Yarborough, Clemson, field judge.

LENORE KIGHT ADDS TWO MARKS TO LAURELS

HOMESTEAD ACE SETS RECORDS IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29.—The second day of competition in the second annual national Olympic stars' aquatic meet in the Biltmore pool got under way today with the contestants scheduled for a busy day if the record shattering of the first day's program is to be equaled.

Lenore Kight

Four national records were established yesterday as the meet opened, two of which went to the prowess of Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., the free style champion, and one each to Anne Govednik, of Chisholm, Minn., and Alice Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass.

Leonard Spence, of the New York Athletic Club, national champion at 220 and 440 meters in the breast stroke, failed in his try at the world record in the 500-meter long course, but created an American mark of 8:01 1-5 for the previously unrecorded distance.

SETS FINE MARK

Miss Kight clipped 12 4-5 seconds from the 300-yard long course record and four-fifths of a second from the 300-meter mark. Both previous records had been held by Helene Madison and both had been established in San Francisco.

The Homestead girl's time for the 300-meters was 4:07 1-5 and for the 300 yards 3:45 1-5.

Dropping one second and four-fifths from the American backstroke 200-yard, Miss Bridges swam the distance in 2:48 flat and bettered one of the oldest swimming records. The backstroke feature had been established by the late Sybil Bauer in 1923 in New York.

Miss Bridges outswam Johanna Gorman, of Homestead, and Lisa Lindstrom, of New York, to capture her record. Miss Kight was paced in her event by Susan Robertson, of New York, a handicap swimmer.

OLD MARK FALLS

Miss Govednik, making her first Florida plunge for records, covered the 100-yard breast stroke in 1:21 flat, breaking Agnes Geraghty's mark of 1:25 1-5 set at Massapequa, L. I., in 1927. She also equaled Miss Geraghty's time for the 100 meters, 1:29 4-5, established in San Francisco in 1929.

Ralph Flannagan, of the Biltmore team, and holder of the national 500-yard free style, one mile and medley championship, equaled the 500-meter free style record of 6:40 2-5 set by Buster Crabbe at Honolulu in 1923.

Cool Weather Looms For Hearst Regatta

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 29.—Prospects of cooler weather to break a long stretch of summery temperatures, were welcomed today by boatmen gathering for the first Southwestern regatta for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, set for Sunday and Monday at Lake McQueeney, a few miles north of San Antonio. Snappy, clear weather will be ideal for racing, the drivers declare.

The greatest field ever gathered in the Southwest for a regatta is assured for the meet, and it will go on as scheduled, with six races Sunday and six Monday, in any kind of weather except an outright rainstorm.

Faces Test

ROBERT MADDEN

MADDEN FACES FRANK PARKER

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Tournament officials can congratulate themselves on the canny job they did in seeding players in the national indoor junior and boys' tennis championships, now in progress here.

Singles play had reached the quarter-final stage in both divisions today with six seeded stars still in the running for the junior title and seven for the boys' crown.

Frankie Parker, of Lawrenceville (N. J.) School, seeded No. 1 and overwhelming choice for junior honors, was paired against Robert Madden, of the University of Pittsburgh, No. 8.

Other pairings sent Joseph Abrams, of New York, No. 2, against Lester Steifberg, New York University; George Ball, of Northwestern, No. 4, against Gilbert A. Hunt, Massachusetts Tech, No. 7, and Russell Ball, Northwestern, against Jack Behr, Roxbury School, No 5.

Yesterday, Parker eliminated Barclay Kingman, of East Orange, 6-3, 6-1. Madden had a difficut time of it in putting out Carl Nesbit, of New York, 7-5, 6-4.

MARSHALL DEFEATED

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Indiana University's basketball quintet triumphed over Marshall College, of Huntington, in a fast game last night by a score of 36 to 20.

MATMEN GIVE LOCAL FANS GOOD SHOW

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Walter Neusel vs. Ray Impellitiere, 10 rounds; Reds Barry vs. Abe Feldman, 8 rounds, and Eddie Houghton vs. Lou Foster and Jack Pettifer vs. Leonard Dixon, 6 rounds each, Madison Square Garden, New York.

Don McCorkindale vs. King Levinsky, 10 rounds; Karl Ogren vs. Young Stubley and Jimmy Phillips vs. Billy Miller, 6 rounds each, and Frank Siglio vs. Frank Keevil, John Pasek vs. Frank Ketter and Adolph Winter vs. Bob Stone, 4 rounds each, Stadium, Chicago.

Jack Van Noy vs. Tom Patrick, 10 rounds, Hollywood, Cal.

Dutch Weimer vs. Max Maxwell, 10 rounds, San Diego, Cal.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Wrestling won itself many new friends and boosters with the show staged in the Arena on the North Side last night, in direct contrast to the first mat card held there some weeks ago. The crowd last night wasn't very large, being held down by the professional basketball opposition at Motor Square Garden and the cold weather, but the fans who were there went away speaking in glowing terms of the efforts of the matmen.

It was by long odds the best show presented here during the present revival, with no slugging at all in three of the bouts and a minimum of it in the others and with restrained comedy in only one. And the grapplers remained inside the ropes and confined themselves to getting, breaking and blocking holds.

CHRISTY STEALS SHOW

Although Jim Browning, one of the three claimants of the heavyweight championship, gave a fine exhibition in finally subduing a tough veteran, Stanley Pinto, of Nebraska, with his airplane scissors after 43 minutes 27 seconds in the main bout, a fair-haired young giant from Glendale, Cal., named Vic Christy, stole the show in wrestling to a draw with Len Macaluso, former Colgate football star, in the most interesting bout of the night. Two of the officials voted for a draw and one for Christy, who looks like one of the stars of the future in the mat game.

Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight boxing champion with a knockout punch, and Murray Braizin, of New York, the lightest men on the card, scaling 180 and 177 pounds, respectively, also pleased the fans with a snappy bout which Berlenbach won after 16 minutes 11 seconds with a double elbow lock. Paul, who was an Olympic wrestling champion before he took up boxing, showed a keen knowledge of holds and it was one of the cleanest and fastest matches seen here in a long time.

BROWNING GOOD MAN

Hans Kampfer, the German, won the referee's decision over Frank Bronowiecz in 30 minutes of tough going for both men, with one of the judges calling it a draw, and Ben Ginsberg threw Sid Nabors, of Memphis, with a body slam after 21 minutes 18 seconds in the opener.

Pinto gave Browning a good battle before he was worn down and fell a victim to a series of airplane spins, which left his shoulders touching the mat. The championship claimant demonstrated his durability and class throughout the grind and impressed as a good grappler. He meets Strangler Lewis in Philadelphia tonight.

WILLIGS LOSE TO CELTICS

The ambitious youngsters who compose the McKeesport Willig basketball team have something of which to be proud today. They played the famous Rosenblum Celtics, of Cleveland, at Motor Square Garden last night, and played them to a fare-the-well. They didn't win the game, but they stayed right up there with the veteran professionals and only lost out by six points, 34 to 28.

Had Timmy Lawry been able to play, the Willigs might have finished even closer. Lawry, regular forward, is suffering with an elbow injury.

Led by the sensational offensive work of Fred Crum, former Schenley High School star, at forward, and the great guarding of Don Smith, the Willigs topped the Celtics by a point at half time. They were ahead, 10 to 9, at the end of the first period and 15 to 14 at the intermission.

Crum scored 14 of the 15 points, and by adding a field goal in the final period, totaled 16 points for the night, almost twice as many as were recorded by Nate Hickey, high point man of the Celtics, who had nine. Smith kept Dutch Dehnert so busy that the famous pivot play failed to function properly, and the visitors were forced to take more than their usual quota of shots from far out.

In the third period, the Willigs found the pace too fast and weakened, and it was then that the Celtics piled up their commanding lead. The lineup:

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE BLIND NATURALIST—Francois Huber, of Switzerland (1750-1831), lost his eyesight at the age of 15. In spite of this affliction he devoted himself to the study of the life and habits of the bee. The result of his observations, in which the lack of sight must have been a heart-breaking obstacle, were incorporated in a book, which is considered a classic on the subject.

DUKES BATTLE ADRIAN FIVE TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Duquesne University's reserve basketballers are due to get in some good licks tonight as the Dukes make their third start of the campaign by taking on the Adrian College quintet on the Bluff court.

Adrian never has given the locals much trouble, in fact, the Michigan passers generally are listed under the set-up heading. They hardly can hope to furnish this year's Red and Blue machine with much opposition, unless they have a combination at least 300 per cent tougher and more formidable than Adrian teams that have shown here in the past.

TO START STARS

At that, Coach Chick Davies, of the locals, will start all of his available varsity performers and keep them in the action long enough to give 'em a workout. He won't use either Paul Birch or Jim MacDougall, both of whom are still members of the hospital list, but could be called upon for duty if the situation should, by some athletic miracle, demand. Feldman, Reiter and Moore will start, but need not anticipate a very tough or a very long evening. The Meyers, Murphys, Zerillas, Schneiders, Davies and other members of the reserve corps will be the lads who'll see the most service. The probable starting lineup follows:

DUQUESNE.		ADRIAN.
Feldman	F.	Gilles
Murphy	F.	Gouge
Meyers	G.	Woerner
Reiter	G.	Miller
Moore	G.	Crossland

CARLSON WORRIED

Meanwhile, Pitt's staggering varsity has Coach Red Carlson genuinely worried. The boys beat Minnesota the other evening, sure enough, but hardly deserved to. The passing still is wild as the wildest waves and the marksmanship is away off. Fortunately, the lads have been playing fair defensive ball, which was all that saved their bacon against the Gophers.

With Ohio State to be tackled tomorrow night, the afore-mentioned kinks must be ironed out. Consequently, a lineup shift is being contemplated, which will find Ted Roderick in at forward, McCamant back at a guard and Charley Hughes back on the bench.

Against Minnesota, it was Roderick and Johnny Noon who sparked the sluggish Pitt machine to the extent that it finished in front. Noon replaced Cribbs at center and came through in great fashion. Cribbs, however, is too valuable a cog to be spared and will remain at center.

COACH PUZZLED

The good Doctor can't understand why a team which should not have given him any trouble isn't clicking and he's determined, unless satisfactory results are shown tomorrow night, to take it apart and see what is causing the knock.

Frank Wolf, football and basketball coach at Waynesburg, has come up with a novel plan for educating the fans on the rules. During the coming semester, Wolf will conduct a weekly class in football and basketball rules, devoting one hour each week to discussing and explaining the technicalities of the laws. In announcing his plan, Wolf said:

"If the fans really understand the rules they will not only get much more enjoyment out of the game but will also cease the unjust practice of 'umpire baiting,' most cases of which result from incomplete knowledge of the rules by the spectators."

Cornell Poloists Boast Fine Mark

Eight victories in 13 starts is the brief but substantial record of the Cornell University polo team, which makes its bow to Hunt Armory galleries tomorrow night against the 107th Field Artillery Polo Association trio.

A team of stars, selected by Coach Paul Mazuzan, from the local teams comprising the Indoor Polo League, will be pitted against the Cornellians.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Jacksonville, Fla.—Simon Nebolsky defeated Lope Tenorio, 10 rounds.

At Tacoma, Wash.—Jimmy McLeod defeated Whitey Neal, 6 rounds.

At Houston, Tex.—George Salvadore defeated Manuel Quintero, 10 rounds.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Shining up his guns for a big hunting trip to Texas, Bill McKechnie, Boston Braves' pilot, took time out last night to discuss that $150,000 which Bill and his Boston colleagues are said to have offered the loose-leaf Red ownership for the services of Chick Hafey, de luxe hitter and ball hawk. Like a true Scot, Bill did not waste any words when he remarked:

"Maybe it sounds like stage money, but we really did offer Cincinnati the equivalent of better than $100,000 during the Chicago meetings. We were willing to give $50,000 in cash and Outfielders Hal Lee and Harry Mowry. We paid approximately $30,000 each for Mowry and Lee so you see we were not stinting in our offer."

Skipper Bill rightfully contended that the Boston inducements relative to the acquisition of Hafey were generous. Larry MacPhail and his associates have placed a tag marked $150,000 on the clever outfielder, which may sound a bit ridiculous. When Hafey comes to the business of signing his Cincinnati contract he will have a good selling point in referring to the princely sum which has been set upon his head. Will the Red owners then admit to Chick he is worth the money? If they do, the outfielder is in for a sugared salary from a club which is supposed to be on the financial rocks.

McKechnie also disclosed that he delivered an oration to J. Francis Hogan, before he left Boston last Fall, J. Francis ended the 1933 season with so much poundage he was afraid to look at a scales. Quoth Bill:

"Frank is a fine fellow, but I let him know without equivocation that he would have to reduce or depart. I really do get a kick out of watching Hogan eat until I realize he is one of my ballplayers. His breakfasts are banquets and when he has gone through a big dinner at night he usually winds up with a few orders of ice cream bathed in chocolate sauces."

Hogan, like a certain bad place, is paved with good intentions. He will promise his manager to read up on the diet question, but when he reaches a dining room or dining car he checks his dietetical books with his hat. Skipper Bill elaborated:

"I have tried persuasion and everything else, but I still see Shanty tieing into the chocolate sauce sundaes and the triple orders of cakes and sausage for breakfast. I advised him of the fine example shown by Spud Davis, of the Phillies, who was fast eating himself into a minor league berth when he obeyed the diet detour sign. Spud knocked off a cool 50 pounds one year and he is older than Hogan. He had a great season this year and should be a star for the Cardinals next season."

McKechnie, and his relative, Ray Zelt, of Little Washington, will be guests of Outfielder Randy Moore as they hunt around Texarkana. They leave tomorow. Moore is a native of that section of Texas. He is the same southpaw-swinging gent who hangs all those 'clotheslines" into rightfield at the expense of Pirate pitchers. Randy makes every day look like wash day when he does his stuff in Pittsburgh.

The Wilkinsburg citizen makes no secret of his hot desire to land Hafey, whom he considers one of the greatest players in the National League. The Braves need a punch and if McKechnie could offer, Hafey, Berger and Moore in the same pasture, the setup would resemble three bad wolves.

MONESSEN GRID FOES DROPPED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Greensburg, Carmichaels, Donora and Duquesne have been dropped from the 1934 Monessen High School football schedule, according to the tentative program announced today by Preston Ditty, athletic director of the Greyhounds.

Eight games have been listed for the Greyhounds with a possibility that two more will be added before the season gets under way. Four of the games already listed are with Class AA opposition, three with Class A rivals and one with a non-league team.

The four Class AA opponents are McKeesport, Jeannette, New Kensington and Charleroi. Donora, a Class A school and a Monongahela Big Five rival of Monessen, will not be played in 1934.

The season will open on September 22, yet to be filled. Another open date is November 3. The schedule follows:

Sept. 22	Open	Home
Sept. 29	McKeesport	Away
Oct. 6	Canonsburg	Home
Oct. 13	Jeannette	Away
Oct. 20	Roslyn	Home
Oct. 26	New Kensington	Home
Nov. 3	Open	Home
Nov. 10	Monongahela	Away
Nov. 17	California	Away
Nov. 29	Charleroi	Home

The Shady Side Academy passers will meet a team of alumni stars in the Shady Side gym this afternoon. The game is scheduled to get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

Fifth Avenue High School's quintet was defeated by the fast East Liverpool five at East Liverpool yesterday, 38 to 21, in a feature game of a somewhat curtailed scholastic program. In other games, Freedom defeated Evans City, 29 to 15, and Charleroi downed Latrobe, 37 to 21. The Fifth Avenue-East Liverpool lineup:

DUNLAP, WILSON RENEW DUEL

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., slender wearer of the national crown, and Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, won their semi-final matches prepared for a renewal in the annual mid-winter golf finals today of a rivalry dating back 10 years.

Dunlap advanced to the final round by defeating R. P. Davidson, of Washington, D. C., 4 and 3, while Wilson earned the right to meet the champion by overcoming Eric D. Thomson, St. Andrews, N. B., 4 and 3.

Their rivalry began when Dunlap, a regular winter resident of Pinehurst, was learning the game and playing in junior tournaments here a decade ago. Wilson then was playing at Southern Pines, six miles away. The youngsters have met five times in competition since their junior days.

N. C. A. A. to Discuss Athletic Finances

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP.)—One of the most persistent problems of the college sports world—how to retain a full athletic program without going into the hole financially—was the chief topic for discussion today as the National Collegiate Athletic Association opened its twenty-eighth annual meeting in Chicago.

SPEIGAL WINS, COLLAPSES

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Joey Speigal, 144½ of Uniontown, Pa., pounded out a 10-round decision over Frankie Bauer, 145, of Cleveland, in the main bout last night. Speigal, suffering throughout from carbuncles, collapsed after the verdict was rendered.

Law to Become Secretary to Lawes

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(INS.)—John Law, of Yonkers, captain of Notre Dame's champion football team of 1929, and more recently coach of the Sing Sing prison football team, is to become confidential clerk to Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison, it was made known today. He will succeed the late Nicholas J. Schatzel, who died recently.

Law, since his association with the football squad, has become so interested in penology that he had decided to make it his life's work. He gave his services free as coach of the prison football team, but will receive a salary as confidential clerk to the warden.

CLASSY SOCCER CARD AHEAD

By TOM BIRKS

Topped by the Morgan-Riehl amateur cup battle on Sunday and the annual American-born, foreign-born tussle on Monday, both scheduled for Greenlee Field, district soccer fans have a tasty holiday soccer dish coming to them.

Manager Dave Matthews and President Mosti, of the Morgan Club, decided to play the important game with the Riehls at Greenlee Field as it is impossible to handle the large crowd that is expected on an open field. The bitter rivalry between the clubs over a period of years usually comes to the fore in Cup tie tussles, and it is a well known fact that both clubs are primed for this particular tourney. The Riehls found the fates against them last week when Curry beat them in the final minute of the game in the West Penn eliminations, but Manager Hoffmann is looking for the breaks to favor his team this week.

On Monday the season's soccer classic finds the foreign-born stars seeking to snap the string of triumphs rolled up by the American-born players. The latter have won the last three games, and with another strong lineup primed for the battle, appear ready to make it four in a row. Such star performers as Polly, Van Jura, Villani, Mathews and Buff Donnelli will be in the homebred lineup.

When Heidelberg takes the field against Sturgeon in the West Penn cup game on Sunday, Joe Fagan, former Morgan star, will be in the lineup. It is another case of a player returning to his old love. Fagan was a member of the Heidelberg team when it won the national amateur championship, and his skill in directing a team will be helpful to the Green and Gold.

WESTROPE GETS 300TH WIN

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 29.—(AP.)—Johnny Westrope, the turf's ranking jockey from Baker, Mont., yesterday rode his three hundredth winner since January 1, when he scored with Outbound in the third race at Epsom Downs here.

Westrope, back in the saddle after a five-day suspension, is the first jockey to reach the 300 mark since Vincent Powers won 324 races in 1908. The all-time record of 388 was set by W. Miller in 1906.

The 17-year-old Montana apprentice originally had planned to leave Houston in time to be on hand for the opening of Tropical Park at Miami, Fla., tomorrow but changed his plans in order to have a better chance to reach his goal.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK CLOSE WITH NET CHANGES

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES STEADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Financial markets shuffled along a little wearily today notwithstanding brighter New Years vistas and the lessening of year-end tax selling pressure.

Stocks were exceptionally dull in the early hours, with frequent wide intervals between transactions. There was still a dribble of cash transfers for income statements, but these apparently had little effect on prices. Equities moved in a narrow range, generally, although there were scattered soft spots in evidence. Grains were a bit heavy, wheat losing a cent or more a bushel. Cotton and most other commodities were listless. The dollar recorded only minor fluctuations in foreign exchange dealings as no change was made in the domestic gold rate. Bonds about held their own.

Alcohol shares were given a little play at one time with National Distillers, United States Industrial and American Commercial getting up 1 to around 2 points.

The fact that the President, in his Wilson anniversary speech, did not touch on the administration's fiscal policies, was not surprising to Wall street, which is inclined to believe that this matter may be left for the Chief Executive's message to Congress. Favorable comment was heard, however, on the President's declaration that "the definite policy of the United States from now on is one opposed to armed intervention."

The financial district appeared to be giving more attention to business and industrial developments than to the monetary problem, although the latter is still considered of highest importance and details of the government's plans were being eagerly awaited.

Market commentators were impressed with the optimistic weekend trade reports. Dun & Bradstreet found the best volume of Christmas buying since 1928 in many districts and observed that "cheerfulness over the outlook is especially marked in country districts where the steady flow of checks to farmers co-operating with the AAA in the crop adjustment program has pushed buying power ahead."

PHILBIN BARES TACK BUYING

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Philip H. Philbin, Jr., California promoter, today told on the witness stand the story of how he acquired control of Atlas Tack Corporation as the state pressed its investigation into the market debacle of the stock two weeks ago.

Though hazy on some details, Philbin revealed how he came east from the Pacific Coast to find a company with a small capitalization and good prospects that he could buy with the moderate amount of capital at his command, build it up and make some money. Friends suggested Atlas Tack, and he finally got control after long negotiations and purchases of the stock in the open market, he revealed.

Philbin was the first and star witness at the opening of the public hearings in the state's probe.

Philbin detailed months of negotiations with partners of the brokerage house of Hornblower & Weeks, who had acquired control of Atlas Tack from Col. Henry H. Rogers, multimillionaire oil man, many years ago.

WHEAT CLOSES WEAK, DOWN

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—With all grain markets scheduled for a holiday Monday, and with the Liverpool market closed tomorrow, year-end adjustment of accounts weakened wheat prices today.

Declines in prices carried wheat in Chicago down to more than 3 cents under yesterday's top. Warmer weather with snow was predicted for a large part of the United States winter wheat belt and this tended to remove crop damage fears.

Wheat closed unstable, 2⅛ to 2⅝c below yesterday's finish, corn, 1¼ to 1⅞c down; oats, ⅞ to 1¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

TRADE LEADERS SEE GAINS FOR '34

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—1933 was good. 1934 is going to be better.

That is the concensus of a group of the nation's business leaders polls on the prospects of the new year.

While some temper their hopeful predictions with a question about currency and government expenditures, all are supporting the new deal in government and most are doing more than that.

The forecasts are moderate in their expectations and all cite the need for certain fundamental changes and developments.

Practically all lines of endeavor are covered, from automobiles and electrical equipment to retail merchandising, and each leader in that field cites the development needed to bring full recovery in his particular field.

PRICES IMPROVED

The following are the views of the coming year of these business leaders.

PERCY S. STRAUS, President R. H. Macy & Co.—The volume of retail business in 1934 will depend on the ability of the consumer to pay the prices resulting from the increased costs of production, manufacturing, and distribution.

As of today, these prices have been advanced far more than has the income of the consumer. Therefore, the outlook for retail business for 1934 depends on one of three factors:

First—To what extent the trend of advancing prices may be slowed down.

Second—To what extent business revival may continue and lead to larger consumer purchasing power; and Third—Whether there is latent consumer power which has not been effective owing to lack of confidence.

BERNARD F. GIMBEL, President Gimbel Brothers, Inc.—I am convinced that there will be a betterment of business conditions during the coming year. There is now a definite commitment by the government for the purchase of steel and other basic commodities to be used in the public works program, which is now well under way.

Added to this improvement, there has been a decided spurt in the past few months in retail sales.

WORLD STATUS BETTER

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR., President General Motors Corporation—Irrespective of how we may react individually to the various economic proposals of the year, dramatic as they have been and full of possibilities in their influence on our future, to my mind one fact rises above the mass of conjecture, theories and experiments that we have before us. That fact is the world at large materially improved its position, and has been improving it for over a year.

GERARD SWOPE, President General Electric Company—The problem of today is to have a greater revival in the capital goods industry, which has felt the increase but little, and with all the experiments that are being made and the hopeful and constructive attitude being shown, we are looking forward with confidence that 1934 will be a better year than 1933 in employment and in industry.

EMPLOYMENT EXPANDS

COLBY M. CHESTER, President General Foods Corporation—A review of the food industry for the year just ended shows that the industry was able to make an increasingly important contribution to the stability of general business conditions.

At the beginning of the year a government index on employment in food processing plants stood at 79.6, while at the end of the third quarter it had advanced to 93.9. A substantial increase in payrolls during this period was also indicated.

DAVID SARNOFF, President, Radio Corporation of America—American industry faces 1934 with the confidence that many of the readjustments and transitions of the past year will have lasting influence and value.

A. W. ROBERTSON, Chairman, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company—Business this year is about equal to that of last year and next year should show some substantial improvement. We expect general business conditions to improve.

Income Tax Cutting Is No Crime

By B. C. FORBES

Mr Forbes

MUCH BUNK has been written about men who have utilized legal means to avoid paying large income taxes.

Do you pay the butcher, the grocer or the baker more than you are entitled to pay? I don't. Why should anyone pay Uncle Sam more than the law calls for?

The United States Supreme Court declares in the most clear-cut language that every citizen is entitled to employ every legitimate means to cut down his tax payments.

UNDER the existing law a husband and wife can file separate income tax returns. Many wealthy couples do this in order to escape paying the higher surtaxes which would have to be paid if only one return were prepared—income tax rates, you know, become stiffer and suffer as income rises.

The Supreme Court offers no objection to this or any other legal tax-reducing strategy. This august body once officially declared:

"The stamp act of 1862 imposed a duty of two cents upon a bank check, when drawn for an amount not less than $20. A careful individual, having the amount of $20 to pay, pays the same by handing to his creditor two checks of $10 each. He thus draws checks in payment of his debt to the amount of $20, and yet pays no stamp duty. . . . He resorts to devices to avoid the payment of duties, but they are not illegal. He has the legal right to split up his evidences of payment, and thus to avoid the tax."

ON OTHER occasions the Supreme Court has absolved from odium citizens who conceived methods, within the law, to cut or avoid tax levies. Thus:

"When the law draws a line, a case is on one side of it or on the other, and if on the safe side is none the worse legally that a party has availed himself to the full extent of what the law permits."

WHY SHOULD it be accounted disgraceful for one citizen to handle his affairs in such a way that he legally escapes a tax burden while it is accounted not in the least disgraceful for United States Senator James Couzens or any other wealthy individual to escape income tax exactions by investing in tax-free bonds? (Senator Couzens has never denied that the great bulk of his huge fortune is thus invested.)

Any tax-cutting or tax-evading device which is legal cannot reasonably be condemned, whether the device is investing in tax-free securities or takes some other form.

CONGRESS will be called upon to formulate changes in the federal income tax law.

The perennial cries, "soak the rich!" "soak business!" are again beginning to ring throughout the land.

If our law-makers are wise, they will act on no such short-sighted, futile, abortive principle. All history has proved that when excessive rates are levied, receipts fall rather than rise.

LET CONGRESS intelligently close up every possible inequitable loophole in income tax statutes in order that there may be a minimum of unjust evasion.

But instead of attempting to "soak" business or industry or the wealthy, let our lawmakers ponder past experience and let them adopt a sales tax and/or some other feasible plan for garnering revenue rather than prescribing impossibly high surtaxes which citizens enjoying generous incomes know so well how to dodge.

OUR TAX-LEVIERS should be guided by a sense of fairness, justice, practicability rather than by a spirit of blind vindictiveness which would prove ineffectual.

OPERATOR 13

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

They walked on through the moonlight and came to a cabin which was dark, but a dog barked at them and they managed to arouse a white man who came carrying a lighted lantern to the door.

"Here," said the girl, 'is a Confederate officer who has been hurt."

The man pointed to his own bed; and they laid John Gailliard upon it and looked at him in the lantern light.

"Reckon he ain't bad hurt," said the man. "Looks lak he'd had a tumble."

"Have you a good horse?" asked the girl.

"Yaas'm, lady."

"How many?"

"Jes' one hoss an' a mewl, ma'am. Ole mewl travel right smart."

Writes Message

"How much do you want for the horse?"

"Ah ain't cravin' to trade, ma'am."

"You'd better. The cavalry will take him, anyway. Better sell him to us."

"Jes' lak you say, ma'am," he replied with humble resignation.

"What is your name?"

"Colford Brexton."

"How much do you ask for your horse?"

"Three thousand, he's wuth, madam. Ole mewl travel right smart."

She pulled from her pocket a handful of almost useless Confederate bills. From these she took six $1,000 notes and handed them to the man. Then she produced pencil and paper and by the vague lantern light wrote quickly:

"Gen. Winder, Provost Marshal General, Richmond—Capt. John Gailliard of the Confederate secret service has been hurt and is suffering from a slight concussion of the brain. Send an ambulance for him to Colford Brexton's house. Ask Vespasian Chancellor to show the ambulance driver the way and tell him, also, that Miss Cleburne sends her compliments and hopes he is in health."

She handed the note to the Brexton, who was trying to give back to her the extra three thousand, which were worth about a hundred dollars in silver.

"No," she said, "they are to pay you for saddling your mule and taking this letter to Gen. Winder, in Richmond. Will you do it at once?"

"Yaas'm, lady. An' Ah thank you kindly an' feel beholden."

Tears filled his eyes, and he looked at John Scobell, who had discovered the horse and the saddle and rope bridle and stirrups, and was equipping the beast in the stable.

Operator 13 bent over in the lantern light and looked down into John Gailliard's eyes, which were open. He could have heard every word that had been said, if his battered senses permitted him to understand. She was wondering now, just how much he had understood. His gaze remained expressionless.

"Goodbye, darling," she murmured, and bent down and kissed him.

Soldiers Weary

Into his pale, boyish face came a flicker of amusement. He said distinctly: "You can't be too many kinds of people to suit me, you know, because I fall in love with every damn one of them."

* * *

Masses of men in gray, slushing along; a silvery gray world, crawling, alive with them. Ahead, alone, an old man on a wet horse.

Slop, slop, slop over sodden, dull-red roads trudged the weary rebel infantry; slap-squash-slap across soggy fields tramped the tired cavalry.

"Cl'ar away yore swing team thar," officers were calling to drenched gunners. Crash! Another wagon collapsed. Wet men dragging debris toward the brimming ditch where a drowned corpse lay, naked feet protruding.

"All clear forward?"

A far, thin cry in the rain: "All cl'ar!"

"March! March!" in whispering, wheezy voice, hoarse with coughing. A green and white guidon, uncased; a square red battle flag, both soaked black, then grayness and rain.

When the 44th Virginia battalion of the provost guard had passed, a trooper in the rear turned his jaded horse, drew his revolver and swung out into the roadside woods, shouting: "I see you-all malingerin,' an' skulkin' thar! Git up an' quit yore hidin' out on me."

"If you can't catch 'em shoot 'em," croaked an officer, forcing his muddy horse through quicksand which yesterday had been a plowed field.

He spurred forward through the rain; the gray-jacketed provost trooper rode straight on into the woods, menacing unseen stragglers with the wrath of his poised pistol. A long swale choked with cat briers, where a perfume of jasmine lingered, barred his way. He rode around this, turned his horse to the right and suddenly spurred him up a rocky slope where bushes, tipped with green, dotted the more open woods.

Here somebody in the thickets called out: "Campbell! Campbell!" and the trooper answered cautiously: "All same, Thirteen! Where are you?"

Smart Uniform

Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service came through the drenched bushes leading two lively horses, one of which was saddled. She was dressed in a short cavalry jacket welted with bright yellow braid, and she wore the spurred boots and breeches of a Union trooper. Over one ear a blue forage cap was cocked, the chin strap of which she had taken between her white, restless teeth.

"Well," he said, "it looks like the Johnnies are breaking."

"Campbell," she said excitedly, "I have my bundle of news all tied up tight! Let's get on to H. Q.!"

"Have those rebel scouts passed through us?" he demanded.

"No. Two horses have been through to Gravelly Run full speed, and have returned. You can see their hoof tracks and judge their speed for yourself. Over there on the wood road. Here's a lively horse for you, Campbell. Come on!"

Campbell, Sheridan's chief scout, got off the tired, mud-plastered Confederate mount he bestrode and set about transferring the saddle and bridle to the fresh, alert horse which the girl had brought to him.

"Gosh," he grunted, "I've been starving to death with the rebel provost guard. Forty-fourth Virginia Battalion; just got clear o' them. I guess the hoof marks you saw were made by those fast horses that Chancellor and John Gailliard are riding." He puffed and grunted, cinching his saddle, talking all the while. "I've been trying to catch those fellows alone, so's I'd stand a chance of getting away—afterward."

Horrifying Thought

"What do you mean?" she asked, nervously.

"So's I could shoot 'em and get away."

"Shoot them!" she repeated. "You had no such order, Campbell!"

"What do you know about my orders? Your colonel isn't my boss."

"Sheridan gave you no such order," she repeated.

"Sheridan told me to bar the West to them."

"They didn't try to break through!"

"Well," he grunted, "it's healthy for them—and for me, too—that they didn't. Becuz I made up my mind to shoot and hang before I'd let 'em through to Joe Johnston and Kirby Smith. You'd have done it yourself, ma'am, and I guess we ain't neither of us hunting for the hangman."

The girl, who had turned pale, watched him lengthen his stirrups in silence.

"The next time Gailliard and Chancellor take the White Oak road," he said, "they'll run into Sheridan. And, by God, they'll learn then that there's no road out of Petersburg and Richmond for Lee's army."

"Have the Petersburg lines broken?"

"Bending back, ma'am. Cracking up. Giving way. That was Early's corps I've been traveling with. Me, a rebel policeman! Can you see me? They're dead on their feet, too. You watch Phil Sheridan stop 'em! No more running away now. No galloping off to old Joe Johnston! They gotta stay and be gobbled."

Hunting an Escape

He climbed into his soaked saddle, swearing at the split rawhide, tested the girth, fussed with both stirrups while his new Yankee horse danced under him.

"Yes, ma'am," he said, "that's what Gailliard and Chancellor are up to. Looking for a clear road to the west for Lee through Gravelly Run. Soon's I get to Sheridan there won't be any clear road. No more skedadling. The rebel army stays right here in Virginia and takes its medicine!"

He was ready to go now. He thanked her politely for making the dangerous contact.

She said: "If they leave Petersburg it's going to be a foot race to the West between our army and theirs."

"My God," he exclaimed, "if you'd only seen the division I traveled with you'd know which army is bound to win a foot race! They're starving, I tell you; they're dead on their feet; 30,000 galvanized dead men are marching. You know, ma'm, they're really a damn fine lot. Why not? They're Americans. Same's you and me. Well, I can see the end of the world a-coming. They'll see it, too, on the White Oak road, I guess."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When pimples first appear, that is the time to fight them. Rub tincture of green soap into the skin; adding warm water to fluff up a lather. It contains alcohol which enters the pores, softens sebaceous deposits, removes atmospheric dust. Place over the face—while the soap is on—a large wash cloth which has been wrung out of hot water. Give the skin a steaming. Rinse, dry, apply a saturate solution of boric acid.

Nervous, high-strung, highly energized women are the ones who suffer most from excessively oily hair. The skin all over the body, as well as on the scalp, is inclined to be moist. Nerves leaping round: that's what does it. Melt the soap, add a small quantity of borax, not more than a saltspoon (I did not say teaspoon) to a cup of rich suds. Use three soapings, have four rinsings—start with a rinsing. Don't brush the hair until it is thoroughly dry.

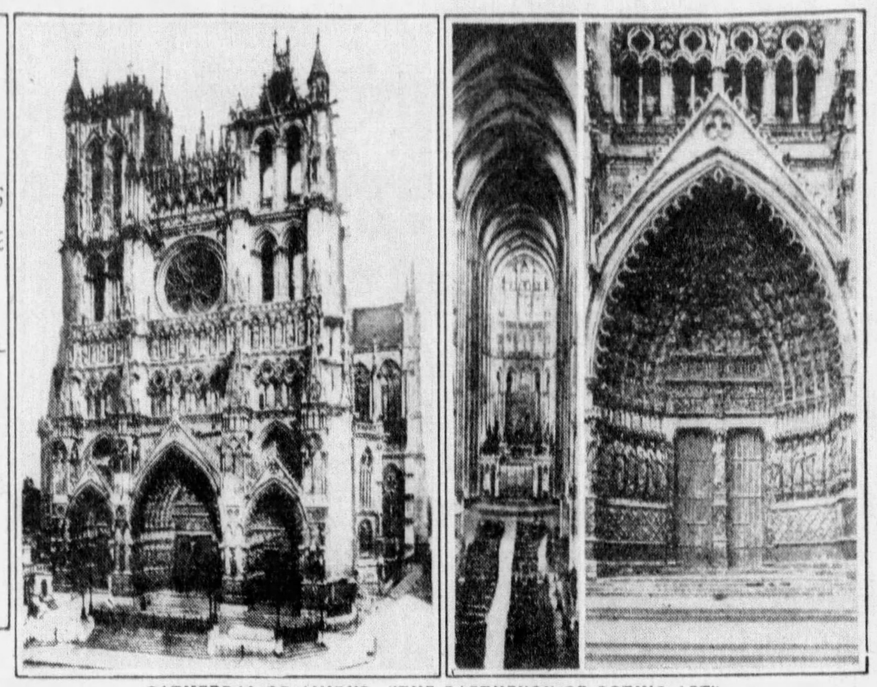
GOTHIC ART—ITS ELEMENTS IN ARCHITECTURE

Gothic art arose in France in the twelfth century, culminated in the thirteenth, and flourished up to the close of the fifteenth century, spreading all over Europe, Asia Minor and Greece.

Gothic architecture adapted itself to buildings of every purpose; it attained in the cathedral its supreme beauty; profusely applying all formative fine arts, became expression of medieval civilization.

Characteristics of Gothic architecture: Pointed arch; ogival, intersecting vault; buttressed walls; nave, choir, transepts are high, aisles lower; flying buttresses of nave over roofs of aisles; windows grouped under arched head with plate tracery which is used decoratively all over wall.



CATHEDRAL OF AMIENS—"THE PARTHENON OF GOTHIC ART"

The Cathedral of Amiens was begun again (after destruction of the original) in 1221—when France attained a leading place in Europe—and was finished 67 years later. Its perfect proportions, soaring shafts and the enormous, lightly poised vault lend an "ethereal" effect to this finest example of French Gothic. Above: Front view, interior and one entrance.

GOTHIC ART IN SCULPTURE

Gothic architecture required, first, ornamental decoration; later statuary also. Great cathedrals are adorned by almost innumerable statues and reliefs fused into a harmonious whole. As Gothic art progressed toward perfection, its requirements in sculptural values became higher, reaching a level of balance and calm serenity similar to that of the Greeks under Pericles. Above: Christ and Madonna of the Cathedral of Amiens, and the "Well of Moses," by Claux Sluter (? 1405), in Dijon.

GOTHIC IN ITALIAN PAINTING—DAWN OF RENAISSANCE

Cimabue (1240?-1302?), in Florence, "Father of Italian Painting," softened the rigidity of Byzantine style, infusing his figures with more life.

Giotto (1276?-1337) the shepherd boy and pupil of Cimabue, was founder of the Florentine school, the most important in the quatrocento (fourteenth century). Lacking knowledge of anatomy and perspective, he exhibits great sense of form, facility of design, charm, harmony, purity of colors. Right: Head of Giotto's Christ.

Fra Angelico (1387-1455), a monk, first used systematically classical forms and landscape that can be identified. With great religious feeling he expressed the inner life of soul. Last disciple of Giotto, he was the first harbinger of Raphael. The "Deposition," above," excels in intensity of sentiment, sincerity of expression.

Everybody Must Have Been Healthy

One thing we learned from Washington inquiries is how a promoter can run a shoestring three times around the world and tie it into a lover's knot at the finish.

You start with an idea. Then you elect officers for the idea. After that you print certificates for the jolly old public. This gives you a working capital of three million dollars. Not including the sick benefits.

You call up a Wall street financier on the telephone and say, "It's me again."

He organizes a holding company that takes everything over. Including the public.

That squeezes everybody out of the original company and you reorganize for a hundred million depreciated buttons. A third company swallows the second company. The result is a huge block of securities. You toss them on the market for the public. And once again the burned child kisses the hot stove.

The investor has to buy into all three corporations in order to see what's happening to him. It's like an operation without an anesthetic.

The promoters cast their bread upon the waters. But they load it with pig iron to make it sink quick.

We got tangled up in one of those stock certificate scrambles and managed to paper a neat kitchen. The boys seemed to elect officers every three weeks. And we don't know what the holding company held. But we do know it wasn't the bag.

That's finances of the very thickest slices. We don't claim it was crooked. But they certainly slapped the vacuum cleaner on the landscape.

Five years later we discovered everything when Mr. Pecora started polishing up his legal question marks. Say, a turtle could get away with that kind of a start.

Five years later we knew all. It was one of the prettiest consolation prizes we ever saw balanced on a gravedigger's shovel.

Why did they wait five years for the investigation? We will never know the answer to that.

Well, anyway, we know there is only one item to be cleaned up. Who got the sick benefits?

The Tax Muddle

The City's Financial Difficulty Suggests the Need of a Reduction in Expenditures

Of the $18,519,649 which Pittsburgh expected to raise this year by the municipal tax on real estate, only $13,251,728 had been collected up to the first of this month.

Mayor-elect W. N. McNair talks of asking the police and firemen to accept due bills on delinquent taxes in lieu of their salaries next month. He proposes that the city employes shall go to persons who are delinquent in their taxes and ask them to cash the bills. The bills are then to be applied to the payment of the delinquent taxes. It does not sound very promising.

The Legislature passed a bill waiving penalties and interest on delinquent taxes if paid within a stipulated time.

The National Municipal League reports that the effect of such a concession in other cities has not been as expected. Instead of stimulating delinquents to pay their back taxes, it has encouraged them to look for further concessions.

City Council asked Gov. Pinchot to grant a hearing on this bill before approving it. The Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League, which sponsored the bill, opposed Council's request, and was informed yesterday there would be no hearing.

The National Municipal League reports that cities that have granted no concessions, other than to let taxes be paid in installments, but have seized property and offered it for sale if the taxes were not paid, have collected more than 90 per cent of the levy, as compared with Pittsburgh's 72 per cent.

Mr. McNair threatens to seize and sell property of the Denny Estate on which taxes are delinquent. A real estate authority says that of 1,200 houses owned by the Denny Estate 600 are occupied by destitute families unable to pay rent and 300 are vacant. That should be given some thought before seizing the property.

The difficulty of finding buyers who would offer anything like a reasonable price is also to be considered.

The whole situation, in sum, presents difficulties which make very pertinent the question if the expenses of local government, and the taxes to meet these expenses, should not be reduced to a point at which it would be possible for the citizens to pay them.

Let overlapping offices be pruned; let duplication of duties be eliminated; let political parasites be dismissed from the municipal payroll; let methods of transacting local governmental business that have come down to us from oxcart days be modernized—and such savings will be effected that the taxpayers may be able to meet their obligations.

An Honorable People

The Italians' Acknowledgment of Their Debt Is in Pleasant Contrast to French Repudiation

Bitter for France must be Mussolini's statement, printed in the Hearst papers on December 24, affirming Italy's obligation for her war borrowings.

No fetid reasoning, such as France employs to gloss her defaults, blows across the words of the Italian Premier. The idea of repudiation he repels. It has no place in his philosophy.

"My government," says Premier Mussolini, "has given proof of its good will by again recognizing its debt to the United States and by effecting just now a payment of one million dollars, just to show how, in contrast with some countries, it does not intend to consider the problem of debts to America canceled through a simple sophism of procedure.

"My country does not forget the voluntary and generous intervention by the United States during the war, and it takes into due account, even in these moments of hardship and depression, that obligations of honor have a character of sanctity which must be respected and also fulfilled within just and reasonable limits."

These are the words of a responsible statesman and of an honorable people. They constitute a sermon for the world, and are a timely contribution of the greatest value to the peace of the world.

Mankind can never hope to overcome the menace of war and the burdens of armament unless international dealings are based firmly and unshakably upon the integrity of peoples and the determination of nations to perform their obligations—not to flout them like absconders.

And there is a note in Mussolini's utterance which goes straight to the heart of the American people—a note of generous acknowledgment of our help in the war.

Americans have no wish to exaggerate their part in the rescue of Italy or any other nation involved in the European cataclysm. We cannot forget, however, the tragic appeals which were made for our aid. We remember that we did our utmost to respond to those appeals, sparing neither men nor treasure, and voluntarily imposing upon ourselves the burden of a huge debt and countless and long continuing sacrifices and restrictions.

It is pleasant to us, even consoling—with France, the most beholden to us of any of the nations of Europe, repudiating her debt and callously disowning our aid—to hear the great Italian people saying through the powerful voice of such a spokesman as Mussolini, that "THE VOLUNTARY AND GENEROUS INTERVENTION BY THE UNITED STATES DURING THE WAR" IS NOT FORGOTTEN BY HIS COUNTRY.

A New Housing Director

The Slum Clearance Movement in Pittsburgh Is Under Vigorous Leadership

Joseph P. Tufts, whose appointment as director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, to succeed John Ihlder, was announced yesterday by M. W. Acheson, Jr., president of the association, assumes charge at a time when interest in the slum clearance movement is great.

It is fortunate that a man of his vigor, enthusiasm and familiarity with local conditions has been found to take up this work.

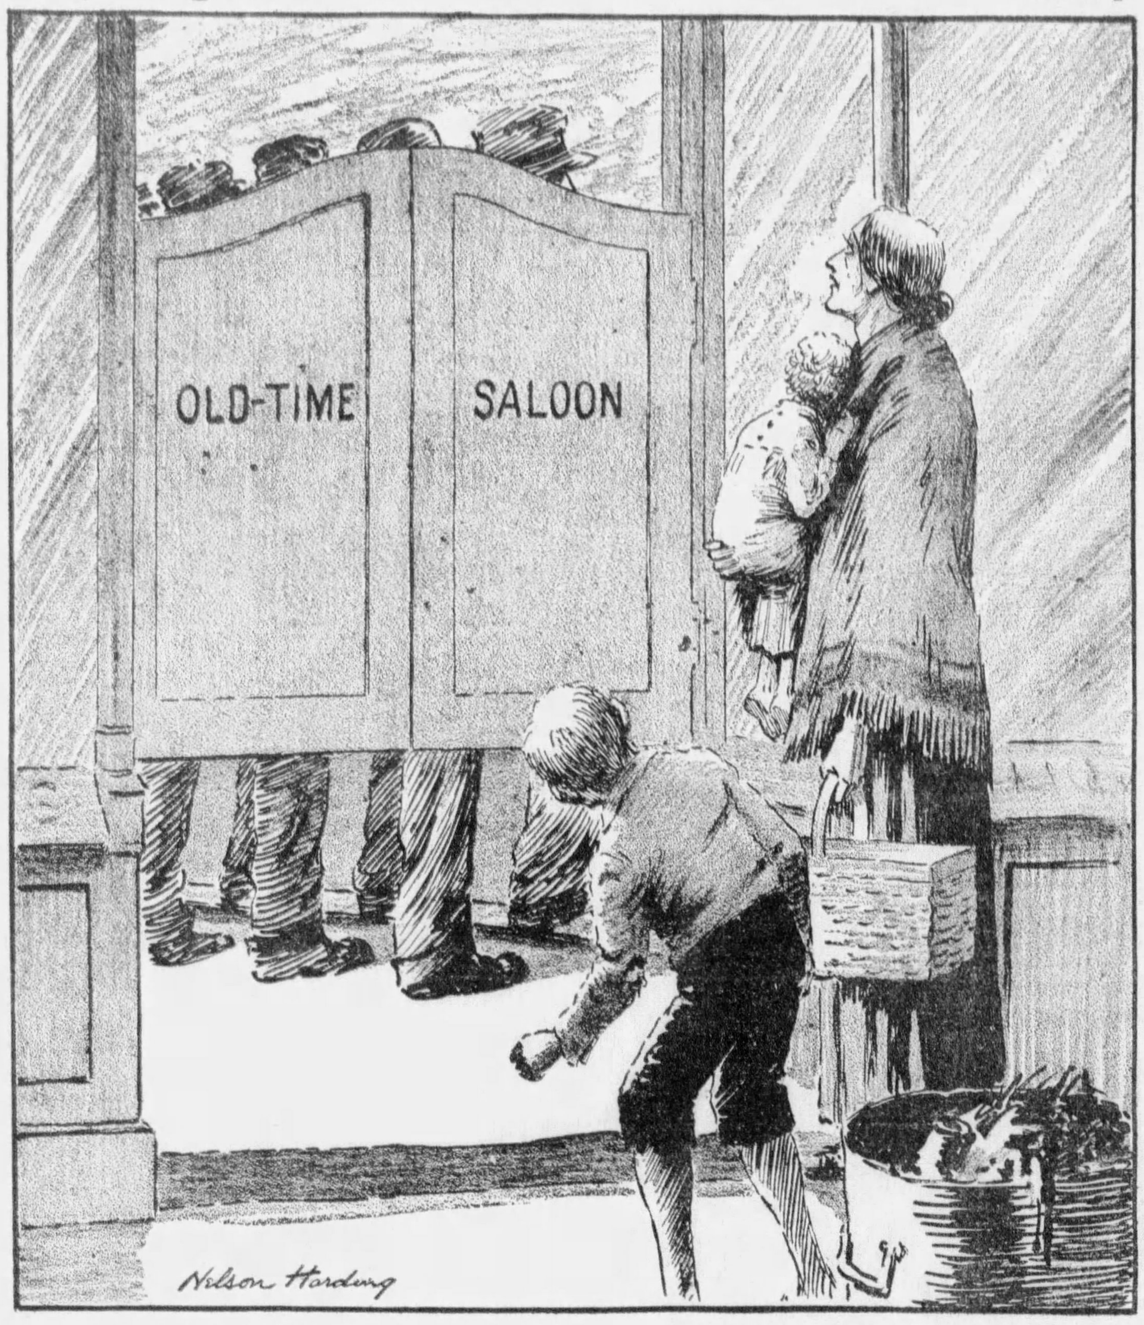
The movement to provide clean, comfortable homes for Pittsburghers with small incomes probably never had more vigorous leadership than it now has.

The Health Department's subcommittee on housing, headed by Charles F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, which planned and constructed Chatham Village, is rendering good service. And the social welfare agencies are helping.

With the Roosevelt administration at Washington and the new municipal administration strongly committed to slum clearance, it will be surprising if Pittsburgh does not make great progress in this direction during the coming year.

Pay Night

By Nelson Harding



This was the pathetic picture
All too often seen on pay night
When the old saloon or barroom
Stood on almost every corner
Where the workers spent their wages,
While the worried wives and children,
With an empty market basket,
Waited while the wages vanished.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Thoughts while strolling: Don Herold thinks one thing may be said of baldness—it's neat. Barbara Hutton suggests a young version of Queen Marie. What became of Pearl Regay? Konrad Bercovici's name sounds like the sudden burst of a steam pipe.

One word description of Alexander Woollcott—twirpy. Peggy Joyce with two South Americans and a glum look. Judge Seabury looks as though he'd give ice a chill. But people say he's lots of fun. I'd like to hear him and Charles Evans Hughes in a getting-off-things mood.

Joseph V. Connolly, a New Haven (Conn.) boy, who made good in the city. Wellington Cross, a ha!, is getting a sprinkle of gray here and there, too. You'd never think Kenyon Nicholson wrote that rowdy sailor play.

One of my favorite people—Pierre V. R. Key. Texas Guinan's white-haired parents. H. L. Mencken thinks the fun will begin when thrifty people finally grasp that their savings have vanished to make it easier for the wasteful and debt ridden. Hope Williams speaks all her lines alike.

What's become of the fellows who used to grab little boys and give them a Dutch rub? Lindy, the cafe man, is a ringer for Mayor La Guardia. Chevalier and George Gershwin have identical undershot chins. I like that Russian word "kapoot"—won't work. Broadway swank: "Hi Hat Ballroom—100 Hostesses."

* * *

Damon Runyon, who has given more of Broadway's real flavor to his stories, films, etc., than any other writer of his generation, is an after midnight prowler for the shifting lights and shadows so ingrained in his work. I hear he's an occasional dropper in at all-night lunch wagons, those beacons, net-wise at the foot of many streets, where wanderers, fly-by-nights, panderers and coke sniffers gather.

Ladies of the evening, as well as others who lived lightly, usually salted surpluses in diamonds. And are they glad! The majority were forced to hold on to their "rocks" through the lowest dips of the depression or sacrifice them at tremendous losses. During the let-down, diamonds sunk to unbelievable low prices. Pawn shops would advance but 10 per cent of ordinary values. But now diamonds are soaring up, up and up.

Sam McKee, ex-newspaperman and magistrate court clerk, to say nothing of a perpetual guest at hassenpfeffer, venison and suckling pig banquets, has been admitted to the New York bar. McKee is also an expert on machine gun ballistics. As chief gunner of a machine gun squadron with the Kentucky militia he learned to rat-a-tat his initials on vagrant barns. He now experts at machine gun gang trials.

Roy McCardell's literary dugout in West 47th street is a rendezvous for a polyglot assortment—from headlines to what-nots. Otto Kahn may pop in, filch a cigaret from Roy's typist and be off again. Or Police Inspector Kerr—call it "Care" or fight—may hop off a life saving Emergency Division motor truck for a gab fest. Al Woods, Joe Humphreys, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and now and then Ellis Parker Butler are there. McCardell, used to grinding out oceans of copy in the clackety furore of a city room, is unmindful of the chirruping. He functions best in uproar.

Christopher Morley has noticed the fruit vendors who seem to be on the fringe of every crowd listening to a hot gospeler discuss atheism. And observes: "Theology and argument always lead to the apple, with which they began."

Arthur McKeogh, a member of the Lost Battalion, and decorated for bravery, wandered out of a theater between acts recently for a cigaret and strolled back into a theater three doors away. Confused by the strange lobby, he looked about bewildered. The manager, recognizing him, inquired: "What is this—a habit!"

Fred Keating, magician, who has become the stage's sophisticate, winnows his biggest laugh in a brittle-thin comedy of American manners in the Latin Quarter with this: The scene is a Montparnasse bistro. An Armenian rug peddler, decorated with his wares, drifts in. Keating spins him about and heads him with a push toward the boulevard from whence he came with: "Listen, I liked 'The Green Hat' all right, but your last book was terrible!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do Women Age Sooner Than Men?

Why do women age sooner than men?

Or do they?

Mr. James Allen—age 49, traveling salesman of Des Moines, Iowa—is asking. Jim's been away from the Old Town for four years. Last month he came back to see the folks—and walked into a big surprise.

Or course he'd expected changes. New buildings, new businesses, new gang running things. Nothing unusual in that. But his friends—surely they'd be about the same. After all, he'd only been away four years.

And he was right—about the men. Tom and Harry, Dick and Al, no particular change in them. A little grayer about the temples, a little fatter about the waist. But in the main, the same old boys. Gay or grouchy as they'd always been; quick or slow on the comeback.

But the women! What had happened to the wives and mothers he'd known—the girls he'd gone through school with—whom he'd seen married—at whose pleasant homes he'd visited until they were thirty-five, forty, forty-five.

Suddenly, in those brief four years, they'd aged 20!

And it wasn't just in looks, or in health. A man over 40 lost his collegiate lines as fast as a woman—accumulated aches and wheezes, wrinkles, gray hairs, double chins. No, it was something deeper than looks or health; something in the spirits of the women themselves that had changed.

No matter how his men friends had changed in looks or health, they were still hitting on all eight—

BUT THE WOMEN SEEMED HALF DEAD.

Or rather, they seemed to have quit living. Deliberately quit. Settled down.

Not all of them, of course. Oddly enough, the women who'd seemingly had the hardest time of it—the women who had been out on the battle line instead of sitting pretty at home—still seemed all there; were as interested, as enthusiastic, as understanding as the men. But the girls his friends had married—they'd taken the count. And Jim wants to know why?

WHY SHOULD A MODERN WOMAN AGE SO MUCH QUICKER THAN MEN?

WHY SHOULD SHE LOSE HER GRIP ON LIFE—"SETTLE DOWN" INTO A SMUG OR SOUR INDIFFERENCE?

WHY CAN'T SHE KEEP STEPPING ALONG WITH HER MAN, MENTALLY, AS LONG AS THEY LIVE?

AND IF SHE DOESN'T, IS IT ANY WONDER IF HE TIRES OF HER?

Hard questions. Several million bored and heckled husbands would like to know the answer. So would several million bitter, weary wives.

For here's a problem that's still putting the moan in matrimony, just as it did ten thousand years ago. And for why?

Easy enough to tell why a wife in 3000 B. C. aged sooner than her husband. Wives were beasts of burden then—or barred slaves. They had no interests in common with their husbands; no education no enlivening place in their world.

But the modern American wife has everything it takes to keep alive. Fun—freedom—as good a chance to click with the Status Quo as her man.

Then why does she quit at forty, while he still keeps going? As—barring professional women—she so often does.

OR PERHAPS YOU DENY THAT.

PERHAPS YOU THINK THE AVERAGE AMERICAN WOMAN OF FORTY-FIVE IS AS MENTALLY ALERT AS THE AVERAGE AMERICAN MAN?

If so, what's your Exhibit A?

In either case, let's have your argument.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Headaches and Heartaches

Now that liquor is legal and respectable again, the quaint old fashion of "swearing off" on New Year's Day may be revived. Lots of men never would have dreamed of taking a drink, if they hadn't regarded it as "devilish," and will be relieved not to be forced to go on acquiring headaches.

When a woman thinks that she needs a psychoanalyst, you can safely gamble that what she really needs is a new love-interest.

Sometimes, the only thing that the old-fashioned wife had to look forward to was the hope of collecting the insurance and a chance to wear becoming mourning; but that was before the days of alimony and Reno.

No matter what his mirror tells him, any limpid-eyed golddigger can persuade a man that his triple chin and his bald-spot are invisible, and that her vision of Prince Charming is a portly gent who looks like Santa Claus.

To be happy in this life, a woman needs the optimism of a child, the unfailing charm of Ninon de L'Enclos, the chic of a manikin, the diplomacy of a prime minister, the nerves of a cold potato, the wisdom of Solomon and the complacency of a prize cat.

What the average girl appears to be looking for, at 17, is a glorified being, with all the charm of Clark Gable, the figure of a prize-fighter, the glamour of Lindbergh, the generosity of Santa Claus and the income of a bootlegger. What luck—that she never finds him!

At this time of year, a bachelor is the stronger vessel filled with suspicion. He looks upon every gift from a woman as either a snare, a bid or a bore. You just can't PLEASE him!

To the average man, love is a matter of mood; marriage a matter of chance; and a wife, a matter of speculation.

No matter how many other men may send her orchids and burnt offerings, ONE man's indifference on Christmas Day can spoil a girl's life for the whole holiday week.

Isn't It So?

Some runabouts run about a block and stop.

The success of some men is derived from selfishness.

More people would eat spinach if there were a law against it.

The more work a woman does on her face, the less she does around the house.

The Interesting Career of Mack Sennett, Movie Director, Now Bankrupt

By Edwin C. Hill

THE man whose life has been a pattern of contrasts, who opened the road of celebrity and wealth to more motion picture stars than David Wark Griffith, even, is broke, bankrupt, his millions dissipated by one of those twists of fate which wreck the anticipation of even the wisest of men. Mack Sennett owes $925,000, with only $16,000 to match against the colossal debit.

One of the most arresting personalities in the fantastic world of the screen, he was a blacksmith with a voice in Canada when he came to New York in his early twenties. He came to sing, to sing in opera, but he found that door closed against him. So he became a boilermaker for a time to pay for music lessons. Then he went to the old Biograph Studio in the days of Griffith and acted small parts for $3 a day.

And presently the star of Hollywood, rising very dimly over the horizon of events, drew him westward. Somehow, some way, he found the means to acquire a lot and a shack which he called a studio. Then and there were born the custard-pie comedy, which made a former generation shriek with laughter; the Keystone Cops, the endless chases and the bathing girls.

Into his studio, with the timidity of the obscure, walked a quaint young Englishman named Charley Chaplin, a lovely darkeyed girl named Mabel Normand, a slim young girl with a perfect complexion and eyes like twin sapphires, Gloria Swanson. In the gay hurly-burly of Mack Sennett comedies was born the fame of Wallace Beery, Ford Sterling, Chester Conklin, Marie Prevost and a score of others who made people laugh before they gained the art to make them cry.

At the summit of his career Mack Sennett was said to be worth 15 million dollars and then came the twist which stopped him, the invention of talking pictures. The talkies could not be adapted to the Mad Hatter style of Mack Sennett, and year after year he poured his fortune into the bottomless pit of impossibility.

Urges Abolition Of Auto Races

The one time dare-devil of motor car racing, the speed burner whom Death gave up as a bad job, tells us now that motor car races should be abolished. They are not only mankillers, but unnecessary in these days when all the speed that people need has been prisoned in the throbbing cylinders of our modern cars.

Fifty-six years old now, Barney Oldfield was a bicycle rider in St. Louis in 1902, when a young engineer named Henry Ford was tinkering around with horseless carriages. Henry Ford built a contraption he called the "999" and was driving it around in races with considerable success when he decided that he would rather build them than drive them. So he got hold of young Barney and put him in the driver's seat of "999," and Barney went out and gave the country a real thrill when he burned the breezes at 100 miles an hour. He was the sensation of the day and for many years afterward.

For years this man who was the dare-devil racer of his day broke the records and escaped, by some miracle, from joining the angels. His greatest feat was on Daytona Beach, 23 years ago, when he drove a car at the undreamed of speed of 132 miles an hour—the first two-mile-a-minute man who ever stepped on the gas. Always with a cigar cocked in a corner of his mouth and the smile which hints of friendship with the jade called destiny, Barney Oldfield still is keenly interested in machinery of all kinds: tractors and automobiles.

Miracle Wrought By Marconi

THIRTY-TWO years ago one of the few miracle workers who ever worked with a purely human brain stood tense before a table in an old building on a hilltop of Newfoundland. From that table and up through the roof, and on up into the air for 400 feet, ran a slender wire, supported by a kite which whirled and dived in sudden gusts of wind. Noon came and the young man standing before the table, listening with his heart in his mouth, heard three faint ticks, three dots in the Morse code, the letter "S." The ocean had been spanned by wireless at 12 noon on December 12, 1901.

Yet it was some time before the world accepted the miracle wrought by a young Italian dreamer. Thomas A. Edison believed in him—so did the great Prof. Pupin, of Columbia. But the miracle was real. It was the miracle of radio we hear today, the miracle of all the voices, of all the musical tones, of every varied sound that roams the air like the djinns of Solomon, amusing mankind, serving mankind.

And on Christmas Day, when we heard the King of England's pleasant voice flowing out through space to the most distant regions of his empire and the sonorous booming of Big Ben from the Towers of Westminster in London, when we heard the chimes of Bethlehem in far off Palestine, our minds flashed back to that day 32 years ago, on a hilltop in Newfoundland, when Guglielmo Marconi wrought his miracle.

Child Labor Amendment Delayed by Legislatures

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PUBLIC sentiment is always more powerful than special privilege in shaping the course of government, when public sentiment is informed and aroused regarding a public cause.

New evidence of the truth of Abraham Lincoln's declaration that "public sentiment is everything" is to be found in the action of Pennsylvania on the proposed Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Pennsylvania is the twentieth state to give legislative consent to the ratification of this progressive proposal since it was submitted to the several states in 1924. Pennsylvania is the fourteenth state to ratify the amendment since the beginning of 1933.

During the nine years that this amendment has been awaiting the approval of the state Legislatures, 44 of the 48 states of the Union have taken some legislative action on the amendment. In 37 of these 44 states, the amendment has either been rejected in both houses, rejected in one house, or indefinitely postponed by one body of the Legislature at some time or other.

Of the 20 states that have ratified the amendment, 13 of them had previously rejected it by the action of one house or the other of the Legislature. All the while in every state capital the forces of special privilege have maintained a powerful lobby opposed to ratification.

* * *

Four States Have Not Acted

FOUR states have never taken any action on the Child Labor Amendment, although resolutions to ratify are pending in each one of them. These states are Alabama, Mississippi, New York and Rhode Island. In New York, Gov. Lehman recommended ratification of the amendment by the Legislature in 1933. A ratifying resolution is also pending in Wyoming.

Thus far in the current year, a ratifying resolution has been rejected by one House of the Legislature in four states—Utah, Kansas, Texas and Tennessee. In each instance the Senate was the body which rejected the amendment. It is easier for the forces of special privilege to work their will in the upper House of the state Legislatures. This is so, because of the 7,400 members in the 48 state Legislatures, only 1,760 are Senators and 5,640 are Representatives.

As Prof. Beard points out in his book on American government and politics:

"If we group the 36 states with the smallest Legislatures together, we find that about 2,000 members properly distributed between the upper and lower Houses constitute a majority and can determine the fate of a federal amendment."

In this connection it is interesting to find that a comparison of the votes on the Child Labor Amendment before 1933 and the votes since that time shows:

That in the states of Kansas, Texas, Utah and Missouri, when the amendment came up for ratification, it was the popular branch of each State Legislature which voted overwhelmingly for ratification and the State Senate which rejected the ratifying resolution.

A shift of four votes in the Texas Senate would have put Texas on the roll of honor of ratifying states. A change of one vote in the Utah Senate would have done the same for that state. A change of two or three votes in the Kansas Senate would have given the legislative consent of Kansas to ratification.

Convention Plan Favored

IN the light of these facts it is not surprising that sentiment in Congress is growing in favor of requiring all amendments to the Constitution to be submitted to constitutional conventions in the several states for approval instead of by the State Legislatures. This is the way the Twenty-first Amendment, which repealed the Prohibition Amendment, was ratified, and it is the way the Federal Constitution was adopted.

Had the Child Labor Amendment been submitted to constitutional conventions in the several states instead of to the State Legislatures, it would have been ratified long ago. The reason why the forces of special privilege have been able to delay ratification of this amendment so long is because they have a grip on the Upper House of many State Legislatures, which the people find it hard to break.

One way to break this grip is to require that future amendments to the Federal Constitution shall be submitted to constitutional conventions in the several states for ratification instead of to the State Legislatures. This Congress can do by including a provision to that effect in its resolution proposing an amendment to the states.
